LOOK FOR LIVELY COUNCIL SESSION OVER MINOR ITEMS

Personalities Likely To Enter Into This Evening's Meeting of City Fathers.

THE ISON REWARD

Though only routine business is before the council at tonight's meeting it is possible that personalities may enter into their deliberations, owing to a number of little things over which there is a difference of opinion between the mayor and some of the aldermen. No. 1 committee, in particular, seems to have it in for his worship, judging by their last meeting a few days ago, when they removed the mayor from a committee on which he was to serve, and substituted Alderman Greer.

This was in connection with the question of the payment of the Ison reward. Certain members of the committee felt they had been slighted by the action of the mayor in settling the question with the police commission and making a public statement to the effect that the money would be paid to Sergeant O'Connor, without reporting to them.

Will Report Tonight.

The mayor, who stated that the action of the committee was unreasonable and that it was a case of "when the cat's away the mice will play," claims that his statement at the time of the interview with the police commission was in order, and that no further action was necessary. Aldermen Judd and Greer, however, carried out the work of the original committee, and will bring in their report to the council tonight, just as if the mayor had not already completed the arrangement.

As regards the presentation of colors to the 18th Battalion, which the mayor sponsored some days ago, his worship said today that this was a proper item to place before the finance committee, for whose decision all questions involving the spending of money are offered.

The Salary Question.

On still another count, the same committee are on the warpath for the mayor, and that is on the supreme question of the hour in the city hall, the salary question. It was agreed at the last council meeting that the whole question should be shelved until the Citizens' Research Institute, who are making a survey of the city hall and of other civic departments, would bring in a report.

Since that time, Aldermen Judd and Greer, whom the mayor designates as "those two obstructionists," stated they had definite information that the Institute, in its report, would have absolutely nothing to say on the question, and in view of this, will ask the mayor tonight for a statement as to the increase of city hall salaries, and if he is not able to supply them with what they term a satisfactory one, they promise to call a special meeting of the council to deal with the question alone.

Both Aldermen Greer and Judd claim that Mayor Wenige is purposely delaying the question so that he may use it later as election propaganda, a declaration which the mayor indignantly denies. These are the outstanding points over which there is some little friction. There is also the fact that the finance committee feel aggrieved over what they call the slowness of the mayor in attending to a suggestion of theirs that a comparative statement be obtained from the city treasurer as to the commitments of the committee, which the mayor promised to get for them and which at the last meeting the finance committee decided to go after themselves. Tonight's the night.

DREARY SUMMER IN ENGLAND.

WOMAN PIONEER DIES AFTER NOTABLE LIFE

Mrs. Thomas Henderson, One of Canada's Early Settlers, Passes At Edmonton.

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, Aug. 19. — A former resident of North Oxford Township, Mrs. Thomas Henderson, one of Canada's women pioneers, with a life marked by adventures and hardships, has passed away in Edmonton in her 83rd year. Mrs. Henderson was born in Scarboro County, and came to Oxford with her parents when a young girl. After her marriage she went West. They traveled by the Union Pacific Railway to Vancouver, when that city was a small village. Later on they made their way to Edmonton on hearing of gold discoveries, traveling by steamer, wagon and pack horses.

Mrs. Henderson was the first white woman known to have crossed the Yellow Head pass. Mr. Henderson, who is still living in the neighborhood of Edmonton, had several accomplishments to his credit, including the introduction of bees in Edmonton district. The Hendersons also had the first threshing outfit in the Edmonton district, and one of the first in the West. A number of relatives of the family still reside in Oxford County.

Flaming Flood Seethes Within 300 Feet of Fort McArhur's Magazines.

Special to The Advertiser.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 18.—A boiling lake of burning oil bubbled and seethed within 300 feet of Fort McArthur's magazines at San Pedro during the night.

Trenches were dug between the oil and the magazine to divert the fiery flood. Two hundred men toiled with picks and shovels in the intense heat. Meanwhile, residents of houses near the burning oil abandoned their homes and fled, carrying furniture and baggage.

The fire started when an explosion occurred in a 150,000-barrel tank of the General Petroleum Company early Friday. It burned all day and at night became a menace to all the surrounding countryside when the tank began leaking. Dykes were thrown up to hold back the oil, but in a few hours the liquid flames were lapping almost at the brink of the earthworks.

CHURCHES OF SPARTA AND DEXTER HOLD PICNIC

Special to The Advertiser.

Sparta, Aug. 19.—Sparta and Dexter Methodist Churches held a union picnic Wednesday at Port Stanley, which was attended by about 200 people. The day was ideal. After luncheon, served by the ladies, various sports were put on by the sports committee. A series of races were staged for the younger members of the gathering and were concluded by a walking race, in which the pastor won second place.

A softball game between the young ladies of Sparta and Dexter elicited much interest, resulting in a score of 21 to 13 in favor of Sparta. A softball game followed by a hardball game was put on between the two congregations, resulting in favor of Sparta in each instance. On behalf of Dexter it is fair to say that they have done no practicing this season. After the games supper was served. All returned home feeling that they had enjoyed a delightful outing and that much had been done to develop the good-will between the congregations.
