TWO POLICIES FOUND

Kate Tough's Death Meant $5,000 to Hammond.

A TELL-TALE TRUNK DISCOVERED

It Belonged to the Dead Girl While in Toronto.

Chief Constable Archie Sloan, of Gravenhurst, Carries the Evidence Home with Him—Peculiar Attempt of Hammond's Father to Get Possession of the Victim's Belongings—How He was Intercepted by a City Detective—An Attempt was Made to Get a $5,000 Policy in the Equitable at Buffalo—The Prisoner's Strange Bravado.

When William Thomas James Hammond appears before Police Magistrate Henry Castle and Mayor McNeill in the Gravenhurst Police Court next Wednesday, to answer the charge of having murdered his wife, Katherine Elizabeth Tough, he will be confronted with a mass of circumstantial evidence that has a strong tendency to confirm the suspicion that the young woman came to her death by poison administered to her by her husband, the motive being to gain the proceeds of several policies of insurance on her life, the prisoner being the beneficiary.

It is now beyond doubt that the deceased carried a considerable amount of insurance, all of which was taken in the name of "James," and in case of death would revert to her husband.

Two Policies Taken Out

Some faur weeks ago deceased took out a policy for $3000 in the Provincial Provident Institution of St. Thomas. She had also recently taken out a policy for $2000 in the Metropolitan of New York.

Chief of Police Archie Sloan came to Toronto on Thursday and Inspector Stark detailed Detective Burrows to help him in the case.

From papers found in Hammond's possession at the time of his arrest, the detectives rightly surmised that the dead girl was insured, and after some difficulty they confirmed this fact by visiting the insurance offices.

A Tell-Tale Trunk.

The detectives then went to Hammond's late boarding house, 35 Beverley-street, where they hoped to find a trunk belonging to Hammond, but were disappointed to learn from Mrs.

KATE TOUGH-HAMMOND.

Bryan that Ephraim Hammond, father of the prisoner, had called on the previous evening and taken the trunk away, saying it was to be sent to Gravenhurst. Sloan and Burrows then went to the Union Station and discovered that the trunk had been held over till the morning train. A message was sent to Gravenhurst to have it impounded on its arrival, but the trunk never reached there. It appears that for some reason Mr. Hammond, sr., and a private detective who was working with him, had gone to the Union Station and stated to the authorities there that the trunk had been sent to Gravenhurst by mistake, and asking that a wire be sent up the line to have it returned as soon as possible to the city.

Secured by the Police.

Detective Burrows got on to this move, and learning that it had been transferred to a crossing train at Allandale, watched for the incoming train. When the train arrived old Mr. Hammond had a private detective named Ellsworth anxiously looked for the precious box. They had secured it when Detective Burrows went up and took possession of it in the name of the Crown.

What it Contained.

The trunk was taken to detective headquarters, where it remained over night and was opened yesterday morning. To the surprise of the detectives it turned out to be the trunk belonging to deceased, as it contained a quantity of woman's clothing, but also a number of shirts and other things belonging evidently to Hammond. There were numerous trinkets, but the important find consisted of the two insurance policies in the Provident and Metropolitan, a number of letters and a marriage certificate.

Among the letters were several from deceased to Hammond, one of which was dated Nov. 29, 1895, and would lead to the belief that policies had been taken out, or that applications had been made by deceased for insurance in the Equitable and New York Life companies. The letter was written by deceased at Buffalo to the prisoner, who was then in New York.

The Dead Girl's Marriage.

The wedding of Katie Tough to William Thomas James was shown by the marriage certificate to have been solemnized by the Rev. Edward Whitman, a Baptist minister, at Buffalo, on Nov. 19, 1895.

One of the letters that were found in the trunk was from Hammond to his wife, which would lead to the inference that he was hard up and expected to get money from his wife.

Another letter was written by Mrs. Hammond from Gravenhurst after her return home. She asked for her trunk, which was in the city, and said that her parents upbraided her for being so much away from home. Her parents argued from the fact that she had not her trunk that she had been out of employment and that her trunk had been pawned for her board. She said that she had told lies to conceal the real state of affairs from her people. She begged him to write to her as she had written four times and received no answer. That letter was dated Feb. 24 of this year.

A Good Subject for Insurance.

It was on Jan. 9 that Mrs. James, as she was called, went to Mr. Armbrust of the Provincial Provident Institution and stated that she wanted a policy for $3000 payable to her husband, Wm. Thomas James. She was examined by Dr. R. D. Moffatt, 311 Parliament-street, and accepted as a good risk.

A copy of the examination was sent to the office of the company at St. Thomas, with the form in which the application for insurance gives the names of references and also of the family doctor. One of the references given was the name of Mrs. J. T. Lee, 459 Bathurst-street, where Kate Tough was employed as a domestic at the time. The company sent on a list of questions to Mrs. Lee regarding the girl, and, the answers being satisfactory, the policy was made out payable to Wm. Thos. James, and mailed to the girl at 459 Bathurst-street. Kate Tough in the meantime had paid $13 entrance fee and $9, the first year's premium, to the company.

"I remember the examination very well," said Dr. Moffatt. "She was a perfectly healthy girl, and I considered her an exceptionally good insurance risk. I think she said that her husband was a lawyer residing on Bathurst-street, and I thought nothing of her desiring to insure her life in his favor, as this is very frequently done." Mr. Armbrust was of the same opinion. He said he did not see the man James at all during the proceedings. The girl transacted all the business herself.

The Second Policy.

On Jan. 13 last a few days after she had been in the Provincial Provident to apply for insurance, Kate Tough wrote to Mr. Armbrust in relation to another policy taken out on her life. The letter stated that while on "the other side" her husband had placed some insurance eon her life, but she wanted her husband to have it cancelled, as it had been obtained under false pretences. Her husband, she said in her letter, had promised to do this, but had been busy and had not had the time. What she wanted to know was did the first policy make any difference with respect to the policy she had applied to the Provincial Provident for? Mr. Armbrust replied that having another policy on her life made no difference. The girl did not state in the letter the amount of the first policy, the company, the name it had been taken out in, or where it had been taken out. The policy to which she referred was the Metropolitan.

In June last year Miss Tough entered the service o fMr. McKellar, 185 Bathurst-street, giving her proper name. She was there several months, and was much liked. Hamond often called on her there. The girl left on Nov. 13, presumably the date she went to Buffalo with Hammond.

Documents Taken to Gravenhurst.

About 5 o'clock last night Chief Sloan called at the Detective Department for the trunk, in which the evidence was found that shows the motive for a crime, if there was a crime. Chief Sloan shouldered the box and took it downstairs, where he hoisted it on to the front of Pat Sullivan's hack. A World reporter accompanied the chief on the drive to the Union Station to catch the 5.15 train for Gravenhurst. At the station the baggageman remarked, "Didn't I check this trunk yesterday."

"You did," replied the chief, "but it will get to its destination this time."

Did Hammond Have a Trunk?

The chief stated he believed Hammond had no trunk, and Detective Burows is of the same opinion. Therefore, no further search will be made in that connection.

Haw was the prisoner taking his position when you left Gravenhurst, asked the reporter.

"Oh, he feels it keenly," reyled Chief Sloan.

"If he is guilty, do wou think he will confess when he sees what evidence you already have against him?"

"I almost believe he will," replied the chief, who was exultant over the outcome of his few hours' work in the city.

The stomach of the deceased girl will be brought to the citw at once and examined by the Provincial Analyst.

WAS AFTER ANOTHER $5000.

Application Was Made to the Equitable at Buffalo But Declined.

Buffalo, N.Y., Feb. 13.—To The World: Mrs. James called at my office and applied for $5000 insurance payable to her husband who she stated was a law student that she had recently married, that they expected to go on to New York in the course of two weeks where he would complete his studies and go into business. The following day she passed a good medical examination, paid the first quarterly premium in advance. Soon after the receipt of the papers at the home office (New York) the medical department wrote stating they could not find such parties at the residence given in the application in Toronto. At my request Mrs. James called at the office and informed me that her maiden name was Kate Tough and that they had been under the assumed name of Hammond at their boarding house. I communicated the information obtained to our medical department stating that there was beyond question a mystery about the case I could not solve and no doubt something wrong somewhere, although Mrs. James appeared ladylike and all right. She left her address and went on to New York. When her case was declined I wrote her to that effect and returned her the money she had paid. (Signed) A. F. Aird, manager, Equitable Life Assurance Society.

What the Record Shows.

Buffalo, N.Y., March 13.—There is considerable interest manifested here in the Gravenhurst poisoning case. Katie Tough and Wm. K. Hammond were married in Buffalo on Nov. 19, 1895, and it was reported that her husband took out a policy on the life of his wife in the Metropolitan Insurance Company. Hammond assumed the name of William Thomas James.

The record of the Bureau of Vital Statistics shows that Wm. Thomas James of Toronto, Ont., aged 22, a law student by occupation, whose father's name was Ephraim and whose mother's name was Sarah West, was married to Catherine E. Tough of Toronto, Ont., aged 25, whose father's name was William and whose mother's name was Elizabeth McNabb. This marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. George Whitman, the pastor of the Cedar-street Baptist Church.

HAMMOND IS INDIFFERENT.

He Will Not Likely Say Another Word Incriminating Himself.

Gravenhurst, March 13.—(Special)—The despatch from Toronto that Hammond will break down and give away the whole story is not credited here.

He is not at all likely to say another word incriminating himself. His bearing is one of indifference or bravado, and at times he exhibits a jocularity which ill becomes the tight place he is in.

Hammond spent the evening of Tuesday at his parents' house, in the custody of Constable Wm. Sloan. On starting for the train he jokingly remarked to his custodian: "How are you on a foot race?" To the jailer at Bracebridge he remarked: "Don't call me too early for breakfast, as I have been knocked around a lot to-day."

THAT JOCKEY CLUB BILL

PASSED THE HOUSE OF COMMONS LAST NIGHT.

All Clubs May be Represented on the Committee—Mr. Foster's Speech of His Life—Sweating System in Cities—Suing the Member for Algoma—Personal and General Notes.

Ottawa, March 13.—(Special.)—The Canadian Jockey Club Bill passed the Commons to-night. A new clause providing for the constitution of a club committee was presented by Col. Tisdale, which he said had been agreed upon by all parties interested, by proposed incorporators, by Messrs. Seagram and Pringle, representing certain objectors, by the Horse Breeders' Association and others; The new clause provides that any club can affiliate by giving notice in writing. While the original club will have 12 members on the club committee, every club that applies ir affiliation can have a representative on such committee, to be elected in such manner as the club sending him sees fit. The last Wednesday in May is fixed as the date of the annual meeting of the club. A club once expelled can only be reinstated by a three-fourths vote of the committee. The Minister of Justice submitted a clause at the request of the Ontario Government, providing that any provincial constable or peace officer may enter upon the grounds or buildings of any club controlled by the Jockey Club. Col. Tisdale said he was glad to incorporate the clause in the bill. The bill was then reported.

Mr. Foster's Speech.

The contribution of Mr. Foster this afternoon to the Remedial Bill debate is admitted to be the sppech of his life. For over two hours he held the House and galleries spellbound, and when he sat down after his magnificent peroration, there was a perfect storm of cheering, which was continued for several minutes. Copies of the speech will be distributed by thousands all over the country.

The Immigration Deputation.

Th western immigration deputation had an interview with Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Sir Charles Tupper and Mr. Daly this morning. They preferred their request for the adoption of an immigration board and the appointment of an immigration commission.

The Premier informed them that it was not likely the Government would abdicate its functions to an irresponsible body, but the request of the deputation would be carefully considered.

Sweating System in Cities.

The report of A. W. Wright, the commissioner appointed to investigate the alleged prevalence of the sweating system in the different cities of Canada was presented to Parliament this afternoon. The Commissioner, while not discovering the actual prevalence of sweating, still represents that there are abuses existing in some cities. He strongly favors the adoption of a system of licensing all shops and places in which goods are manufactured for sale. The objects he hopes to gain by this are better sanitary conditions, more efficient inspection and protection against the spreading of infectious disease. He also favors the adoption of a system of labelling or tagging all goods that may be made in tenement houses.

After George Macdonell's Money.

A writ was issued in the High Court here to-day claiming from G. H. Macdonell, M.P. for Algoma, the sum of $33,400. The plaintiff, Terence McGuire, claims the penalties under the revised statutes of 1886 for that the defendant, being a person disqualified to sit or vote in the House of Commons of Canada, did nevertheless on various days during 1895 and 1896 sit or vote in the House and did thereby become liable to forfeit and pay to the plaintiff the sum of $200 for each and every day on which defendant so sat or voted. The following are the particulars:

1895—Penalty from 18th April to July 22 inclusive, 96 days at $200 per day, $19,200.

1896—Penalty from Jan. 2 to March 13 inclusive, $200 per day, $14,200; total $33,400.

The allegation is that Mr. Macdonell was not properly elected in '91. He laughs at the suit and says there will be no difficulty in mulcting McGuire in costs.

BOARD MAY HAVE TO DISBAND.

Inadequate Committals to Industrial Schools—Evils of Foster Homes—Petition to Legislature Proposed

The chief topic at the meeting of the Industrial Schools Board yesterday was the apparent unwillingness of the Police Magistrate to commit offenders to these schools.

The returns of the Mimico school showed that there are at present 156 boys in the school.

For the Alexandra School for Girls Mrs. Kilgour reported that there were only 22 girls in the institution, and that five or six would go out in the summer, as their time was up. If no more were sent the school would have to close its doors.

In response to a remark by Ald. Boustead, the chairman said there were girls enough that should be sent to the school, but the board could not get them committed.

Ald. Scott pointed out that unless the supply of boys kept up it would soon become a question as to whether the board should disband. The opposition of Col. Denison was the most serious feature of the case. If outside Magistrates followed in his line—and they already showed reluctance to send boys to Mimico—the result would be serious.

Abuses in Foster Homes.

Dealing with the operations of the Children's Aid Society and the movement in favor of sending children to foster homes instead of to schools, Ald. Scott said he would rather see children beg than go through the terrible experiences he had known children in foster home to go through.

Mr. Beverley Jones advocated inspection of children sent to foster homes somewhat after the method pursued by Dr. Barnardo and the Massachusetts Government.

On the suggestion of Ald. Preston it was decided to interview the Government regarding needed amendments in the Truancy Act and the Children's Aid Act, especially in the direction of inspection of foster homes.

Messrs. Caldecott, Jones, Hughes, Starr, Baird, and Ald. Scott and Preston will prepare the material on which the board will base its arguments.

A CHILD'S FATAL INJURIES.

Plays With a Red Hot Poker and is Fearfully Burned.

A shocking accident occurred at the home of Fireman J. Cook, 171 Bolton-avenue, yesterday. While Mrs. Cook was out for a few moments her little 3-year-old daughter, Lillian, got the poker red hot in the stove and with it set her clothes afire. The frightened little one rushed to the front door, where the mother, terrified by her child's screams, met her and made an effort to extinguish the flames, being successful only after she herself had been severely burned about the hands. The poor child was badly burned about the arms, face and body. Dr. Rowan and other medical men were summoned and did all in their power to relieve the agony of the little sufferer, who it is not thought will survive her injuries more than a few hours.

ITALY AND ABYSSINIA.

The Situation is Still Extremely Serious—No Proceedings Against Crispi.

New York, March 13.—A special to The Herald from Rome says: The Marquis Di Rudini has promised the King not to take any proceedings against Signor Crispi.

The ex-Premier has informed his friends that His Majesty will insist upon an energetic prosecution of the campaign until Adwa has been crushed. There is good reason, however, for supposing this to be incorrect. General Baratieri will arrive at Naples on March 24, and will come to Rome immediately. It is now improbable that he will be tried by court martial.

The situation in Abyssinia is still extremely serious. Everything depends on the results of General Baldissera's efforts.

Crispi will make strenuous efforts to overthrow Di Rudini as soon as Parliament meets.

THE PRIEST STILL REFUSES.

Rights of the Roman Catholic Clergy in Quebec to be Tested in Law.

Montreal, March 13.—(Special)—The parish priest of St. Vincent de Paul, who refused to answer a question while in the witness box the other day, was again in court this morning. When Mr. Emard put the question to the reverend gentleman the latter replied as follows: "I refuse to answer because the conversation I had with Mr. Sicotte, the defendant in the case, was in my capacity as spiritual adviser, and I received his confidence under the seal of professional secrecy."

Mr. Emard—This, however, was not during confession?

The witness—It was not during confession, but it was a professional secret.

Mr. Emard attempted in many ways to get an answer from the priest, but without success, as he declared that it was a professional secret and he could not divulge it. Mr. Emard then gave up cross-questioning the witness, but stated that he would consider the case and decide if he should take the reverend gentleman before Judge Tait and have him answer the question or have him sent down for contempt of court.

These cases of refusal on the part of clergymen to reply to questions put by counsel are becoming so frequent that the bench and bar will both be glad to have a judgment on the question from the higher courts.

MANITOBA ORANGEMEN

Have Taken Their Stand on the School Question—To Oppose All Candidates Who Support Remedial Legislation.

Winnipeg, March 13.—(Special.)—The Grand Orange Lodge of Manitoba, in session here, has made the following declaration on the school question by the adoption of the Grand Master's address: "Since our last meeting, I regret to say that the Manitoba school question has assumed a different shape. Owing to the decision of the Privy Council in 1893 giving the provinces the sole jurisdiction over all educational matters within its own territory. The people of this country believed the question was settled for all time, but they little knew of the aggrandizing propensities of the Church of Rome. By the late decision of the Privy Council, it was decided that the Roman Catholics of Manitoba had grievances, and I regret to say that the Dominion Government, through the influence of the Roman hierarchy, has with undue haste set about breaking up our Public system, which has been in successful operation for nearly five years, and imposing on the people of Manitoba a sectarian system of state-supported schools in the interest of the Roman Catholic Church. The question now for us to ask ourselves is, Shall we submit to such an imposition and encroachment of rights and liberties of the people of this country? When Remedial Legislation was talked of, your Grand Lodge officers felt it their duty to sound notes of warning, and after due consideration drew up a circular, which was forwarded to all Grand Lodges and County Lodges in the Dominion, asking for assistance in our struggle with the hierarchy, and in every case, I am proud to assure you, such assistance has been earnestly and enthusiastically pledged to the full extent, that Orangemen in Canada will not vote for nor support a candidate who will not pledge himself to oppose Remedial Legislation. The question now arises, should not Manitoba lead in this respect, and with this object in view, I would suggest that a committee be appointed to prepare questions to be placed before candidates for both Dominion and Local Houses, and that no man shall receive our support who will not unhesitatingly promise and pledge himself to support the Public School system of Manitoba now by law established."

ATTEMPT TO EXCEL EXCELLENCE.

No Standard Yet Reached Precludes Some Improvement.

The saying of the ancient prophet, "To-morrow shall be as this day, and much more abundant," is applicable to the grand spring opening of hats at Dineens', King and Yonge-streets, to-day. This Saturday shall, for variety and choice, be as last Saturday, the formal opening day of the spring styles of headwear; but "much more abundant." Additional consignments from both London and New York have been opened, and these choice goods will be added to the stock on view to-day. In order to give all an opportunity of seeing, if not purchasing, the Easter hats, Dineens' store will remain open till 10 o'clock to-night. Remember the three special lines of hats. They are the popular, manufactured in New York specially for Dineens on the blocks of Dunlap, Knox and Miller. These are stamped, "Dineens' special" on the leather. They are known as one X, two XX, three XXX, and are stamped as such. The prices are respectively $2, $2.50, $3. They are warranted not only in quality, but as the newest style for wear this spring. Dineens' give their word that the $3 hat is equal to any other sold at $4 elsewhere; the $2.50 equal to $3, the $2 equal to $2.50. Silk hats can be had, first-class, at $4; boys' hats, 50 cents and 75 cents; children's caps, 25c and 50c. The earlier shoppers call the greater the convenience.

HON. MR. FOSTER'S SPEECH

WHERE THE GOVERNMENT STANDS ON THE REMEDIAL BILL.

He Calls Upon Conservatives Not to be Carried Away by Side Issues, But to Stick to the Platform of the Progressive Conservative Party—Premier Greenway's Telegram.

Ottawa, March 13.—(Special)—Upon the orders of the day being called, Sir Richard Cartwright said: "I wish to call the attention of the leader of the House to a remarkable statement which is alleged to have been made by Mr. Greenway, reading as follows:

"Winnipeg, March 12, 1896.—In the Legislature to-night Premier Greenway called attention to the fact that a sentence had been omitted from his telegram to Sir Donald Smith, as read by Sir Charles Tupper in the House of Commons. Mr. Greenway considered the sentence important, and read the telegram to the Legislature. The missing words were: 'As you are aware, we are not to blame for the present situation.'

"I would like to enquire whether these words were in the telegram which the hon. Secretary of State read to the House Monday?"

Sir Charles Tupper said in reply: "These words were in the telegram, and they were omitted because they did not seem to have any special bearing upon the question. (Opposition laughter.) It was a mere matter of opinion, which no one would be surprised that Mr. Greenway should entertain, but I would like, while making that admission—and certainly I was not under the impression that it was at all garbling the telegram to omit something which had no special reference to the main point, and that was whether Mr. Greenway was willing to have a conference with the Dominion—I would like to take the opportunity of answering the question which was put to me by the honorable leader of the Opposition, who, I observe, is not in his place to-day. That hon. gentleman asked me if I was prepared to lay upon the table the message from Sir Donald Smith to Mr. Greenway, to which Mr. Greenway's telegram of the 2nd inst., which I read to the House, was a reply. I said that I would communicate with Sir Donald Smith, and be in a position to answer the question put to me. I may say that I was most anxious to be in the position of reading a telegram to the House from Sir Donald Smith to Mr. Greenway, to which that was a reply, but I am unable to do so for the reason which I shall state. Without Mr. Greenway's consent, Sir Donald Smith will not allow the communication of his telegram to Mr. Greenway, to which that of the 2nd of March, read to the House by me on the 9th inst., was a reply. All telegrams and other communications between Sir Donald Smith and Mr. Greenway were regarded by them as confidential and were imparted by Sir Donald Smith to the Government as strictly such. Our intention was to obtain Sir Donald Smith's consent to communicate the telegram of the 2nd of March to the House, but on enquiry the Premier found that he was in New York, and not knowing his address there we could not reach him for that purpose by telegraph. Considering that under the circumstances I could properly use the telegram I did so, and for this I am alone responsible. I now express my sincere regret that this was done without the consent of those gentlemen and the circumstances under which that was virtually a communication to the Government from Mr. Greenway was used, and to which I thought there could be no possible objection."

Without Mr. Greenway's Consent.

Sir Richard Cartwright—Then are we to understand that this telegram was used without Mr. Greenway's consent?

Sir Charles Tupper—Certainly.

Sir Richard Cartwright—And a garbled—no, I will not say garbled—a mutilated version of it at that. I shall leave it to the House and the country to consider whether this is treating the House with the respect that this House should be treated. However, there is another question I should like to put to the hon. gentleman. I would like to ask him whether he is prepared to inform the House if there are any grounds for the extraordinary statement circulated in many newspapers that the Government have such doubts as to whether the Power expires on the 25th of April, and they propose submitting a case t[illegible] Supreme Court of Canada to res[illegible] their doubts.

Mr. Dickey—The [illegible]ernment is considering the desir[illegible] of doing that; but nothing has b[illegible]done yet.

Mr. Martin—I w[illegible] like to ask if the Government h[illegible] applied to Mr. Greenway for perm[illegible]n to lay before the House the tel[illegible]ms and other communications th[illegible]assed between Sir Donald Smith a[illegible] Mr. Greenway's Government.

Sir Charles Tupper—[illegible] Donald Smith did communicate wh[illegible] Mr. Greenway on the subject and [illegible] was asked whether he was willi[illegible] that the telegram from Sir Donal[illegible]mith to Mr. Greenway and to wh[illegible] that which was laid before the H[illegible] was a reply should be laid bef[illegible] the House. I have just stated to t[illegible] House that Mr. Greenway's consent [illegible]as not been obtained for that purpo[illegible]

Mr. Foster Continues the Debate.

Mr. Foster, amidst applau[illegible]e, resumed the Remedial bill debate. He began by stating that in his opinion the question now before the House was not intrinsically either the greatest question since Confederation or the most difficult of solution. What gave it importance was the side issues raised in connection with it. One of them was the issue of Federal interference. The question had taken the form of a popular cry of "Hands off Manitoba"; but rather was it that the majority should have kept
