DITCHFIELD—SPARKMAN.

A very pretty wedding took place at 465 Dundas street on Wednesday, Oct. 9, when Mr. Oliver Ditchfield and Miss Millis Sparkman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sparkman, were made one. The bride was given away by her father, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. C. T. Scott, of Dundas Center Methodist Church. Mr. Wm. Ditchfield, of Woodstock, brother of the groom, and Miss Ada Smart, of Glencoe, acted as best man and bridesmaid. The bride was charmingly attired in white organdie, trimmed with mousseline de soie, and carried a gorgeous bouquet of bridal roses, while the bridesmaid wore plain white organdie, and carried pink carnations. The presents were numerous and exceedingly well chosen. After the ceremony the guests were served a dainty luncheon, when the bridal party proceeded to the C. P. R. depot, where, amid showers of rice and good wishes the happy pair departed on a lengthy honeymoon. Mr. and Mrs. Ditchfield will be at home to their friends on Oct. 30 and 31.

LORD MINTO AND HIS ADVISERS

London Chronicle Says There Is Friction at Ottawa.

Santos-Dumont Air-Ship Soared Like a Bird About Paris—Anarchist Editor Gets a Year in Prison.

London, Oct. 12.—"We understand," says the Daily Chronicle, "that, owing to friction with the ministry, the Earl of Minto is not likely to complete his term as governor-general of Canada. If he resigns, the appointment will be offered to Baron De Blaquire."

WHY CANADIANS WOULDN'T DO.

The reason that the war office declined the services of the young Canadian with a medical degree from a Canadian college who wanted to return to South Africa was due to the fact that he had no English degree, and was not registered. The English law does not permit the employment of any but English doctors, but if Canada would permit the English doctors to practice in Canada without securing a Canadian degree England would reciprocate.

SANTOS-DUMONT FLIES AGAIN.

M. Santos-Dumont, the young Brazilian aeronaut, experimented with his new balloon Thursday. He sailed over Longchamps in the airship, which was easily guided, and returned safely to the park of the Aero Club.

The balloon started off like an arrow and, in spite of a contrary wind, reached Longchamp at a speed as fast as a rapid automobile travels, not less than 60 kilometers an hour. For more than an hour the balloon maneuvered in all directions with perfect docility in the presence of numerous spectators.

Today the aeronaut made another attempt to win the Deutsch prize, but owing to an accident, he was obliged to give up the trip.

PARIS ANARCHIST GETS HIS DESERTS.

Laurent Talhade, editor of Libertaire, the Parisian Anarchist sheet, was tried before the correctional police tribunal for the article published in Libertaire during the visit of Emperor Nicholas to France, inciting to the murder of the czar, President Loubet and the French ministers, as "tyrants and oppressors of the people." He was sentenced to imprisonment for one year and to a fine of 1,000 francs. M. Grandidier, manager of Libertaire, was sentenced to imprisonment to six months, and to a fine of 100 francs. The announcement of the judgment was followed by an ovation to Talhade on the part of his friends and sympathizers, who shouted, as they crowded around and shook him by the hand: "Down with tyrants!" "Down with tigers!" and "Long live anarchy!"

THE SEARCH STOPPED.

In compliance with a request from Washington the search by Ottoman troops for the abductors of Miss Stone, the American missionary, has been abandoned, it being feared that the brigands would kill her should they be closely pursued. Steps have been taken to pay the ransom demanded by the abductors of Miss Stone. The precise hiding place of the brigands continues to be doubtful.

MISS STONE'S WHEREABOUTS.

New York, Oct. 12.—According to the Sofia correspondent of the World, the Bulgarian police are assured that Miss Ellen H. Stone, the kidnapped American missionary, has been conducted by 20 brigands close to the village of Iakaruto in Turkish territory.

THE "THEOCRATIC UNITY."

London, Oct. 11.—The hearing of the case of Theodore and Laura Jackson (formerly Ann O'Delia Diss De Bar, of New York), who have been passing under the name of Horos, charged with conspiring to defraud women of money and jewelry for fortune telling, and against whom other serious charges are made, was resumed today. Victims corroborated the opening speech yesterday of Charles W. Matthews, representing the treasury. They detailed the fantastic performances and vows connected with the initiation into the "Theocratic Unity," and the claims of Theodore that he was "Christ returned to earth, and the only perfect man in the world." The testimony contained frequent reference to the hypnotic influence of the prisoners.

"Trying it on the dog" is, in the parlance of the theatrical profession, the term given to the process of producing a new atraction in smaller centers before submitting it for approval to the supposedly more refined and critical audiences of the metropolis of the United States, New York. If "trying it on the dog" means the furnishing for the delectation of London audiences such wholly enjoyable evenings as that spent at the New Grand last night, then London theater-goers will be quite content to submit frequently to the "trying" process.

The lovers of opera in this city were fortunate in witnessing "Dolly Varden" at a period in its production when the company has been playing it just long enough to be familiar with their parts and lines, and not, on the other hand, long enough to have become wearied of the monotony of going through performance after performance for months, and perhaps several years. Nothing less enjoyable can well be imagined than the spiritless rendition of choruses and solos frequently heard when a production has run its second or third season. There was a gratifying absence of all this last night, and the choruses went with a dash and swing that contributed greatly to the success of the evening's presentation. "Dolly Varden," as a vehicle of expression for that most charming of comediennes, Lulu Glaser, is an undoubted success. The story of the piece relates to the adventure of a charming young country girl in London in the year 1730. Dolly Varden comes to the English city, accompanied by Jack Fairfax, her guardian, to attend the wedding of his sister, Lady Letitia Fairfax. Wishing to marry Dolly principally on account of her wealth, Fairfax fears to leave her alone at her home in the country. During one of her madcap escapades Dollyments Dick Belville, a handsome and manly young officer of his majesty's infantry, and falls in love with him. Fairfax is not long in discovering the wooing of the young people, and does all in his power to prevent their clandestine meeting, but all to no purpose, and in the end the scheming Fairfax is outwitted, and Dolly and Dick are married. The action of the opera also relates the adventures of Lady Letitia Fairfax and Lord Gayspark, an exquisite of the Beau-Brummel school, and Capt. Horace Harcourt, of his majesty's ship Scorpion. Letitia is anxious to marry the foppish Gayspark for his title in exchange for her money and vast estates, but the impecunious naval officer eventually succeeds in winning the fair Letitia, much to the discomfort of her less fortunate, though titled, suitor.

"Sweet and dainty as a sweet pea blossom," some one has described Lulu Glaser's impersonation of Dolly Varden as being, and the description applies aptly. From the time Miss Glaser comes on the stage as the unsophisticated country beauty, with her infectious laugh and artless desire to see the world, through her experiences as a would-be modish belle, to the time when the curtain drops, leaving her the winsome bride of the man of her choice, Dolly Varden is the center of interest. Most of the humorous lines fall to her, and she shows herself abundantly able to carry them off with the necessary spirit. Lulu Glaser's personality alone will suffice to carry the new opera through successfully.

The music is bright, but hardly as catchy as a comic opera should be. Mr. Edwards is evidently blessed—or cursed—with too good a musical memory, and snatches and phases of familiar melodies keep cropping out. The most effective numbers are "Lover's Lane," a bass solo; "The Song of the Sword," male solo and chorus, "The Cannibal Maid," and "The Lay of the Jay," sung by Miss Glaser, and the pretty "Dolly Varden" refrain, sung by Van Rennselaer Wheeler, and running through the score.

Miss Glaser, of course, carries off the large share of the honors, but several other numbers of the ten operating characters come in for a portion. Miss Estelle Wentworth, used her fine soprano voice to full effect as Lady Leithia. Lesser parts were taken by Miss Adah Palmer Walker, soprano, and Miss Amelia Fields, who both possess vibrant voices of good quality. Van Rennselaer Wheeler, Richie Ling and Mark Smith are old time and well known favorites, while Tom Daniels, a newcomer, has a fine bass voice, which he uses with excellent judgment.

The costumes and scenery were perfect, the former being probably the finest ever seen on the local stage. The scenery, built for the largest stage in the United States, was seen to full advantage.

If "Dolly Varden" does not make good in New York, so much the worse for New York's taste.

The audience last night was one of the largest the house has yet contained. The sale for both matinee and night performances today has been large.

THE METROPOLITAN COURSE.

The regular opening of the Metropolitan course at the new Grand is announced for next Tuesday evening, Oct. 15, the attraction being the Ernest Gamble Concert Company, in one of their charming recitals. Subscribers to the course will be admitted on presentation of coupon No. 1, together with the usual reserving fee of 10c.

THE BOSTONIANS.

One of the most popular and effective figures on the comic opera stage is Josephine Bartlett, the well-known contralto and character actress so long identified with The Bostonians and their popular successes. Without the brilliant work of this artist, this well-known company would be badly hampered, for few singers on the lyric stage are so versatile. In "Robin Hood," "The Viceroy," "The Serenade," and other operas in the repertoire of The Bostonians, her merry and unctious performances shine to admirable advantage, and in grotesque impersonations she is unexcelled. Miss Bartlett is a beautiful woman with a most attractive figure, and is one of the few artists who are willing to conceal their personality in character disguises. Miss Bartlett will be heard here at the new Grand next Wednesday, Oct. 16, during the engagement of The Bostonians in "The Serenade," which is being produced by special request, instead of "Robin Hood," as at first announced.

A MASTERFUL MELODRAMA.

Six years of consecutive success in the principal theaters of the United States, supplemented by an equal amount of popular favor in Great Britain, Australia, Germany and France, is the record attained by that masterful melodrama, "The Span of Life." Strong heart interest, exciting climaxes, thrilling situations, fine stage settings and competent acting, are the features that have made this play one of the best of modern times. It will be presented at the new Grand next Thursday, matinee and evening, by a strong company and with an entirely new equipment of scenery and effects. A great feature of the production will be the marvelous Donazettas, who will form themselves into a bridge, 30 feet above the stage, while three people pass across their interlocked bodies.

LONDON OPERA HOUSE.

Tonight at the London Opera House the Burrill Comedy Company will give a farewell production of "Ten Nights in a Barroom," by request, thus closing the engagement of two weeks.

Marie Corelli's "Thelma," which has been dramatized by Mr. Charles W. Chase, will be produced at the London Opera House on Wednesday next, matinee and night, by Aiden Benedict's company, which has spent much time in making "Thelma" a most interesting and realistic drama. A snowstorm scene, which has been introduced in the fourth act, is spoken of as an electric novelty, never before introduced upon any stage. It is the only version of "Thelma." The company carry special scenery for each act.
