France and its Government.

THE French Ministry, lead by Premier Brisson, was defeated in the Chamber of Deputies, Paris, on the 25th. ult. by a majority of 32 votes. The Brisson Government held power for barely four months; it was the 35th. ministry since the inauguration of the present Republic, twenty-seven years ago. So frequent, indeed, have been the changes of Government that the downfall of a French Premier, after a few months tenure of office has come to be regarded as a matter of course, and ordinarily creates little surprise. Such frequent changes, however, indicate an extraordinary fickleness and want of stability in those charged with the conduct of the public affairs of a great nation, and are well calculated to breed contempt in the minds of serious thinking people, the world over, for such pseudo-statesmen. In the particular instance under review, the defeat of the Ministry showed on the part of those who brought it about a manifest disregard of the country's best interests; for, as we pointed out last week, France had on her hands at the time, as she has still, a dispute with England, of such a serious nature as to require the coolest and most careful deliberation to determine whether peace or war shall ensue. At such a critical moment one would suppose that the people's representatives would restrain their impetuosity, and take Abram Lincoln's advice, who said it was bad policy "to swap horses while crossing a stream." The unfortunate Dreyfus case appears to have had most to do with the downfall of the Brisson Cabinet. The long-continued wrangle over the Dreyfus case seems to be nothing else than a struggle for the mastery between the civil and military elements. Will the civil power be able to assert its superiority over the army? If not, so much the worse for poor France. The conduct of the army officers all through this case strongly indicates there is something extremely rotten in the military department of the country. During the brief but stormy existence of his Government, Premier Brisson was constantly hampered by the attitude of the military element. Brisson and a majority of his Ministerial colleagues were in favor of a revision of the Dreyfus affair, and the final triumph of military power; but the investigation necessary to ensure revision devolved particularly upon the Minister of War and just here arose the difficulty. The surroundings of the Ministry of War are so strongly military that it is extremely difficult to find a minister willing to acquiece in such proceedings as would result in the vindication of the condemned officer; for this would reflect upon the capacity of most of the heads of the army. This was Brisson's difficulty; this brought about his defeat. During his short term of office Brisson's Government had three Ministers of War. M. Cavaignac, the first, retired on Sept. 3, because of a disagreement with his colleagues on the question of revision. General Zurlinden succeeded Cavaignac, and for a similar reason he threw up the portfolio on Sept. 17th. He in turn was succeeded by General Chanoine, who, on the 25th. somewhat dramatically relinquished the responsibilities of office, in the Chamber of Deputies, and without any doubt, precipitated the downfall of the Premier, which occurred during the same sitting of the Chamber. The President sent for M. Dupuy who is reported to have formed a ministry. Meantime the question of the Dreyfus case has been under consideration by the Court of Cassation. Considerable evidence was sifted by the Court, some of it creating excitement. Great stress was laid on a letter of Picquart to the Minister of Justice, dated July 14th., 1898. The letter set forth seven principal arguments against the probability of Dreyfus' guilt. On Thursday a mob of anti-revisionists attempted to enter the court. They were shouting "Long live the Army" "To death with Dreyfus." "Death to the Jews" etc. Their passage was barred by the police and large reinforcements were sent to guard the approaches to the court. Finally the court decided to grant a revision of the case, and will institute a supplementary inquiry. The court, however, has declined to order the release of Dreyfus. What is to be the next move in this extraordinary affair!

AT the banquet tendered Hon. Mr. Tarte by the people of Sorel, to which we referred last week, our own Sir Louis Davies is said to have expressed deep regret that he could not speak French. This regret was all the more poignant from the fact that, as he told the assembled banqueters, he was of French ancestry. This is evidently a new discovery on the part of Sir Louis. Last year he claimed to be of Welsh origin and in lengthy interviews with the Grit daily papers of this city told of the tender emotions with which his pathetic soul was filled when visiting the home of his forbears in Wales. Evidently the Minister of Marine believes in making himself all things to all men. A wonderful man is this Sir Louis Davies!

THE Semaine Religieuse points out that while the Pope has an army and a minister of war, it is not likely to play any great part in the question of disarmament. It consists of four divisions—the Guard of Nobles, the Swiss Guard, the Palace Guard, and the gendarmes. The first numbers about 50 men and is recruited from the Roman aristocracy. The Swiss Guards stand sentinel at the doors and in the corridors. The Pontifical Gendarmes keep order in the interior of the Vatican. Altogether this standing army is composed of less than 300 men. The Palace Guard is a sort of militia, and is only called on for special occasions. The full force of the whole army is 600 men. The Semaine Religieuse describes them as "brave, simple hearted folk, happy and proud to watch day and night over the precious life of the Holy Captive, who dwells in his palace transformed into a voluntary prison, the greatest sovereign of Christendom."—Montreal Gazette.

SINCE the recent change in the Railway time table the steamer Northumberland makes Point du Chene before the arrival there of the train bringing the mails; consequently mails from the United States and the Upper Provinces were delayed twenty-one hours in transit, reaching here on the evening of the day following that on which they arrived at St. John. This was surely intolerable and little short of disgraceful in these days of rapid transit. The business men of this City and Province, through the Charlottetown Board of Trade, protested against this state of affairs, and their protest has been effectual. The Steam Navigation Company have adopted a new arrangement. All the foreign mail shall henceforth, till the close of navigation, be despatched to and from this city, via Pictou, and on and after tomorrow the steamer Princess, carrying these mails shall leave Pictou at midnight and arrive here early in the morning, so that the mails may be distributed and sorted in sufficient time to overtake the outgoing trains. The steamer will leave here on return to Pictou at nine o'clock each morning. The Northumberland will continue running as at present, so that passengers by that route will not be subjected to any change.

THE Winnipeg Telegram gives an account of the proceedings at the annual meeting of the Liberal association recently held in that city, which seem to have been "very interesting for Mr. Sifton and the few people in Winnipeg who still adhere to him." The Telegram speaks from the publisher's chair of the meeting, and says: "The result is one of the severest blows Mr. Sifton has met with in his political career—a blow which will probably open the eyes of the government to the fact that Mr. Sifton, besides discrediting it in the eyes of the country at large, is worse than a lack of strength in the territory he was supposed to carry in his pants pocket at the time he was called to the cabinet. Mr. Sifton's friends and the straight government supporters made desperate efforts to elect a ticket of their own. But their nominees were simply snowed under. The president elected was a bitter opponent of Mr. Sifton—a brother of Joseph Martin, the man whom Mr. Sifton supplanted to become Minister of the Interior. All the vice-presidents elected were strongly anti-Siftonian, one of them being Joseph Martin's late law partner, Mr. Sifton was, it will be seen, more than humiliated. But his defeat and degradation were made even more complete than this. A resolution was passed ostentatiously congratulating his rival, Mr. Martin, on his success in British Columbia; while for Mr. Sifton there was nought but indignant denunciation. A reference to the rejection by the senate of his Yukon railway contract provoked applause. His administration of the Yukon was bitterly condemned. His new personal organ here was repudiated in the name of honest liberalism. His opposition to the interests of Winnipeg was bitterly denounced. His distribution of the patronage was caustically censured. His subserviency to the C. P. R. was angrily inveighed against. For failing to resist his opposition to the St. Andrew's rapids, the member for Winnipeg was called upon to resign. Seldom has any public man been so assailed and humiliated by his own party." It is gratifying to find that the Grits of the west have thus demonstrated that they have found Sifton out and are willing to do their part towards ridding the country of him. Sifton is evidently a very bad man to have anything to do with Canada's public affairs, and has already done Canada a great amount of injury. The administration of the Yukon district which pertains to Mr. Sifton's department has been a scandal and a disgrace. It is particularly gratifying to find his own party and his own City and Province taking the initiative in the uprising against him. Another pleasing feature of the affair is the fact that those assembled had the courage to applaud the action of the Senate in killing the infamous Yukon railway contract. Did Gritism contain more such associations as that in Winnipeg there would be some hope for it. Right on the heels of the report of the Winnipeg Liberal meeting comes the intelligence from Ottawa that a change in the Federal Cabinet is on the tapis. It is said that Lieutenant Governor Patterson of Manitoba is anxious to retire from office, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier strongly urges Mr. Sifton to accept the position. There appears to be a growing feeling among Liberals that "Sifton must go," and unless he can be shelved before Parliament meets, the party managers doubtless feel that something disastrous may happen. But just here the trouble comes in. Sifton does not want to go; he acts the part of "Young Napoleon," and desires to continue imposing his imperious will on the people of the North West, as well as on his colleagues in the Cabinet. It may reasonably be assumed that the Liberals are fervently praying he may accept the Lieutenant Governorship and thus prevent serious trouble for the party.

LOCAL AND OTHER ITEMS.

NOTIFICATION of the extension of the American coasting law andtariff to Cuba and Porto Rico has been given to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

A DESPATCH of the 1st inst. from Yokohama says that the Japanese cabinet resigned in consequence of disagreement on the matter of filling the portfolio of education. Probably a coalition of the liberal and clan leaders will compose the next cabinet.

SEVERAL late issues of the HERALD contained selected poetry, which should have been credited to the Ave Maria. The omission was an inadvertency, as we are always desirous of giving due credit to the publications from which we make selections.

A MONTREL despatch on the 28th ult., says: The grain freight rate will go up one and a half cents per hundred pounds on November 10th. The rate at present stands at 14 cents per hundred pounds so that after the 10th it will be 15½ cents. The C. P. R. says that the advance is in sympathy with the rates made by the American lines.

ON Friday last his honor Lieutenant Governor Howlan visited Tignish, with whose public and private interests he had been identified for so many years. A committee of the people waited upon his Honor and presented him with a most flattering address of welcome. The address enumerated many of the public services rendered that district by his Honor during his public career. His Honor made a most suitable reply to the address.

NOTWITHSTANDING the efforts of the British Authorities to silence the papers in regard to the war preparations now going on, most of them contain the fullest information on the subject. At Dover, on the 31st, a sudden order for an experimental mobilization of the defence forts was given. The carrying out of the order gave the fullest satisfaction. The report of the preparations at Tulon, where the coast forts have been experimenting with Melirite shells against an old gunboat, has been confirmed by the London Daily Mail.

REV. A. P. MCLELLAN, rector of St. Dunstan's College, Boston, Dr. Monaghan, Rev. Father Cuthbert and several other members of the teaching staff, and about eighty students visited the Hospital for the Insane a few days ago and distributed sweets and tobacco among the inmates. They then rendered some choice cornet and violin selections, bringing the proceedings to a close with the National Anthem. Needless to say the visit was greatly enjoyed by the inmates, while the visitors were more than delighted at the thought of being able to brighten, even for a brief space, the monotonous existence of the most helpless of God's creatures.

THE Beaver Line steamship Lake Winnipeg, arrived here on her return from Liverpool on Thursday last, and after discharging cargo left for Montreal on Friday afternoon. She is expected back here again on Friday or Saturday next when she will take in cargo for Liverpool. It is satisfactory to learn that, as a whole, her freight on her first trip from this port reached in as good condition as when it was shipped. Indeed it is said that some of the live stock "come out better than it went in." The weather was fine and this of course was much in her favor. The success of the first venture will encourage our people to increase their shipments by this line. Shippers should be particularly careful to forward nothing only what is of prime quality.

MOST REV. CHARLES HUGH GAUTHIER, Archbishop of Kingston, was consecrated in the Cathedral in that city, on October the 18th. There was an immense gathering of prelates, priests and people, and the ceremonies were most elaborate. The Archbishop's journey from Brockville to Kingston on the day previous to his consecration was a regular triumphal march. At Kingston he was met by the clergy and laity and escorted with bands of music through the crowded streets to the Cathedral. He was presented with addresses and purses by the clergy of the diocese, and by different societies representing the laity of the city and diocese. The consecrating prelate was Most Rev. Archbishop Duhamel of Ottawa, and the assistant Bishops were Rt. Rev. Dr. O'Connor of Peterborough and Rt. Rev. Dr. Gabriels of Ogdensburg, N. Y. The consecration sermon was preached by Most Rev. Archbishop O'Brien of Halifax. The diocese of Charlottetown was represented on the occasion by Rev. Dr. Morrison of the Cathedral.

A merchants' meeting was called by the British Consul at Manila to discuss the commercial dead-lock. Forty million pounds of British capital has been lying idle for the last six months. A resolution was formed to appeal to the British Government to hasten a settlement of pending issues. Under the present condition of affairs business relations with the provinces are in many instances altogether suspended.

Obituary.

The sudden death of Mr. John Hagan has been a great shock to his many friends in and about Charlottetown. A few days previous to his death he was about his work as usual, and little did his friends think that in a few days he would be taken from their midst. He was a devout Catholic, a truly Christian man who lived up to the principles of his religion. A quiet, unassuming person, he gained the esteem of all who knew him. In his transactions with his fellow men he was always found to be upright and honest. Some years ago he was employed in the late Donald McKinnon's tannery, and later on he and his brother started a Tannery business under the name of Hagan Brothers, and by strict application to business and honest dealing, combined with good business ability, they built up a thriving business. By his death Charlottetown loses a good citizen, the business community a good business man, and the Church a good member. His funeral took place on Thursday, Oct. 27, and the high esteem in which he was held was shown by the large number of people who followed his remains to their last resting place.—Com.
