CANADIAN WEATHER.

THE TEMPERATURE OF THE DOMINION AND ITS DISTRIBUTION.

How, Why, When and Where Canada Compares Favorably With the United States—Some Hitherto Unpublished Comparisons.

[Montreal Witness.]

I am unacquainted with any work dealing at length with this subject. Even when allusions are made to the climate of Canada in foreign works they are exaggerated to a degree. The idea of King Louis, when handing over Canada to its English conquerors, is carefully fostered. To outsiders, we remain still the residents of "a few miserable acres of snow and ice." Our own writers of fiction are not without blame in this respect. Canadian stories are common in which the main features are mountains of ice and snow and a thermometer at 40 degrees below zero.

LOW TEMPERATURES.

It is, of course, indisputable that some of the lowest temperatures of the whole world—exceeded, perhaps, only by those of Siberia—are to be found within the confines of Canada. That is within that part of Canada between the Arctic circle and the Pole, for British America only ends at the North Pole. Such is that recorded at Rensselaer Harbor, Smith's Sound,—69 degrees below zero; and in a still higher latitude, at Floeberg Beach, —73.8 degrees below zero. Although it comes pretty near, this does not equal the lowest temperature ever recorded on the globe, of —90 degrees below zero, at Werchjansk, Siberia. Winnipeg's lowest during the past twenty years was —54 degrees below, and Edmonton's,—52 degrees below.

Where shall we look for Canadian temperatures of 40 degrees below? Mainly in the Northwest. During January, 1890, of 145 places in the settled parts of Canada, only 10 recorded temperatures of 40 degrees below zero and under: as follows:—Oak Bank, Man., —51 degrees; White River, Ont., —48.3 degrees; Fort Osborne, Man., —45 degrees; Banff, Alta, —42.5; Chicontimi, Que., —42.5 degrees; Posen, Man., —42 degrees, Savanne, Ont., —41.5 degrees; Medicine Hat, Assa., —40.5 degrees; Swift Current, Assa., —40.2 degrees; and Brandon, Man., —40.2 degrees.

I am aware that the "annual" minimum of a place will usually be as much as its "absolute" minimum for a score or more years, but the difference is not usually very great.

The following "lowest temperatures" for January, 1890, at several representative stations in the Dominion may be taken as fairly indicating the average lowest for January in any year:—

| | Degrees below zero |
|---|---|
| Victoria, B. C. | 12.0 |
| Banff, Alta. | 42.6 |

| London, Ont. | 5 |
| Brantford, Ont. | 7 |

The Red River Valley and parts adjacent is Canada's coldest locality in January. This is due to its situation in the interior of a continent, to its exposed position to the blasts of a wind direct from the outside cold of space and the Arctic regions, as well as to the passage of continental storms, or areas of low pressure over the country south, via the lake region and the St. Lawrence Valley. These storms draw after them great polar waves, which chill the whole country from the Rockies eastward.

"THREE FIGURE WEATHER."

The highest as well as the lowest temperatures occur at Canadian stations in the North-West. The dry atmosphere is unduly heated by the sun's rays over the great American desert to the south and spreads northward in the summer time. The maximum reading at any Canadian station during the past 20 years is said to be 109 degrees at Medicine Hat, Assa. Such "three figure weather" is, however, not usual anywhere in Canada. During July 1890, of 153 places recording, only 6 obtained a maximum of 100 degrees and over, viz.; Medicine Hat, Assa., 102.1 degree; Chaplin, Assa., 102 degrees Swift Current, Assa., 100.6 degrees; St. Albans, Man., 100.5 degrees; Maple Creek, Assa., and Hillview, Man., 100 degrees. The high temperatures prevailing in our North-west in summer are, however, looked upon as a necessary provision of nature. Crops, in regions where the frosts arrive early, have to be rapidly pushed forward toward maturity. These hot days, and an atmosphere free from humidity, have exactly the proper effect.

The highest temperatures recorded at representative stations throughout the Dominion in July, 1890, were:

| | Degrees. |

| New Westminter, B. C. | 84 |

NEW ORLEANS MOB.

HER CITIZENS AVENGE THE MURDER OF CHIEF OF POLICE HENNESSY.

Italians Shot, Lynched and Clubbed—Wiping the Mafia Out—Good Citizens and State Officials Lead the Mob.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 15.—The excitement over the lynching yesterday has cooled down somewhat. Now that the full particulars of the bloody affair are known, there has been some slight change in public sentiment, and a number of people express strong disapproval of the action of the mob, particularly the killing of men who had not yet been tried, and against some of whom there is very little evidence.

The great majority of the people, however, strongly support the action of the mob, and of the committee of safety, under whose orders it acted, and, while admitting that more of the prisoners were killed than had been originally intended, insist that this was inevitable in a movement of this kind. They point to the fact that the mob marched to and from the prison, and that no one was disturbed or injured save the men accused of murder.

Several thousands of the citizens constituted the mob and these indignant over the finding of the jury in the Hennessey case Friday, broke into the jail and put the prisoners to death, some being shot, others clubbed and others still being hanged. The men lynched were as follows:

Manuel Politz, Antonio Bagnetto, Rocco Geracei, Peter Monasterio, Charles Terahier, Jim Caruso, Lorretto Comitz, Frank Romero, Antonio Scoffedi, Joseph P. Macheca.

Antonio Marchesi was fatally wounded. There were nine of the Italians under indictment for the assassination af Chief of Police Hennessey, and the jury Friday renderod this verdict:

"Mis-trial as to Bolizze, Monastero and Scoffedi; not guilty as to Macheca, Marchesi, Bagnetto, Marchesi (the boy). Incardona and Matranga."

It will be seen from the list of the killed that not all of them were defendants in this last trial It is probable that the others were of the party who were awaiting there second trial for the Provenzano assault and when the verdict was made known to the great crowd in waiting in the streets, it was received first with an incredulous denjal, but as its truth was assured the air was filled with shouts of rage. The jurymen, with a scared look on their faces, lost themselves in the crowd as soon as possible after their imprisonment of twenty to twenty-five days.

Some apprehension of violence was shown, but fortunately none was offered.

THE INDIGNATION MEETING.

A committee of fifty indignant citizens met Friday night to consider the matter and a call appeared in the morning papers signed by many leading citizens of New Orleans for a mass-meeting to assemble at the Clay statue at 10 o'clock in the morning to take steps to remedy the failure in justice in the Hennessey case. "Come prepared for action" was the moto.

When the hour of meeting arrived a vast multitude was already congregated on Canal street. Just on the stroke of 10 a shout went up from the people stationed at St. Charles street, and a number of gentlemen, among whom were Dr. W. S. Parkerson, John C. Wickliffe and others who signed the call, came marching along and began walking round and round the range of Clay monument.

"Fall in, fall in," was the cry, and the crowd formed the procession, which went around the railing several times. The space inside the railing was occupied by a dense crowd. Soon the speakers held this position of vantage. A rush was made for the narrow gate and in a minute there stood a packed mass of humanity around the statue of the immortal Clay. There were fully 3000 people within ear-shot, and more could be seen struggling, pushing and running here and there on the neutral ground.

Mr. Parkerson spoke first. He said that once before he had appeared before the people in grand mass meeting, assembled to discuss matters of vital interest to the community, and again he faced the people of New Orleans to denounce the infamous act consequent upon the most revolting crime in the annals of any community. That act was the finding of the jury in the murder trial, and in that crime was, as everybody knows, the foul assassination of Chief Hennessey. "I desire neither fame nor name nor glory," said Mr. Parkerson. "I am a plain American citizen, and as a good citizen I am here."

THE WORK OF THE MOB.

After the speeches the crowd started for the parish prison, which they reached at 10:30. After slight resistance the jail was surrendered, the citizens rushed in and killed ten of the nineteen Italians imprisoned there. Joe Macheca had a pistol and shot Sergeant Herron in the neck, inflicting a slight wound. Politz was hanged to a lamp-post and Bagnetto to a tree in front of the prison. After the men had been put to death, Mr. Parkerson aderessed the crowd, urging them to return to their homes or respective places of business without further demonstration. When the Citizens Committee had completed its work at the parish prison it disbanded for the day.

Coroner Lemonnier and his clerk reached the parish prison at about 12:30 o'clock. The coroner viewed first the bodies of those lying in the yard. The body of Rocco Geracei was viewed. He had only one wound in the chest. He died from hemorrhage. Peter Monasterio, gunshot wound in back of the head; bruise on neck. Charles Terahiar, ten gunshot wounds in chest, anteriorly; one gunshot wound on left side of face; gunshot wound on back of left shoulder and in back. Jim Caruso, numerous gunshot wound of anterior parts of body, from head to knee; one wound in face, one in neck, nine in chest, twelve in abdomen, four in groin, five in right thigh, four in left thigh. Loretto Comitz, gunshot wound in chest, anteriorly; one gunshot wound on top of head, four in right side of the body. Bruise by a gunshot wound on the left side of back. All these were buckshot wounds. Frank Romero, alias Nine-Fingered Frank, gunshot wound on head above the forehead. Face powder burnt; all the shot lodged in the head, and the skull inside is completely shattered. This completed the inquest in the yard.

The coroner, his jury and the members of the press next went upstairs to the condemed cells, where the inquest was held of the bodies there lying. Antonio Schoffedt had a gunshot wound of the brain. The ball entered above the right eye. Joseph P. Macheca had not a single bulletwound in him. His face was swollen and his flesh already assumed a bluish tint. The coroner examined the body, and stripped it of every inch of clothing. Although the dead man's coat and vest and shirt showed bullet holes, his undershirt was not perforated. This was conclusive proof that no bullets had entered his body. It was evident that Macheca was clubbed to death with the butt ends of pistols and rifles. However, the coroner postponed examination of Macheca's body to a later hour. He then turned to Antonio Marchesi, who was found to be still alive. The man's chin and the foremuscles of the neck moved slowly and laboriously. There was a hole as large as a silver quarter in his head, and several fingers on his right hand had been shot off.

The press is unanimous in approving the action of the mob while all the commercial exchanges—the cotton, sugar, stock, lumbermen, mechanics' and dealers' exchanges—and the board of trade unanimously approved that action as proper and necessary.

WON'T BE KICKED OUT.

MR. PELLETIER PROCURES AND SERVES A WRIT OF INJUNCTION.

Mrs. Belleau & Co. are Compelled to Continue Publishing La Justice—Writ Returnable 31st Inst.

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

QUEBEC, Mar. 17.—L. P. Pelletier dropped a bombshell into L'Electeur printing establishment yesterday. It came in the form of a writ of injunction ordering Belleau & Co. to continue publishing La Justice until the matter is finally disposed of by the courts.

Armed with his petition Mr. Pelletier sought out a judge, but could not find one disengaged. Time passed on and his fear was that the company would prevent his paper from appearing yesterday. Matters were not pushed to that extent, however, and the paper duly appeared.

Finally the writ was granted and at 6.30 p. m. a bailiff served it upon the firm of Belleau & Co. It is made returnable on March 31st. Until then the company are bound to continue its publication on pain of imprisonment for contempt of court.

The proceedings and appeals which can be taken may keep the case dragging on for years, but it is not the intention of Mr. Pelletier to force himself where he is not wanted.

He announced that as soon as other quarters can be found for La Justice he and his confreres will move out but they will not consent to be kicked out.

The Nature of the Oath Taken by Members—The Catholic Journal's Views.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 17.—The Catholic Journal, in its current issue, publishes what it says is the oath that every member of the American League is obliged to take on his initiation into that organization. The oath compels opposition to the appointment or election of Roman Catholics to any political position whatever.

The Journal says editorially "This is a desperate effort to deprive citizens because of their religious convictions of the rights guaranteed by the constitution of the United States. Illinois is now the hotbed of this organization of vipers.

There is only one sure method of uprooting this deadly evil and that is the remedy Chicago applied to a few of the leaders of the anarchist movement.

Newdegate, Governor of the Colony of Bermuda and commander in chief of the forces there, has written a letter to the Times in which he says the story printed in that paper Jan. 31, giving a sensational account of alleged military rioting in Bermuda is absolutely without foundation, with not a word of truth in it.

S. Brownlow Gray, Attoney General of Bermuda, also writes to the Times on the subject, and says the statements made in the despatch "Are baseless and mischievous lies."

The Times in explanation says the offensive despatch was not a Times article, but a cable message from the Dunlap-Dalziel agency.

The King's Recount.

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

HAMPTON, March 17.—Judge Wedderburn opened his court for a recount of the ballots in the recent King's county election, at 9 o'clock this morning at the court house here. Messrs. C.W. Weldon and R. LeB. Tweedie appeared for the applicants James T. Kirk and James Domville, one of the candidates.

The judge called on applicants' counsel to prove service of the notice of recount on the candidates or their agents.

The affidavits proved a service on Mr. Domville's agent and on the wife of Mr. Foster's agent and the copy of a telegram stating the time and place of the recount sent by Mr. Tweedie to Mr. Foster at Ottawa.

His Honor thought the service insufficient and that until a legal service was proved he had no jurisdiction to proceed in the matter.

Mr. Weldon then asked for an adjournment to afford him time to get service effected.

His honor thought he had no jurisdiction to make any order in the matter, the necessary preliminaries not having been proved, but if Mr. Weldon would take the risk of it, and thought he could better his position, he would grant an adjournment, and accordingly did adjourn the court until Tuesday next at 9 a. m.

Messrs. E. McLeod, Q. C., and L. A. Currey were present watching the case in the interests af the government party.
