THE SUN'S LIBEL SUIT.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Sun, is the defendent in an action which has been brought against it by Judge Steadman of the county court for the publication in that paper of certain articles reflecting on him in his capacity of revising officer for Queens county. In these articles Judge Steadman is charged with gross unfairness with respect to the reception of the names of voters, the result of his action being to give the Grits the advantage over the Conservatives in Queens. If what the Sun stated is true Mr. Steadman is not fit to be revising officer of Queens or any other county, much less to be a judge of the county court. The defendents have justified their alleged libel by pleading that the facts contained in it are true and so issue has been joined. The trial of the case is set down for the York sittings which begin tomorrow with Mr. Justice Tuck on the bench. Judge Steadman claims damages to the amount of $10,000, which is a good round sum to ask, although perhaps not more than the reputation of a judge ought to be worth.

An attempt was made by Mr. Currey on behalf of the defendants to change the venue to St. John in this case on several grounds. One of these, the extra expense involved in having the trial at Fredericton was defeated by the plaintiff agreeing to pay the extra expense of witnesses, whatever it might be. Another ground was the fact that Mr. Steadman, being judge of the County Court for York, was at an advantage over the defendants, every juryman being a possible plaintiff or defendent in a suit before him, some time or other. We think that this objection was entitled to more weight than it received and the trial should have been held in St. John. There is no denying the fact that, human nature being as it is, a judge like Mr. Steadman stands at an enormous advantage in a suit as compared with a newspaper corporation like the Sun Publishing Co. in the county in which he is judge. We already see proof of this in the comments of some of the Fredericton newspapers who are taking Judge Steadman's part without apparently knowing anything of the merits of the case. Another reason why the trial should have been in this city is the greater publicity which it would have [illegible] highly necessary in the interests of justice that the whole of Judge Steadman's transactions as revising officer of Queens County should be disclosed and that if there was anything censurable in his acts it should be widely known. All the evidence in the case ought to be published in as complete a form as possible, and this could have been much more easily done with the trial here than if held at Fredericton. The trial will probably be a long one; three weeks is not too extreme an estimate of the time it is likely to occupy, but it ought in the interests of justice to be as exhaustive as it can be made and in the hands of the able counsel who will conduct it we believe this will be the case. THE GAZETTE has no reason to love the Sun, but in this matter its sympathies are with the newspaper which has engaged in an attempt to secure equal justice for both Liberals and Conservatives in the county of Queens. The ballot box is at the very root of our system of government, and if voters' lists are so made up as not to represent the proper voting strength of the constituencies a monstrous wrong is being perpetrated at the expense of the public interests. It remains to be seen whether this has been done in the county of Queens.

FREE SUGAR OR FREE TRADE WITH SOUTH AMERICA.

It looks now as if President Harrison might veto the McKinley tariff bill which has been giving both houses of Congress so much trouble. This idea has originated in study of a message recently sent by the President to Congress, enclosing a letter from Mr. Blaine in which he recommends practical free trade between the United States and the other American nations. Mr. Blaine suggests that Congress pass an amendment to the McKinley tariff bill authorizing the President to declare the ports of the United States free to all the products of any nation of the American hemisphere upon which no export duties are imposed, whenever and so long as such nation shall admit to its ports free of all national, provincial municipal and other taxes, United States flour, cornmeal and other breadstuffs, preserved meats, fish, vegetables and fruits, cotton seed oil, rice and other provisions, including all articles of food, lumber, and furniture and other articles of wood, agricultural implements and machinery, mining and mechanical machinery, structural steel and iron, steel rails, locomotives, railway cars and supplies, street cars and refined petroleum.

Mr. Blaine, on the same day that this letter was received, appeared before the Senate sub-committee and sought to impress upon them the necessity of retaining sugar on the dutiable list as a basis for future reciprocity treaties with Spain and the South American republics. He made the point earnestly that to put sugar on the free list without exacting any trade concessions in return from the sugar producing countries would leave the United States without stock on which to trade in obtaining such treaties.

It is thought by many in Washington that Mr. Blaine is not nearly so zealous for free trade with the American nations as he is to prevent sugar being made free, and that he and President Harrison are simply preparing the way for a veto of the McKinley tariff bill in the event of sugar being retained on the free list. As for the President he has nothing, as things are now, to hope for from the Republican party, for it is quite certain he will not receive the nomination for a second presidential term, so that he may think it his best plan to oppose the time serving policy which yields free sugar at the demand of the western farmer and places high duties on agricultural products which come into competition with him. The McKinley bill, if passed, is certain to injure the Republican party in the end, and should President Harrison veto it, he might recover some of the popularity he has lost.

THE GAZETTE'S GROWTH.

THE GAZETTE is one year and eleven months old today. When it was started it was the smallest of the daily newspapers of St. John. Now it is the largest. Its growth has been phenonomal. With its increase in size came increased advertising patronage and increased circulation, until today, although not yet two years old it can truthfully boast of a larger circulation in the city of St. John than any other newspaper ever published here. Within the past month its circulation outside the city, in the towns and villages along the lines of railway has been doubled and is still growing. Its mail circulation is also on the increase; indeed THE GAZETTE is growing in every way. How great the increase has been, can scarcely be comprehended by those outside the office. But some idea is given when it is stated that the actual increase in street sales alone, of the second eleven months of its publication as compared with the first eleven months, was 156 per cent. and if the present ratio of increase continues for another month THE GAZETTE will start on its third year with three times the circulation it had at the end of the first year. No other St. John newspaper has ever made such progress.

THE GAZETTE started out with the motto "St. John first in everything." That and that only was the policy of the GAZETTE. In the past St. John interests have suffered greatly by the existing newspapers clinging to their party allegiances rather than to the interests of the city. It was party first and the city afterwards. THE GAZETTE changed all this. Its policy was St. John first and party next, and in this line it has on more than one occasion compelled its older and smaller contemporaries to follow its lead.

A fearless, independent newspaper can accomplish much, a truth which has been abundantly proven by THE GAZETTE. At times THE GAZETTE has been blamed for abandoning party interests to advocate the interests of the city, but this it can be depended on to do every time those different interests clash. THE GAZETTE owes its existence not to a political party or a clique of political wire pullers but to the people of the city of St. John. Its revenue has been drawn from the artizans, the laborers and the merchants of this city, and it is these people, not politicians, that it seeks to to serve and to benefit.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

The Muddy Moncton Times has restored its offensive heading, "Dirty City Note," to its item in St. John news. The witty editor of the Times thinks it is a brilliant idea to do what he can to injure St. John, but fortunately the ability of that paper to do us harm is extremely limited.

The people of most of the American cities will know their population today. Some of them, notably St. Louis and Chicago, are already complaining that all their inhabitants have not been counted and are trying to swell themselves to larger dimensions. As these cities grow larger they will find that, increase of population does not always mean increase of comfort or of prosperity for their inhabitants.

Mr. W. H. Smith, in the House of Commons the other evening, declined to give the views of the naval and military authorities on the proposed surrender of Heligoland. We may infer from this that their views are hostile to such a course. It is not likely that the British government has heard the last of this proposal to surrender so important a strategic point. The British people are sick of Lord Salisbury's policy of truckling to Germany.

Commodore Stewart of the Chatham World calls D. G. Smith of the Advance a "cheeky thief," and furnishes the proof of this starling charge:—

A column article on the Social Club case, which appeared in the World on the 14th and the Weekly World on the 19th, was appropriated by the Advance, word for word, from beginning to end, and published as its own! Most of its news items are habitually clipped from the World, but this is its first raid on the editorial columns.

It will now be in order for Mr. D. G. Smith, who is very free in lecturing other people, to rise and explain.

In the British House of Commons the other evening Mr. Howard Vincent, amid Conservative cheers, gave notice of a motion that, as the American tariffs will inflict great injury upon the trade of Sheffield and upon British traders and artisans generally, the House consider whether a free market ought to be longer given to the competing products of a foreign state which puts a prohibitory tariff on British goods. Mr. Howard Vincent's motion will probably not pass, but it will awaken the British people to the necessity of taking some steps to counteract American hostility to British interests.

The Chatham World, referring to the address of Dr. Carman, general superintendent of the Methodist church of Canad, urging the formation of a solid Protestant phalanx against the Roman Catholic church, says:

Dr. Carman is behind the age. The anti-Catholic cry will not scare worth a cent. The Protestants are not afraid of their Catholic fellow citizens, and are not going into the phalanx business just now. Such addresses as Dr. Carman's do harm, by encouraging foolish persons who would be silent but for such examples to abuse the Catholics. They are a political power, of course, and why not? Catholics have the right to vote, the same as others, and they wield their fair share of political influence. When a public question affects them, as Catholics, it is only natural that they should vote for their friends. We have known Methodists to vote for a candidate because he was a Methodist. And there are Protestant parsons, as well as Catholic priests, who take part in political conflicts.

The London Free Press says: "It is sincerely hoped that the efforts now being made by the Dominion Government to secure a fast Atlantic steamship service may meet with success. Canada is handicapped at present in respect of ocean accommodation. Large numbers of passengers and immense volumes of freight now cross the Atlantic via New York, for the sole reason that the lines plying from and to the American port are the speedier. Had Canada a service equal to New York, it is certain that we should reap the advantages which now accrue to New York in respect of passenger and freight traffic for and from the Dominion. The percentage of goods which come from Great Britain to Canada by way of American ports is really surprising—we should say, rather, humilating. With a line of fast steamers the prestige we should enjoy would be a valuable collateral to the tangible advantages with relation to trade. Our national prospects warrant the very best service that engineering skill can devise, and the spirit of enterprise among our citizens will sustain the Government in its measures to secure that service." We are glad to see the people of Ontario becoming alive to the great importance of this matter.

DRY, BUT NOT THIRSTY.

The Situation in South Dakota Under Prohibition with a Hole in It.

From the Philadelphia Press.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., May 25.—The Prohibition law, which went into effect May 1, contained penal provisions that make a convict of any person found guilty of "selling or giving away" any intoxicating liquors. Furthermore, the fact of possession of any fermented or malt liquors was to be prima facie evidence of guilt. As if the law itself was not rigid enough, the Prohibitionists in nearly every large city and town throughout the State organized "Enforcement Leagues" for the express purpose of prosecuting all offenders. The saloon men were not slow to recognize the great advantage the Prohibitionists possessed and resolved to beat a "masterly retreat" without firing a gun.

As the town clock struck the four of midnight on April 30, in this city, twenty-three saloon keepers ordered their bartenders to throw off their aprons and made the announcement: "No more drinks over this bar." Of course there was a crowd in nearly every saloon upon this occasion, and the red liquor had been flowing like water; but the saloon keepers were inexorable after they had promulgated their flat, and the thirsty one who had neglected to provide himself with a jug or flask, went without. Two of the saloon keepers of Sioux Falls decided to remain and operate "temperance billiard halls," but the balance packed their fixtures and moved away—some of them locating just over the line, either in Minnesota or Nebraska.

The Prohibition law of South Dakota was manufactured elastic enough to enable druggists to take out permits and retail whiskey and beer for "medicinal and mechanical" purposes. Nearly every druggist in the State took out a permit. There has been such an astonishing development of aches and pains among the male sex that the druggist has a through ticket for prosperity. The law provides that the druggist shall keep a strict account of all the spirituous liquors that he sells, and get the signature of the person who buys it; but, as a matter of fact he does not do it. He keeps a book somewhat resembling a check book, and when he conforms to the strict letter of the law he fills out one of the blanks, and has the "sick man" sign it. He is obliged to state his particular disease or ailment, and it is printed on the blank that he will not "give away to any person" any of the liquor. He must also guarantee that he will not use it himself as a "beverage." It will thus be seen that it was no difficult matter to procure whiskey or beer after the Prohibition law had gone into effect, after the saloon keeper had closed out his business, and before the Supreme Court decision on the "original package" question.

But to-day there is probably just as much liquor drunk in South Dakota as there ever was, not over the bar as before, but on the outside, and with the same effects. Since the Supreme Court decision in the Iowa case, "original package" agency has sprung up and is competing with the druggists for the lion's share of trade. The "original package" dealer boldly advertises his business in the daily papers. He cites the Supreme Court decision in justification of his lawful right to dispose of original packages to the thirsty. The druggist will not advertise his wares in so bold a manner, but he will give people to understand quietly that he keeps just as good liquors and as many varieties as the original package agent.

The business men of Sioux Falls declare that prohibition is hurting the State. The saloons of this city were paying as a license $25,000 annually to carry on their business, and now the business men want to know where the money is coming from, unless it is raised by taxation. He does not relish the idea of having his taxes increased, and he knows further that it is no easy matter to find tenants for his vacant buildings, that were, perhaps, once occupied by the saloon keeper, who always had the rent money ready when due. On the whole, it is argued that prohibition has come in a good year, because the outlook for crops is so favorable, and flush times will more than repay the loss of the saloon.

SMALLPOX AT SEARSPORT.

A Genuine Scare Over Three Cases in the Little Maine Town.

BANGOR, Me., June 20.—There is a genuine smallpox scare at Searsport. Mrs. Ann Fowler (mother of S. A. Fowler, the patient who died) Miss Eva Fowler, her daughter, Capt. Nelson Smart are all sick, and the cases are traced directly to exposure to S. A. Fowler. Much more contagion is feared from the case of Capt Smart, who on Saturday last was shaved in a town barber shop. After him in the same chair, followed all the village men. On Sunday Smart was taken ill, and on Monday his disease was pronounced smallpox. When Fowler died, no man could be found to undertake his burial till Dr. Gould pluckily volunteered, and with the aid of one attendant interred him at midnight. The patients are now confined in the pest-house, and schools, churches, clubrooms and the barber shop where Capt. Smart, was shaved have been closed indefinitely. The doctors work night and day at vaccination, and every possible precaution is being taken.

A SCHOOLBOY'S SUICIDE.

He Hangs Himself in His Father's Barn —No Cause Assigned.

BANGOR, Me. June 20.—Ray Stover a bright youth about 14 years of age, the son of a well to do farmer of North Carmel, committed suicide to-day. When school was dismissed this afternoon he went among the pupils, bidding them good-bye in the most pleasant manner. They inquired the reason for his farewell words, and he gave them to understand that he was going away, but volunteered no further information, On arriving home he went directly to the barn, and sometime afterwards his lifeless body was found hanging from a beam in the upper part of the structure. He had deliberately climbed to the second story, placed a rope around his neck, threw the end around a beam and secured it, than swung himself off into eternity. No cause can be assigned for the deed.
