THEY SWAPPED HUSBANDS.

Mrs. Waters Gave Mrs. Blankenship Three Calico Dresses to Boot.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 16.—A remarkable double marriage occurred on Saturday in Allegheny county. Ham Waters and Watterson Blankenship fell in love with each other's wives. Waters eloped with Mrs. Blankenship. They returned in a month and there was no quarrel between the men. The wives then arranged for a swap of husbands.

Mrs. Waters, who was more eager for the exchange than was Mrs. Blankenship, gave the latter three calico dresses to clinch the bargain. This settled matters. Both women got divorces and now each has married the man of her choice.

BRIEF HONEYMOON.

Romantic Marriage and Mysterious Disappearance of the Bridegroom.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—A peculiar disappearance case is occupying the attention of the Society for Protection of Women and Children. An old English army sergeant named Axson, employed at the Turkish baths, has been missing for some days past. As he was only married some three weeks ago his absence is peculiar.

The story of his marriage is romantic. Many years ago the sergeant was stationed at Wales and became attached to a young woman, who lived near the barracks. They were to be married, but Axson drifted to this country, where he married a Canadian girl, who died a year ago.

Axson two months ago wrote to Wales to the girl he neglected so long and told her if she was unmarried and cared for him he would marry her if she would come to Montreal. She wrote back she still cared for him, but she was now very lame in one leg and had lost all her teeth by sickness. He wrote and told her to come and he would marry her. Three weeks ago she landed in Montreal and was taken by Axson to St. George's Church, where they were married.

STREET RAILWAY BARGAINS.

Is Either Offer Completely Satisfactory to Citizens?

The Promises of the Two Companies Cavassed by a Prominent Merchant.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

I notice that the much-discussed electric street railway question is to come before a special meeting of the City Council this evening, and the hope is expressed that this will be "positively its last appearance." If this would imply that either of the proposals at present before the council will be accepted in their present shape, I trust that those who attend the "wake" will be disappointed. Repeated "last appearances" are often profitable, and the council will find it better not to decide in haste than be compelled to repent at leisure.

There is a pretty general impression abroad that both companies have been making an active canvass of the aldermen on this question, and the fear is expressed that in consequence a decision may be arrived at adverse to the city's interests through promises made by aldermen without due consideration of facts and figures.

With regard to the offer of the new company, I would say that some people doubt the good faith of that company, and contend that their offer is a mere "bluff" to compel the old company to adopt an electric system, or to force a partnership in what is generally considered a good thing. As to the correctness of this contention I have no knowledge. On looking over the names of the promoters I can hardly believe that such is the case, but I have no hesitation in saying that the amount proposed as security for the due performance of their contract is quite inadequate as a guarantee for such an important and costly undertaking.

With regard to the position of the present company, I think it both right and proper that they should be given the preference over all comers in introducing an electric street railway in our city. Their property should not be interfered with unless they positively refuse to make the city a fair offer for the valuable privilege they seek. Is, then, the offer of $200 a mile, free of all taxation, a fair one? I think not.

I understand they have some six and a half miles of track, which they propose to extend to eleven miles. At present they pay taxes amounting to about $500 per annum—equal to a tax of $80 a mile on the present mileage. It is thought the gain on the four and a half miles extension will be a clear gain, but that is not so. No company can run an eleven-mile railway with a six and a half-mile plant, and I contend that the taxes collectable on an expensive eleven-mile electric railway would fully equal, or exceed, the mileage rate under the present system. If I am correct in this, it follows that the offer made by the old company for the privilege of running an electric railway in this city for 33 years is the miserable bonus of $120 per mile. Is not this offer simply ridiculous?

That the privilege asked for is a valuable one no person can doubt. The large revenues received by Toronto and Hamilton from their street railway are notorious. In Hamilton the railway company pay the city $400 and $800 a mile for their single and double tracks, besides a percentage on the receipts, and guarantee that they shall pay the city not less than $12,000 each year. The last quarterly returns show that that amount has been exceeded, and the city and the railway are alike delighted with the result.

I do not contend that any company operating our electric railway can now afford to give London what Hamilton receives, but it is surely not wrong to look forward a little. In less than 33 years London may be a city of 500,000 inhabitants, and Hamilton may be a howling wilderness. Who knows?

In conclusion, let me say that I think there is a good deal of sound common sense in Ald. O'Meara's idea. If it is impossible to get a satisfactory offer from either of the two companies let the old company jog quietly along as before—goodness knows, the London South service is slow enough. Let the city map out an electric railway route which will meet the necessities of our population, not served by the present company, advertise for offers and wait patiently the result. Yours truly,

Nov. 16, 1892. JOHN MARSHALL.

Look Out for Lottery Frauds!

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Some time since an individual representing himself as an agent of the Louisiana Lottery Company with headquarters at Montreal sent numerous circulars into the United States advertising the lottery scheme, which worked successfully. The promoter pocketed about $10,000 and then disappeared. The success of this operation has apparently had the effect of inducing others to enter the same field. Recently the postoffice department became aware of the existence of a firm doing business with headquarters at Niagara Falls, Canada, and pretending to be agents of the Louisiana Lottery Company. As in the first instance, circulars were sent through the United States mails inviting remittances for tickets. The department yesterday took steps to nip this scheme in the bud by issuing an order to stop the payment of all money orders and the delivery of all registered matter addressed to the firm through the United States mails.

The Third Esquimaux Baby.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—A boy baby was added to the Esquimaux village at Jackson Park on Saturday. This is the third birth in the village. The parents are Tuktoosina and his wife, or, as they are now called in English, Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Palliser. It is proposed to christen the newcomer Christopher Columbus.

Newfoundland and Canada.

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 15.—The conference on the questions pending between Newfoundland and Canada terminated this evening. The proceedings throughout, it is said, were of a harmonious character, and it is expected by the delegates that good results will follow the interchange of views. The proceedings, however, will not be made public at present.
