CHICAGO.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Wheat backed down from its recent lofty position today. It was a day of liquidating, and yet it is held that only a very small portion of the long wheat accumulated has sought a market. It was due to buying against "puts" that to-day's decline was finally checked. At the close prices showed ⅞c recovery, but the undertone was far from stout. Liverpool declined 1½d for the day, the loss being construed as evidence of foreigners' willingness to follow America's lead. For many days short selling has been a neglected industry, and the absence of the demand which should come from that source was in itself a weakening factor, declines being more rapid than if stayed by such buying. Closing continental cables were irregular, Paris quoting moderate advances and Berlin a decline. Antwerp was also slightly higher. December wheat opened from 75⅝c to 75½c, declined to 73⅝c, closing at 74½c—⅜c under yesterday. Cash wheat was weak, and 2½c lower. Corn declined ⅛c, and oats ⅛c. Provisions were lower.

The leading futures closed as follows:

Mess pork—Dec., $6 90; Jan., $7 80.

Lard—Dec., $4 15; Jan., $4 30.

Short ribs—Dec., $3 62½; Jan., $3 85.

Stage Gossip.

Attractions at the Grand—Joe Murphy Saturday Night—Jas. O'Neill Monday, and "Human Hearts" Tuesday.—Last Night's Performance.

JOSEPH MURPHY IN "SHAUN RHUE."

When blackthorn cudgels are conspicuous by their absence and redcoats cut no figure worth speaking of in "Shaun Rhue," the familiar play which perennially serves Joseph Murphy as a means to display his mimetic skill, still the comedy is conventionally Irish. It so impressed a large audience which enjoyed its production at Miner's Theater last night. The serious incidents are few and are soon forgotten in the steady flow of fun, in the making of which Mr. Murphy is the principal provoker. The play is too familiar to demand review. Mr. Murphy is too well established in the favor of his followers to warrant extended comment on his work. His acting is spirited and appreciative.—Newark Daily News.

Mr. Murphy will appear at the Grand tomorrow night only.

"MONTE CRISTO."

Others actors besides James O'Neil have attempted to play "Monte Cristo" in this country; but without any exception, every attempt has been a failure. Mr. O'Neill was the first American actor to make Dumas' fascinating hero, Edmond Dantes, popular with the public ten years ago, and, true to its trust, the public have never forgotten James O'Neill. On the contrary, every season the theater-goers express their continued approval of O'Neill's great performace by crowding the doors when "O'Neill in 'Monte Christo'" is the bill. This great attraction will be at the Grand Monday night.

"HUMAN HEARTS" NEXT FRIDAY.

"Human Hearts" contains a golden thread of truth, crossed here and there by a silver web of natural comedy. This beautiful story by Hal. Reid is a tale of the Arkansas hills, filled with quaintness and holly-hocks, sunflowers, crocuses, blue-flags, clover blossoms and yellow roses; the fair, sweet cry of the quail, the lowing of the kine and the bleating of sheep. In this hazy atmosphere, among its honest people, the young author has set a collection of gems whose sparkle and whose brilliancy has never yet failed to please its auditors. Harry C. Miner, who has this production in charge, realizing that such a story, so well written, needed the most careful rendering, personally selected the cast which for this season is to interpret the play. Mr. Miner, owning the Fifth Avenue Theater and five others in New York, owning and producing "Shore Acres," and having successfully piloted half a hundred past successes, should be a guarantee to the theatergoers that "Human Hearts" is well worth seeing.

"SIDE-TRACKED."

Last evening at the Grand the laughable comedy-drama "Side-Tracked" was presented to a crowded house. The patronage was well deserved, the play being highly interesting as well as funny. Mr. E. H. O'Connor, in his role as a tramp, performed his part to perfection, keeping the audience in a continued state of hilarity, while Ed. O'Connor as McGinty, Wm. Bowers as Fritz Grabhold, and Daisy Chaplain as Bessie Reynolds were excellent. The specialties introduced throughout the piece were first-class. The other parts were taken by James Wall, Osborne Searle, Frank Poole, R. E. Vance, George Arcott, J. Brophy, Gail Stanwood, Carmillia Martin and Amy Paige.

Col. Otter Speaks His Mind Regarding the Seventh.

The Inspector Much Disappointed—His Address to the Men.

The Seventh Battalion turned out again last night for the trying ordeal—a regimental inspection by Lieut.-Col. Otter, of Toronto. The turn out was weak, both in men and officers. The battalion, in command of Col. Lindsay, was formed up in the order of a square, to receive Col. Otter and his staff, composed of Lieut.-Col. Smith, D.A.G., Major Hemming, and Capt. Carpenter. Col. Otter, on his arrival, was received with a general salute, while the band struck up, "See the Conquering Hero Comes." After ordering the officers to dismount, Major Hayes was called upon to put the battalion through the manual exercise, which they did exceedingly well. They were then put through volley firing by companies, half companies and sections, and the latter caught the Seventh napping. Col. Lindsay was then called to put them through several movements, but when ordered to give the command of column to the left, he became somewhat nervous and slightly mixed. With this single exception the work was well done.

Col. Otter then took the men in hand, and addressed them as follows:—

"As inspecting officer, it is my duty to point out any defects I may see, and give credit for any points that are good. This is the first time I have seen the Seventh in a great many years; it is the first time I have inspected it, and I am going to tell you plainly of the different points to your advantage and disadvantage; of things which I consider are not as they should be, and I do so only with the purpose of giving you an opportunity to improve yourself in the future. If I did not do so I would utterly fail in my object as an inspecting officer. These things I may point out to you as requiring improvement, I wish you to recollect, and endeavor by next inspection to be in such a position that they will not have to be again referred to. The first thing that struck me last night was the weakness of the battalion. I do not understand the reason for the lack of numbers, nor can I see any reason for it. London is a large place, and one would look for military enthusiasm in it. Whether it lacks military spirit, or whatever may be the cause, the fact stands most apparent that you are weak. This evening, although the ranks are a little fuller than last night, the battalion is not up to strength, and this is a matter which, both in the interests of the locality and the corps, should be remedied. I think it can, with a little extra exertion on the part of yourselves to bring in more of your friends. A battalion of your strength, even when in full numbers, is small enough, but when it is reduced at least one-third it loses a great deal of its efficiency. In the matter of drill last night I was also disappointed. I expected to have found you farther advanced than you are, and I do not see any excuse for this, either, considering that you have here a military school, where every chance is given for obtaining instruction, and where you have soldiers constantly moving about amongst you, giving you an example and tending to rouse your enthusiasm. This evening there is another matter that has rather disappointed me. It is in connection with your strength—and that is the weakness, numerically, of the officers. Instead of finding the ranks full, as I should in a city battalion, I find only one officer to every company on the average. I do not know what possesses the young men of London, who should become officers in a battalion of this kind; but certainly I can only come to the conclusion that they lack military enthusiasm in not being found in their own corps. This evening the work of the battalion was very much better. I am pleased to see that the men in moving in the ranks the very quiet and steady, showing a strong desire to do their best. With a feeling of that kind in a battalion, there is no reason why it should not prosper, improve and succeed. I have faith in your improving, before another inspection comes on, and I am satisfied that the material I see before me is good and can be made much of. You must recollect that if it is necessary or advisable to have a battalion in London, it is necessary for the country to have its militia force in good shape, and that if the purpose is not served it is very much better that the money should be saved and no militia maintained. To make it a success we must enter into it with heart and soul."

CITY POLICE COURT.

Magistrate Parke Deals With a Number of Cases.

Police Magistrate Parke had a crowded court this morning. Albert Bolton, a young man, was accused by Joseph Fox of stealing a fall overcoat. He was arrested as a drunk on Sept. 29, and remanded for a week. At that time it was not known that the coat he wore had been stolen, but Detective Nickel in making inquiry about the man made the discovery.

The drunks discharged were William Armstrong and Thomas Cake, each of whom received a word of advice from the magistrate.

A party of young men were up for disorderly conduct at the corner of King and Burwell streets. They were Leonard Turtin, Eugene Moriarity, Christopher Martin, Fred. Heaman and Edward Brown. Mrs. Cox appeared against the young men. The magistrate fined Heaman and Brown $1 each or three days in jail. In passing judgment he warned young Heaman that if he ever came back he would send him down, as reports of Heaman's unbecoming conduct had reached his ears on previous occasions.

William Haywood, a cripple was charged with furious driving on the market. Mr. Love defended him, and told the court that Mr. Haywood was the sole support of his mother, and that the horse he drove was not capable of much speed, as its owner had purchased it for $3. Haywood was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

Mr. D. Beach, charged with infraction of the city bylaw in having obstructed the sidewalk with his wagon, was discharged.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—Without a single vertised the question: "Does anyone, anywhere, know of any case wherein Dodd's Kidney Pills have failed to cure any kidney disease, at any stage?"

We estimate that half a million people must have joined in using two and a half million boxes already sold in Canada; and yet not a single complaint—not one failure to cure.

Now, reader, here's one for you: Do you know of a death from kidney disease, or of heart failure, the victim having used Dodd's Kidney Pills?

Why didn't the person who suffered untold agony tell somebody?

It is nobler to confess a sin than to cover it.

Board of Works.

Reconsidered Old Claims Against the City.

Sewerage Construction Committee Met Mr. Chipman—Work May Soon Commence.

The Board of Works met last night, with all members present. The claim of Miss Annie Hayes for damages sustained in the patrol wagon collision was again considered. Ald. Cooper and Dreaney were indignant at the continued silence of the police commissioners.

Ald Pritchard proposed to give Miss Hayes $500, and was supported by Ald. O'Meara.

It was decided that Ald. Parnell and the mayor should interview the claimant and learn for what sum a settlement could be effected.

The complaints of Messrs. Hunt and Carr that tar was entering the river at the gas works were referred to the engineer to report.

The Trades and Labor Council's recommendation that the sewerage construction be done by day labor was considered, but no action decided upon.

Thomas Brown, of 256 Talbot street, was thrown out of a wagon on Central avenue in crossing the road where it had been torn up by the Street Railway Company, and claimed damages.

The engineer said the railway company were responsible.

Ald. Dreaney reported that the Dundas street east pavement was badly in need of sweeping, and the work will be done.

The committee sustained Street Commissioner Ironsides in his report against refunding $36 80 to Contractor Bartlit, the sum being taken off on account of poor gravel supplied.

Consulting Engineer Willis Chipman arrived in the city last night and was met by the members of the Board of Works and Ald. Skinner and Dr. Campbell, who compose the sewerage construction committee.

The plans prepared, as well as the specifications, were turned over to Mr. Chipman for inspection. He will report upon these shortly, and then the only thing remaining will be to call for tenders, unless the work is to be done by day labor.

City Engineer Graydon reported that plans for the first two sections were ready.

The mayor said Mr. Chipman was present, in response to a wire from him, to receive instructions from the committee.

Ald. Pritchard wanted to know what guarantee Mr. Chipman proposed to give that the work would be properly carried out. He understood that such had been promised by the mayor.

The mayor said he had never intended to give any such impression.

Ald. Pritchard stuck to his contention and moved that Mr. Chipman give the proper guarantee before anything is done.

Mayor Little declared that such a thing as asking an engineer to give security had never been heard of.

Ald. Cooper supported Ald. Pritchard, but the motion was defeated.

The committee ordered that the plans be submitted to Mr. Chipman, and that the report back.

AN ITCHING HEAD

IS a source of great discomfort. It's annoying to yourself and disgusting to your friends.

Most times dandruff, scurf, or scales cause it, and these, if neglected, produce baldness. By using Hairene you can clean the scalp, relieve the itching, nourish the hair roots, and produce a vigorous growth of hair.

Distinguished racers use Adams' Tutti Frutti to aid digestion and give staying power on long runs.

Some dealers try to palm off imitations which they buy cheaper. See that the Trade Mark name is on each 5c. package.
