SIR JOHN'S REASON.

Mr. Temple last night gave us Sir John Macdonald's reason for the advertisement making Portland the winter port of Canada. The usual course had been followed, he said, in issuing the advertisement. Some of the speakers at the meeting last night seemed to think this inconsistent with Sir Alexander Campbell's answer to Mr. Everett, to the effect that he had thought the matter over and had concluded that St. John could not give return freight. Sir John, be it noted, did not tell Mr. Temple why the usual course had been followed, and it seems scarcely possible that so important a question as the fixing of the winter port of Canada for ten years, and practically forever, would not have been decided by Sir Alexander Campbell without consultation with anybody. Can it be that the minister of marine, a New Brunswicker of the New Brunswickers, a King's county boy in whom there is no guile, and so on, was not invited to give his opinion upon a subject of such vital importance to his own province and his own constituency? It is supposable that Mr Costigan, who is regarded by some as the real representative of St. John in the tory party, was never asked what he thought about it? Can it be that until Mr. Temple launched his solemn protest upon the first minister that the father of "Canada for the Canadians" did not know that ducks and drakes were being made of his much lauded policy? These things are not supposable. Sir Alexander Campbell would not in the face of all that has been said, have undertaken to make Portland, Maine, the winter port of Canada. Therefore, when Sir John Macdonald told Mr. Temple that the usual course had been followed he meant that the whole subject has been considered and the cabinet had decided to make no change. And this is how Mr. Temple must have understood him, for he tells us that he argued the matter with the premier and concluded by entering his solemn protest. The course which Mr. Temple felt bound to take, doubtless as much in the interest of St. John as in that of Belfast, Maine, the proposed terminus of his new railway, shows that he felt the issuing of the advertisement was no inadvertence.

THE AMENDED ADVERTISEMENT.

That the government on the eve of a general election would refuse to withdraw an advertisement which if persisted in would probably cost them every seat in the maritime provinces, need occasion no surprise. If surprise be felt at all it would be that tenders for a contract making Portland, Maine, the winter port of Canada should be invited at all at this juncture. But what will set people thinking is the fact that it should have been necessary for the people of St. John, backed up by all the rest of the province, to almost rise in rebellion before their interests received any consideration The promptness with which the urgent appeal of the people of St. John has been answered may be worthy of commendation or it may not be. That altogether depends upon what comes of it. There can be no excusing the publication of the first advertisement. St. John was just as fit to be the winter port of Canada three months ago as now, and the claims of the maritime provinces were just as strong then as they are now. Indeed we know from Mr. Everett, M. P., that he urged the government not to overlook the claims of St. John, and that the Postmaster General told him in effect that he had considered the subject, but could do nothing. Two explanations only are possible, either the government considered the case of St. John and decided to overlook it or they never thought about St. John at all. The friends of the government may accept one or the other horn of the dilemma. They must plead guilty either to culpable negligence or wilful perverseness, for the fact that the government has promised to amend their advertisement disposes of any claim which might otherwise be made, to the effect that St. John had no claim in the premises worthy of consideration. But after all what has been promised is no guarantee that faith will be kept with St. John. Too many promises have been made and broken to make the breaking of one more a matter of difficulty. The promise of a properly framed advertisement may mean much or it may mean nothing at all. The people have grown to suspect all tory promises and the amended advertisement may only be, in the language of United States politics in the Anti-Masonic days, "A good enough major until after election."

THE WAY THE WIND BLOWS.

The Hon. William Macdougal, formerly a colleague of Sir John Macdonald, has come out squarely in opposition. He says that the Dominion must rid itself of the Tory government. Principal Grant, always a great admirer of Sir John Macdonald, says that Mr. Blake will sweep Ontario. The Toronto News, hitherto independent with a strong Tory leaning, has come out strongly against Sir John Macdonald. It has told the working men of Toronto, whose particular friend it claims to be, that as between Sir John and Mr. Blake the latter is to be preferred. It calls upon the people "to sternly resent the scandalous waste of the taxpayers money" in supporting "idlers in luxury" at Ottawa. The Premier himself has taken alarm. He told the people of Renfrew that the N. P. is in danger. He sees the end at hand of his long lease of power.

CUTTING'S EXPEDITION.

Recruiting Men at Albuquerque to Invade Mexico—213 Names Already Pinced on the List.

Capt. Edward Friend of the El Paso Rifles arrived at El Paso, New Mexico, on Tuesday night and opened a roll for recruits to join Cutting's filibustering expedition into Mexico. It is understood that 213 names have been placed on the list in the city, and that more are promised. It is expected that the expedition will be thoroughly organized within a month, and that the insurgents will rendezvous at El Paso, from which point they will invade the Mexican republic. Federal officers in New Mexico are closely watching the movements, and will use every endeavor to prevent the invasion of the friendly neighboring republic. The men being enlisted for the expedition are well known characters, desperate in the extreme, and capable of causing serious international trouble.

The District School.

Journal of Education.

The birds sung in its sheltering trees;
The school house door was left ajar
To catch the summer-scented breeze
That wandered from its home afar.
The children rough and rosy came,
Their smiling faces peeping out;
Each answered to the roll-call name,
Then stared shame-facedly about.

Cling! cling! the master rings the bell;
Clack! clack! the noisy voices go;
"If-you-don't-give-me-some-I'll-tell."
"Who was it pulled my hair? Oh! oh!"
"Tom Nelson pinched me black and blue!"
"'Twas Jimmy Owens dropped that slate."
"I didn't throw them wads"—"A-cho-oo!"
"I'll larn you, Harvey Smith—jes' wait!"

And from the other side the girls,
Though "making b'lieve" on books intent,
Peep shyly from their tumbled curls,
Less noisy, yet on mischief bent.
Across the room, above the noise,
Coquettish smiles fly to and fro—
For girls were girls, and boys were boys,
In district schoolrooms years ago.

"Silence!" the master rapped in vain;
They would not heed that idle day.
"I will not speak," he cried, "again!
First class in spelling, come this way;
Begin the lesson—S-e-p-a-r-a-t-e.
Wrong, wrong again! next one," said he—
And all misspelled, save little Kate,
By making the fourth letter "e."

Well pleased with her the master said:
"Come, Kate, my faithful little lass,
And take position at the head—
Head of our vaunted spelling class."
The blushes on her bonny face
Gave way to tears of joy and pride;
For when she reached the honored place
She stood there by the master's side.

'Twas but a yesterday ago
I saw the district school let out,
And in the welcome sunset's glow
We romped and played with cheer and shout.
And was it yesterday?—ah, me!—
I stood beside a hillock green,
And carved her name upon a tree;
Or do long centuries roll between?

Ah! by the master's side to-day
She stands—the pupil of his love—
Cleanser in that school-room gray,
Head of the training class above.
And when my wearied head I bow,
So tired of life's perplexing rule,
I dream of those, vanished now,
And of the dear old district school!

STREETS OF FREDERICTON.

An Englishman Becomes a Citizen of Fredericton, pays His Taxes, and then Wants to Know Why this Perpetual Digging is going on along the Streets For.

To the Editor of THE GLEANER:—

SIR,—I have only been a resident of this city for a few months, and, therefore, am a comparative stranger. As an Englishman I am greatly pleased with my new home, as I think, and so do my family, it is one of the pleasantest towns I have been in on this side of the water, and as the tax collector has found me out I now enjoy the great privilege of being a citizen and taxed as all the world were during the reign of Augustus Cæsar. Nor do I complain of this for I like to be in the fashion, although the amount set down to me is disproportinate to my means. But as I have become a citizen I suppose I have as an offset a right to complain a little—not to grumble, for I do hate grumbling.

As you are supposed to know everything Mr. Editor, probably you will be so kind as to inform me upon what system are our public works conducted. My reason for asking is why are the streets being continually dug up, either by the gas company, the water company, or the corporation, and every one who has a dig at the streets leaves them ten times worse than they found them. Along nearly all the sidewalks you find ridges of earth high enough for any one to tumble over, the result of leading water pipes into the houses.

Some of these ridges I am told have been standing for years, and the same may be said on many of the streets.

Take for example that terrible bank of earth across the street directly opposite Mr. Lottimer's shoe store. When a trench is dug and a water pipe laid, it ought to be filled up even with the surface, and it is an easy matter in a few months to throw in more dirt should there be any settling.

This is the practice in places I came from. Here the idea is to heap up the earth as is done over the graves of our friends.

But it is even worse than this for they go so far as to dam up the gutters, and allow the rain water to stagnate.

Is this the right way to do business. Who are the managers of your or our Water Company? Then we have the gas men at work trenching up right and left. If the water company do not maul the streets enough and throw up banks of mud sufficient, the gas folks are determined to cap the climax. Of course it is necessary that these works should go on. I do not complain of that, but I find fault with the system which allows so many masters to do as they please. If they would level up or down, leave the roads as they found them, then it would not be so bad. In New York, Boston, Albany, and Troy where I have frequently visited, there is a Board of Works Department in each Corporation who look after all the water, house building, street draining, repairing, etc., and there is harmony.

There is supposed to be a board of works here or a road master to attend to such matters. But does he do so?

The answer is in what I have described dare he meddle with his employers.

Yours respectfully,
ANGLO-SAXON.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

The Public Holiday on Thursday.

Besides the thanksgiving services to be held in the respective churches on Thursday next, a few special attractions are announced to take place for the holiday. Chief Engineer Lipsett has ordered the fire department out for a display on that day, which will consist mainly of a test of the hose and will take place on Sunbury street at nine o'clock in the morning. In the afternoon, should the weather be at all favorable for out door sport, the University foot ball team and a picked team from the city will play a match game on the University cricket grounds. These teams have been matched twice before this fall, and as this is to be their final contest for the season, a keen and interesting struggle for championship may be expected to take place.

The dramatic entertainment in St. Dunstan's hall in the evening will be a special attraction, and will probably be attended by large numbers. The St. Dunstan's dramatic club are making every effort to give an entertainment that will satisfy their audience in every particular, and an excellent performance may be looked for. The English comedy "Our Boys" is to be produced on that evening and it is going to be put on in good style.

The young people of the Baptist church are making extensive preparations for their "Thanksgiving social" to be held in the vestry of the church the same evening. For a small admission fee, a good musical and literary programme, and a good social time with abundance of refreshments is promised.

Another attraction on that evening is the "Envelope Social" to be held in the Methodist church, by the lady members of the Wilmot mission band. An enjoyable entertainment is promised to all who attend. All are invited.

I do not believe that Ayer's Sarsaparilla has an equal as a remedy for Scrofulous Humors. It is pleasant to take, gives strength and vigor to the body, and produces a more permanent, lasting, result than any medicine I ever used.—E. Haines, No. Lindale, O.

I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in my family, for Scrofula, and know, if it is taken faithfully, it will thoroughly eradicate this terrible disease.—W. F. Fowler, M. D., Greenville, Tenn.

For forty years I have suffered with Erysipelas. I have tried all sorts of remedies for my complaint, but found no relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After taking ten bottles of this medicine I am completely cured.—Mary C. Amesbury, Rockport, Me.

I have suffered, for years, from Catarrh, which was so severe that it destroyed my appetite and weakened my system. After trying other remedies, and getting no relief, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, in a few months, was cured.—Susan L. Cook, 909 Albany st., Boston Highlands, Mass.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is superior to any blood purifier that I have ever tried. I have taken it for Scrofula, Canker, and Salt-Rheum, and received much benefit from it. It is good, also, for a weak stomach.—Millie Jane Peirce, South Bradford, Mass.
