Jury Found Michael Brennan Guilty of Murder.

PRISONER KNEW IT WAS A CRIME

When He Ruthlessly Slayed Mr. John A. Strathy.

The Lawyers for the Defence Tried to Support a Plea of Insanity, Which Failed—Medical Testimony Given in the Prisoner's Behalf—Mrs. Brennan Became Hysterical in Court and Had to be Carried Out of the Room—Before Receiving His Death Sentence the Murderer Made a Villainous Attack on His Wife's Character—The Result of the Trial Concurs With Public Opinion in Barrie.

Barrie, April 10.—(Special.)—The murder case here closed at 8.40 to-night. It took the jury just an hour to decide that M. J. Brennan wilfully murdered John A. Strathy on Feb. 18 last.

When the verdict was returned an immense crowd packed the court room, and a deathly silence pervaded the place as, in response to the question of His Lordship Judge Armour, the jury foreman pronounced the prisoner's doom in gutteral tones, with the words, "Guilty, my Lord!"

Brennan sat in the dock like a statue and not a muscle of his face betrayed any emotion he may have felt.

His counsel, Mr. Lount, asked for a reserve case on the ground of objection to the judge's charge, but His Lordship would not entertain it.

The judge then arose and said: "Michael James Brennan, have you anything to say why the sentence of this court should not be passed upon you?"

Attacks His Wife's Character.

Brennan stared vacantly for a moment, and then, arising, said in a high-pitched but steady voice: "My Lord, I do sincerely ask for another trial, for I have not been properly tried. I will prove that I am not wrong, and I ask you, between God and man, for a fair trial. I will prove my wife's infidelity. It is something awful the way I have been treated by that woman. She has tortured me beyond all reason. I have not been a bad man, and I have not had a proper trial. All I ask is for my simple children, for whose sake I did not call proper witnesses. I assure you that I did what was right. I ask you as a man to give me a fair trial. I ask you as an honest and just man. I thought I could have got through with my trial without having to disgrace my children. Give me an honest trial, and between God and man I will satisfy you."

The prisoner appeared to be making an effort to say something further, when he turned, and with a loud sigh concluded his appeal by "That's all."

The Sentence of Death.

His Lordship arose and quietly delivered sentence upon the hopeless-looking prisoner. "Michael James Brennan," he said, "you have had a fair trial and have been nobly defended. Of the evidence adduced I have no doubts, and I heartily concur in the finding of the jury. The sentence of this court is that you shall be taken whence you came, and remain there until Friday, the 29th day of May next, when you will be taken to a place of execution and hanged by the neck until you are dead; and may the Lord have mercy on your soul."

Brennan then sat down heavily in the dock, and tears filled his eyes. He was removed by Detective Beardsley to the jail.

The verdict appears to meet with universal favor. The popularity of the dead man has manifested itself keenly during the two days of the trial, and, though, as is always the case, considerable sympathy is expressed for the doomed prisoner, those who pity him can but admit that he is only getting his just deserts.

Brennan's wife and family were not in court. The news of the verdict was communicated to them at their hotel, and they took it very hard.

Evidence for the Defence.

The first witness called this morning was Alphonse Tessier, a Penetang contractor, who had employed Brennan from June to December four years ago and had noticed that he was peculiar, inasmuch as he would shake his head, jerk his shoulders and talk to himself. His mind did not appear to be on his work.

Mary Brennan, the 15-year-old daughter of the prisoner, next took the stand. She is a rather pretty little girl and was nattily attired in a blue dress and a tweed cape.

She gave her evidence regarding her life with her parents in a timid way, occasionally stealing a glance at her father in the prisoners' dock. She swore that he acted in a most peculiar manner during the last few months he had been living with his family.

To Mr. Johnston witness said her father had a very bad temper, although he had always been kind to the children, even when very cross with Mrs. Brennan.

Witness admitted having talked the matter over considerably since her father's arrest and she had been reminded of things by her mother and her sister Agnes which she had otherwise forgotten.

Dr. Buck of the London Asylum, who is a handsome, grey-haired gentleman, with flowing silver whiskers, was the next witness. For some 20 years he has been a medical superintendent and is a professor of mental disease at the Western University. From the evidence he had heard in this case, witness thought Brennan was insane, his peculiar form being paranoia, which is the medical term for monomania. Delusions are brought about by a diseased condition of the mind. In all these cases there is disease of the mind before there is any delusion. First the man afflicted will come to believe things with little cause, then with no cause at all. He would be subject to auditory hallucinations, which is the greatest symptom of the paranoia, form of insanity, and he would hear people speak when they didn't. Brennan was probably a sufferer in this respect, but Dr. Buck thought it possible that he knew right from wrong, but did not realize the nature and quality of his act, although he had some appreciation of the enormity of the crime, but then witness hardly supposed that Brennan knew he was committing the crime.

He Knew it Was a Crime.

"Why, then, did he go and give himself up to justice?" asked His Lordship.

"He probably realized afterwards what he had done, but he would be conscious of but little of the gravity of it," replied the witnesss.

Dr. Buck made a personal examination of the prisoner for five hours on Wednesday, and apart from all evidence he could form no opinion regarding his mental condition. He thought Brennan was a lunatic and that his delusion was suspicion of his wife's faithfulness. Dr. Buck said positively that if Brennan could appreciate his act it would be in a very slight degree, but he would doubt that he could realize the enormity of the act, but he would know it was wrong. It did not appear that the trial was bothering the prisoner much, as he was taking very little interest.

The case for the defence closed at 11.45.

In rebuttal, Dr. S. M. Wells of Barrie was called by the Crown. He had to some extent, as an ordinary practitioner, attended cases of insanity. He examined Brennan on several occasions, and thought his mind was not diseased beyond jealousy of his wife's actions. Witness thought that prisoner fully realized the horror of his act in killing Mr. Strathy.

Dr. McCarthy of Barrie examined Brennan three times since his incarceration in Barrie Jail, and thought that he could realize at the time of killing Strathy that he was doing wrong. From the evidence he had heard, it would look as if Brennan was insane.

He Was Entirely Capable.

Dr. Richardson of Toronto Jail examines from 50 to 70 insanity patients a year. He had examined Brennan, and thought that he was entirely capable at the time of the murder of realizing the enormity of the act.

Mr. Lount addressed the jury for the prisoner and Mr. Johnston followed for the Crown.

Judge Armour's Charge.

With but little delay Judge Armour commenced his charge, which only occupied 20 minutes. It was against the prisoner. He explained that appeals are made by counsel on each side to influence the jury to abstract their minds and inspire them with cowardice in order to make sympathy interfere with their duty in rendering their proper verdict. They were not to let it influence them. What would happen if he allowed sympathy to dissuade the bench? "No sympathy or fear prevents me from doing my duty," warmly remarked His Lordship. "So why should it interfere with you." The learned judge then stated that he would first deal with the case as if the prisoner was an insane man. He cited the facts of the tragedy as shown by the Crown, describing the shooting. There was no provocation and there was no reason that the crime should be called manslaughter instead of murder. "I am bound to tell you that the prisoner at the bar is guilty of murder," remarked the Judge, in commenting on Brennan's action, "if he was a sane man." He then went on to remark that the defence set up was insanity; that the prisoner could not appreciate the enormity of his crime. The Judge was of opinion that if he did not he was insane, but it was for the jury to decide. "You are all apparently intelligent men," remarked the Court, "and you have heard the evidence. Did Brennan shoot Strathy? He did." Concluding, the Judge showed why a manslaughter verdict should not be rendered.

A Verdict of Murder.

The jury retired and Mr. Lount rose to object to the charge, but the objection was not sustained.

The jury returned at 7.30 with their verdict, which meant death.

COMPLAIN OF APATHY.

Lord's Day Alliance Regret the Little Interest in Their Mission—Small Muster at the Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Lord's Day Alliance was held in the Confederation Life building yesterday, when the annual report of the Executive Committee was read and adopted. From the report it appears that, in addition to the Sunday car question, the Alliance are taking steps to check the unnecessary movement of freight by the railways on Sunday.

In the evening a public meeting was held in the Young Women's Christian Guild Hall. Mr. J. K. Macdonald presided, and, in common with the other speakers, lamented the apparent lack of interest shown by the people of Toronto in the preservation of the Lord's Day, as evidenced by the small attendance. Addresses were delivered by Principal Caven, D. J. O'Donoghue, N. W. Hoyles, Q.C.; Rev. Mr. Shearer of Hamilton, Mr. John Beardsall of London, G. W. Macdonell, Q.C., and Rev. Dr. Potts. All the speakers urged the members of the Alliance to prepare for the inevitable contest in the near future upon the Sunday car question in Toronto, and lamented the apparent apathy on the part of those who were opposed to Sunday cars. Mr. Hoyles intimated that, no matter what the result of the appeal in the Hamilton case, there would be an appeal to the Legislature for an amendment to the Lord's Day Act.

STILL THE FIGHT GOES ON

THE HOUSE HAS NOW BEEN A WEEK IN CONTINUOUS SESSION,

But No Business Has Been Transacted—Bad Blood Has Been Stirred Up Between the Members Over the Remedial Bill—Col. Tyrwhitt Scores Many Men in the House.

Ottawa, April 10.—(Special.)—The motion that the committee should rise was made by Mr. Fraser shortly after 2 o'clock this morning. Mr. Fraser continued talking until 3 o'clock, when Sir Richard Cartwright took the floor. Very soon he made a remark about purchased influence, which seemed to point toward the member for Leeds and Grenville. At any rate, Dr. Ferguson so understood it, and made an indignant retort.

"In 23 years in Parliament," said he, "apart from my sessional indemnity, not one dollar have I had out of the public funds," and Sir Richard Cartwright, again interrupting the Doctor, added, with some spirit, "No, nor has any member of my family drawn a dollar from the service."

Mr. Guillett—That's more than he can say.

The House wrangled all night.

Col. Tyrwhitt Takes the Floor.

Fresh as a daisy and blooming a brand new red necktie, Col Tyrwhitt took the floor. He dealt blows right and left upon bolters all and sundry. First came the Deputy Speaker who he said, had struck out for the pardon of Riel, and had evinced a singular feeling of resentment towards criminals ever since. This allusion to Mr. Bergeron's stand on the matter of commutation of the Shortis sentence was lost upon that hon. gentleman, as he was not in the House. However, the colonel went on. He said another critic of his position was the Minister of Public Works, who had kicked himself into the Speaker's chair, subsequently into the Cabinet, and then kicked himself out of it, and sorry he was that Mr. Oulmet had not stayed out.

"For he's the one that's undertaken to read me out of the party," said the Colonel, adding that he was not going to be read out or driven out by such men as the Minister of Public Works. "Talk of being ready to die for one's country," he went on. "When I was going to the front on one train I met him returning from the field on another." (Laughter.)

Then Col. Tyrwhitt launched out against Mr. Masson. "I won't criticise his honor," he said, "but I will say that while he was representing North Grey in this House as a supporter of the bill, his successor, Mr. McLaughlin, had voluntarily pledged himself against it."

Mr. Maclean—Hear, hear.

"Now," the Colonel continued, "I'm as loyal a party man as sits on this side of the House, but I decline to be bulldozed or coerced into leaving the Conservative party." Mr. Davin, he said, had led him to believe that he would oppose the second reading, but at the eleventh hour he had changed his base, evidently in his case evil communications had corrupted his good manners.

Mr. McGillivray was the next speaker and before many minutes had elapsed the House was in a continual turmoil. He said that he had borrowed Mr. Charlton's Bible and proposed to quote a few passages therefrom.

How Mr. Laurier Got Out of It.

Mr. McGillivray taunted Mr. Laurier with never having denied the statement that he had said he thanked God there were no Orangemen in the Liberal ranks.

Mr. Laurier at once rose and said he would answer. He had stated, he said, on the floor of Parliament more than once that he would not be responsible for any words attributed to him in any speech unless that speech purported to be verbatim. No verbatim report of his Chicoutimi speech had been taken and printed. It was not fair, therefore, to ask him to be answerable for imperfect or garbled newspaper reports.

Mr. McGillivray said Mr. Laurier did not say he had not used words attributed to him.

Mr. Belley—I affirm that Mr. Laurier said the words and I can produce 50 people to prove it.

Mr. Choquette—If any one says that he says a lie.

Loud cries of "order," "withdraw," and general confusion.

The Chairman—The hon. gentleman must withdraw that word.

Mr. Choquette—I have nothing to take back and won't take it back. (Uproar.)

Further discussion followed.

Mr. Laurier thereupon asked Mr. Choquette to withdraw the expression.

Mr. Choquette—Well, Mr. Chairman, I will say that Mr. Belley has been misinformed, and the men who told him that have told him lies. (Laughter.)

Mr. Foster said it would be far more satisfactory if Mr. Laurier, who made the speech, would say just now that he never uttered the sentence. The leader of the Opposition, so far as he knew, had never denied using it, and La Patrie had purported to give a verbatim report of what he had said. Would he deny the matter now and settle it forever.

Mr. Laurier said that if Mr. Foster thought that his cleverness would draw him from his position, he was very much mistaken. (Derisive laughter.) He had spoken for many years in Parliament and out, and throughout the country he knew how to govern his tongue. Of the two speeches which he had delivered, one Chicoutimi and one at Les Eboulements, a verbatim report had not been taken, and he did not know of the statement attributed to him until his attention was called to it by Mr. Smith, the Liberal organizer in Ontario. He wrote to Mr. Smith a letter which was published in The Globe, which contained all teh denial that he had to give. Was there any man in the House who could believe that he would make such a statement as that? Why, his friend from Addingtoon Dawson) was an Orangeman. He did not think he would be called upon to make any more denial than he had given.

Mr. Fraser's motion for the committee to rise was then disposed of, and at 10 o'clock the consideration of the the bill was taken up at clause 10.

At 1.30 a.m. the committee knocked out an amendment by Mr. Martin and Clause 10 was adopted.

Viewed by the English Press.

London, April 10.—St. James Gazette this afternoon, commenting on the debate at Ottawa on the Manitoba school question, declares that the school bill is a farce, and says: "Charles Tupper may wish to pass it, but the Conservatives and Liberals want to take the issue into their constituencies. It is satisfactory to know that the matter is purely political, and that the Manitobans will not fight for State rights."

The Globe, referring to the same subject, says: "The tactics of the Opposition put to shame the most experienced obstructionists in the House of Commons, and can only injure the side they are intended to serve."

DEATH OF LADY MOUNT-STEPHEN

The Sad Event Occurred in London Yesterday Morning—She Was a Generous and Much Loved Woman.

London, April 10.—Lady Mount-Stephen died at a quarter to three this morning, succumbing to the painful operation she recently underwent.

The sad event causes widespread regret in society, where Lord and Lady Mount-Stephen were very much esteemed.

Since they came from Montreal to make their home in London they have entertained lavishly, and Lady Mount-Stephen's parlors were frequented by the men and women most esteemed in London society.

The late Lady Mount-Stephen, nee Annie Charlotte Kane, was born in England, her father being the late Mr. Benjamin Kane. In 1853 she was married in England to Mr. George Stephen, now Lord Mount-Stephen. Until about five years ago she lived almost continually in Montreal from the time of her marriage.

Deceased was of a very kindly disposition, contributed generously to public charities and endeared herself to many people by kindly acts of unostentatious generosity. It is thought that the interment will take place in England.

The death of Lady Mount-Stephen will be sincerely mourned in Montreal and other parts of Canada, where the deceased lady was better known than in Toronto. Still even here she had many warm and attached friends. Never forgetful of earlier days and former friendships, she was a Lady Bountiful, whose good deeds were not heralded in the press, but whose beneficence was never appealed to in vain. She was a tower of strength to her husband, when in the magnitude of his undertakings his powers were nigh succumbing to the strain on them. For some time past she had suffered from a severe internal affection, and as an invalid was as exemplary as she had been in all other walks of life. She was a native of London, and married to Mr. George Stephen when that gentleman was learning there the rudiments of the flourishing business which he built up in Montreal. She had no children, but was devoted to an adopted daughter, who married the present Sir Stafford Northcote, brother of Lord Iddesleigh.

Kindness.

Through the kindness of Messrs. Whaley, Royce & Co. we were yesterday the recipients of some five pieces of new music by some of the most local and popular composers. "The Only Girl I Love," by Charles Palmer; "Psyche," by Mrs. Mackelcan of Hamilton; "Fascination," by Lucy Lee, etc. Our orchestra, known as D'Alesandro Original Italian Orchestra will disperse these pieces of music at intervals of 15 minutes from 10.15 p.m. at Chlyrell's Cafe every evening during the Horse Show, in connection with the lobsters. 62

THEIR CASE IS HOPELESS.

ARCHBISHOP LANGEVIN SPEAKS ON THE SITUATION.

His Grace Cannot Understand How it is Possible That by the Constitution Members are Permitted "to Delay Necessary Legislation"—Rumors of Dissolution—General Ottawa Topics.

Ottawa, April 10.—(Special.)—Archbishop Langevin of St. Boniface was asked today for his views on the political situation. His reply was that the least that he said the better. He could not see how any statement he made could beneficially affect the situation. If he felt like declaring himself he would do so, if circumstances were favorable, as he felt that a pronouncement made in the Capital City of the country would have greater weight that if given elsewhere. He had made up his mind before leaving that he would observe silence in as far as that was possible. Matters had gone so far that but little could be gained by outside interference. Had his visit been made earlier something might have resulted, but he regarded the case as practically hopeless. He could not understand how it was possible that by the constitution members are permitted to delay necessary legislation. The spectacle presented is a sad one indeed, one that cannot but work toward the lowering of Canada in the estimation of other countries.

Disgraceful Incident in the House.

The House was the scene of a disgraceful incident this morning. While Mr. Semple was speaking, Dr. Ferguson of Leeds and Grenville moved over beside Dr. Sproule, and the House suddenly became aware that a serious altercation was in progress. Dr. Ferguson was observed shaking his fist in the face of the member for East Grey and poured forth a torrent of abuse, among which such choice expressions were heard as boodler, fool and liar, prefaced by picturesque adjectives. Dr. Sproule brought his fist down on his desk as though he strongly resented the remarks. Mr. Edgar called the attention of the chairman to the fact that a free fight was in progress. The two members would have come to blows but for the timely interference of Mr. McAlister of Restigouche, who grabbed Dr. Ferguson and pushed him out of the chamber. Dr. Sproule followed him. Mr. Stubbs followed Dr. Sproule, apparently to see fair play, but no further hostilities occurred.

Will Go to Bisley.

Lieut.-Col. Baker has received the following acceptances from those eligible to go on the Bisley rifle team: Staff-Sergt. W. Harp, 48th; Major W. C. Macdonald, 48th; Lieut. W. L. Ross, 13th; Sergt. T. Mitchell, 13th; Lieut. Cartwright, 47th; Lieut. W. C. King, 45th; Lieut. T. Mitchell, 12th; Sergt. C. Crowe, 10th R.G.; Sergt.-Major Armstrong, 1st B.F.A.; Pte. C. E. Neill, 71st, and Capt. J. McRobbie, 8th Hussars. Capt. C. N. Mitchell, 90th, is the only one so far to decline.

Personal and General.

The Inland Revenue receipts last month were $622,000, an increase of $30,000.

The Senate sat two hours to-day and made good progress.

The Exchequer Court sat to-day and heard the argument in the case of the Queen v. Canada Sugar Refining Co., a suit for $38,000 customs duty on a cargo of sugar imported at the time the new sugar duties went into force last May. The importers claim that their sugar was entered at the Customs before the duties came into force.

The following announcement appears in The Canada Gazette to-morrow: James Masson, Owen Sound, to be judge of the County Court of the county of Huron, local judge of the High Court of Justice for Ontario."

For some time past Sir Charles Tupper has been looking for a dwelling in Ottawa, and to-day closed the purchase of a dwelling lately occupied by Mr. Charles Magee, on Cooper-street. The price is in the neighborhood of $15,000.

The statement of the revenue and expenditure for March is the most encouraging. The revenue increased a quarter of a million, and for nine months the increase is two millions and a quarter. Correspondingly the expenditure shows a decrease. The net debt decreased last month by a million and a half.

Premier Bowell went to Belleville to-night to spend Sunday.

The Cabinet meets on Monday to consider the political situation and to decide what action will be taken in the House next week. Rumors of dissolution before Saturday next are current about the lobbies, but they are discredited.

Archbishop Langevin had an interview with Sir Charles Tupper to-night.

Mr. Foster gives notice of a bill to-night to provide for the inspection of horses for export.

The Government is strongly protesting against the proposal to deport 500 Cree Indians from Montana to Manitoba.

NORTH BRANT CONSERVATIVES

Select Mr. C. A. Muma as Their Standard-Bearer for the Commons.

St. George, April 10.—The adjourned meeting of the North Brant and Wentworth Conservative Association met in the Public Library Hall here this afternoon. About fifty delegates assembled from all parts of the riding were in attendance. Thos. Scott, president of the association, occupied the chair and Richard Wele acted as secretary. The meeting was addressed by several of the delegates, but the speech of the afternoon was given by Mr. A. P. Campbell and roused a good deal of enthusiasm amongst the delegates. After his address nominations were called for to contest the riding in the interests of the Government. The names as follows were put in nomination: R. L. Hamilton, C. A. Muma, James A. McDonald, J. P. Nunen and Richard Bass.

After the first ballot there were virtually only two in the field, Messrs. Hamilton and Muma, who polled a tie, the president casting the deciding vote in favor of Mr. Muma, whose nomination was then made unanimous on motion of Mr. Hamilton. This was the most harmonious and enthusiastic meeting that has been held here in many years.
