PAYMENT OF DEBENTURES

More Than $50,000 Worth Matured in December.

Commissioner Grant After Delinquent Taxpayers.

The Committees as Now Slated—Cooper Gets a Chairmanship—Judd for Library Board.

On Dec. 31, the city's debenture debt was decreased by $54,097 64, local improvement debentures for that amount, and costing 4 per cent, having matured on that date. The total amount of the debentures that matured last year was $176,689 34, and in the present year this debt will be further decreased by the paying off of $103,309 17. In 1903 the debentures that become mature will not amount to more than $40,000.

In the assessment commissioner's office a statement of all arrears of taxes is being prepared, and in a week or so a number of citizens who are also ratepayers, supposedly, will receive polite-worded epistles from the commissioner, telling them to what an extent financially they are indebted to the municipality, with a request that the indebtedness be made good; otherwise the auctioneer would be asked to procure the coin in his own effective way. These arrears run from 1890 to 1901, and the sum total of the taxes is $3,445 67. It involves 190 properties.

The fame of London Charities Organization Society's work and its original researches and experiments has spread throughout all the land. Montreal is the last place that has come to London seeking the advice of the local officers. The charitably-inclined of the wealthy burg to the east have discovered, as others have done before, that the best way to help a fellow is to help him to help himself. Secretary Sanders, down at the city hall, believes that from his boots up. So the good people of Montreal want his advice about the wood-cutting scheme that has been so successful here. Their secretary, Mr. Francis H. McLean, has sent along about a hundred questions, and Mr. Sanders intends to answer them as well as he can. He has all confidence in the merit of the scheme. It is now in operation here, and the coupon books are now ready—$1 each.

Ex-Ald. Joshua Garratt, writing from Glencoe Villa, Kirby Muxloe, Leicestershire, England, sends home a wad of good wishes to his friends in London. City Clerk Kingston got the letter, and in it the popular fourth-warder expresses a little regret at being barred from the council just because he wasn't here to sign his declaration on nomination day. He thought that his friends would be disappointed. Still, he felt that a free year in which to attend to his own business would not be such a bad thing after all. Besides, he was going to see his friend, King Edward, open parliament, which was better than attending council meetings. The ex-alderman was enjoying good health.

It is understood that a caucus was held last night and the chairmanships and committees decided upon as follows:

No. 1—Ald. Beattie (chairman), Stevely, Douglass and Campbell.

No. 2—Ald. Cooper (chairman), Jolly, Gerry and Dreaney.

No. 3—Ald. Winnett (chairman), Abram, Greenlees and McMechan.

Ex-School Trustee Ziegler is fighting vigorously for a place on the board—one that is at the gift of the council. The scrap for the position is between Ziegler and McLean, who withdrew from the contest. The opinion is that the former will win. In the event of his succeeding he would be elected chairman. Otherwise it would go to either Trustee McCormick or Evans. Both want it. Mr. Evans, last year was chairman of the audit committee. Mr. Birtwistle will be the council's second nominee, and it is understood that Mr. Joseph Judd will again be appointed to the public library board.

Ald. Jolly has invented a snowplow, and an obliging storm came this way today just in time to test it. Assistant Engineer Ironside had it on the streets this afternoon.

Members of the new council expect that one of their first duties will be to investigate the pre-election charges made by Ald. McMechan, it being understood that Engineer Graydon will at the first meeting of the council claim the right of having the charges proved or disproved.
