CHATHAM, THURSDAY, JULY 27, 1876.

The Countess of Dufferin.

(From New York Herald.)

The Canadian yacht Countess of Dufferin, which is to compete with the Madeline for the Queen's cup, arrived at this port yesterday evening, in excellent sailing trim, and with all on board safe and well. The Countess started from Quebec on the 28th of June, and after passing down the River St. Lawrence, entered on her long ocean coast voyage, and after a very pleasant and uneventful passage, entered the East River at six o'clock yesterday afternoon, and, proceeding quietly to Governor's Island, dropped her anchor. The following gentlemen formed the party on board: Vice Commodore Gifford, of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club; Captain Cuthbert, sailing master; J. Cameron of Coburg; Wearman Gifford, of Coburg; Beverly Jones, of Brockville; F. Lucas, of Montreal; George Carvill, of Montreal; C. T. Torrance, of Montreal; C. W. Ball, of Toronto; Mr. Wickstead, of Ottawa; W. H. Barrett, of the Toronto Mail; Captain Bearnier, pilot. There are also a mate and nine men in the crew.

* * * * * * *

As soon as it was ascertained that the Canadian yacht had at length arrived, she was made the recipient of a warm welcome. Whistles were sounded by ferryboats and the Sound steamers, guns were fired by passing yachts and by vessels in the harbor, flags were run up and dipped and many a hearty cheer was given from the decks of the excursion steamers as the passengers caught sight of the already famous yacht.

The Vice-Commodore remained on board the yacht all night. Other members of the party, however, came ashore and enjoyed themselves with friends in viewing city sights and scenes. To-day the party will visit the New York Yacht Club House, corner of Madison avenue and Twenty-seventh street, where they will be received with all the honors.

LONDON, July 19, 10 p. m.—Official despatches from Belgrade say that the Servians drove one wing of Osman Pachas's army out of three entrenchments, which the Turks retook with considerable reinforcements.

Paris Temps states that six great powers are in daily communication, relative to the Eastern affairs, with views of establishing a general agreement to take advantage of any opportunity to exercise their moral influence. It is stated that a general understanding of all powers exists. The exclusive agreement between three northern Empiers has been abandoned.

A Belgrade despatch says that all reserves have been ordered to assemble on Saturday for drill before starting for the front.

The "Christian" Insurgents.

In the fearful struggle between the Turk and the Christian in the Danubian Principalities, it is not a very pleasant thing to learn from so many sources that the masses of the so-called Christian population are by no means superior in culture, humanity, and toleration to the Turks themselves. For it is said that ignorance and coarseness, the bluntest image-worship and superstition, together with the rudest fanaticism against those of other confessions, find among them even a broader field than among the Moslems. The latest ratification of this fact is reported to come from Prime Minister Andrassy, of Austria, on his late visit to the famous Diplomatic Conference at Berlin. While enjoying the hospitalities of some distinguished ladies, he was interviewed by them, over a cup of tea, in regard to the Christian insurgents, in whom they took much interest. But his graphic and frank description of their savage and cruel rudeness blanched their cheeks with terror and indignation. And still it is clear that his sympathies are with them, and that he would be more likely to be partial than impartial in regard to them. The political case that he made out of his conversation was worthy of the diplomatist; namely, he regretted greatly that the tendency of the European mind is so unanimously against the Turks in this conflict, for the result is, without wishing it, to advance Russian policy in this matter by making the Christians popular and the Turks unpopular.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

Our Servants.

"The presumption of servantgalism has become proverbial, and is almost intolerable. High wages, little work, extravagant dress, uncontrolled liberty, and impertinent speech, are among the chief characteristics of the class. It is in vain that Punch and other comic journals satirise, or that the Saturday Review brings to bear upon the evil its ponderous learning, and dogmatic authority. The reign of servantdom is still complete, and under the same roof the kitchen and pantry hold rival sway against the drawing room and library. And there is really little or no prospect of a reformation in this domestic tyranny, until masters and mistresses become more determined in the maintenance of their own authority, and withal more gentle and considerate in the example they set before their servants, and in the influence they seek to exert upon them. For many of the evils complained of the heads of households are primarily to blame They have been been lax in discipline or incompetent in management, or indiscreet in temper and conduct; and taking advantage of this, wily maids and butlers have gradually established a state of arrogance and despotism which has become irksome and offensive. The thraldom should be broken; these arrogant demands should be resisted; domestics may be, and should be put and kept in their places and this can be done only by the firm and united action of the sufferers themselves. —Scottish American.

Salmon Culture in Canada.

Advices to the Fisheries Department state that the greatest success has attended the distribution of young salmon bred at the hatching houses of Restigouche, Tadousac, Gaspe and Miramichi. Six hundred thousand young fish were placed in the rivers and streams of the maritime provinces. Mr. Wilmot, in charge of the Government hatching houses at Sandwich and Newcastle, Ontario, has placed in the waters of the Detroit river no less than 10,000 white fish fry and vivified eggs, which were liberated early this spring. The following letter from Fitz Cochran, Esq., appears in the Forest and Stream:—

HALIFAX, July 1st, 1875.

Editor of Forest and Stream,—

I noticed in the Forest and Stream of June 22nd, a paragraph about the distribution of salmon fry from the fish breeding establishment at Bedford, near this city, which is slightly inaccurate as regards the number placed in River Philip, Cumberland County. It should have been 140,000 instead of ten thousand. I think Mr. Wilmot deserves very great credit for his endeavors to replenish our rivers with salmon, and in order that all possible publicity should be given the successful result of his labors, I trust that you will make the correction. I may say that Mr. Wilmot did not succeed in getting to Gold river with the 10,000 intended for that place, owing to the roughness of the road. But fearing that he might lose them on the way, he very wisely put them into Indian and Ingram rivers, St. Margaret's Bay; thus saving them for the country, and replenishing two rivers in which they are much required. I send you a paper containing an account of some convictions for illegally setting nets, from which you will see that a sharp look-out is kept for offenders.

Election Petition Defeated.

There has been quite an excitement in Nova Scotia over an election petition in Guysboro County, in which one Headley was Petitioner, and Attorney General Weeks Respondent. A despatch of the 19th to the Chronicle says:—

"The election case has collapsed. The scrutiny has been abandoned. Recriminating charges have not been pressed."

"The Judge said he would not call on the respondent for any defence. Of thirty-seven charges the petitioner did not pretend to any evidence having been produced except under three of them. The Judge said as far as the respondent was concerned the election was conducted with purity and freedom and respect for law, and was creditable to the electors of the county."

"Final decision has just been given. The Petition is dismissed with cost. No points whatever reserved."

Trade in G. B.

The depression of trade in Great Britain appears to grow more and more marked, and the outlook for employers and employed, unless the latter make large concessions is gloomy indeed. England has for many years commanded the markets of the world for iron, cotton and woolen manufactured goods, and a sudden check to consumption from universal hard times must press heavily upon those employed at the trades in that country. At the same time competition with the English factories and iron works has long been growing in Belgium, France and America, and England, to hold her position must under sell. With all her marvellously perfect machinery, she must produce more cheaply than at present or lose her trade. Hence the present difficulties between master and man.

Railway Claims.

A Quebec paper of the 18th says:—The Dominion Government Arbitrators intend to proceed in a few days to the Intercolonial Railway to decide on a large number of claims for land damages, &c., on the line of that road, that have been referred to them. The claims number over a thousand, and amount in the aggregate to about $300,000. They extend all through the counties of Temiscouata and Rimouski from River du Loup to Metapedia. Mr. J. J. Maclaren of Montreal, has been retained by the Dominion Government to represent its interests before the Arbitrators.

GRAMMAR is being "taught in seven hours" by Mr. Davis P. Howe, who is doubtless remembered by many residents of Chatham as the Editor of the Colonial Times The Truro Sun of last week says:—On Monday evening last Prof. Howe introduced himself to a very large and intelligent audience in Y. M. C. A. Hall, and gave a brief outline of his system. We were unable to be present at the first part of his lecture, but were much pleased with what we did hear of it, as were very many others with whom we have since conversed on the subject. An intelligent gentleman at Oxford, who has been a pupil of the Professor's, recommends the system highly and says that he gave good satisfaction there. Yesterday evening we attended his class, where quite a number have already enrolled their names, and from the information we have gathered, do not hesitate to recommend the Professor and his system, and feel assured that $1.00 for the course and fifty cents for a book will prove to be money well invested.
