Poetry.

OH, MAY WE LOVE THE BIBLE!

Oh, may we love the Bible!
God's holy book of truth,
The blessed staff of hoary age,
The guide of early youth;
The lamp that sheds a glorious light
On else a dreary road:
The world that speaks a Saviour's love
And shows the way to God!

Oh, may we love the Bible?
For it alone can tell
The way to save our ruined souls
From Satan, sin, and hell;
In words of truth it tells us how
We may ascend to heaven—
That if we trust in Jesus blood,
Our sins are all forgiven.

Oh, may we love the Bible!
That tells of Jesus' love;
Who came on earth for us to die,
And pleads for us above:
Who bore our sins of every die
Upon the cursed tree,
And send the Holy Spirit down,
That sinners may be free.

Oh, may we love the Bible!
The deepest richest mine,
All filled with brightest gems of truth
For men of every clime.
The guilty sinner here may learn—
The Gentile and the Jew—
To wash his robes in Jesus' blood
From sins of every hue.

Oh, may we love the Bible?
For which the martyrs died,
And spread the Glorious truth of God,
Wherever men reside;
It tells the dying how to live,
When time has passed away,
And walk with God in robes of light,
Through realms of endless day.

Oh, may we love the Bible?
And shun the crafty tongue
That would this treasure take away,
And leave our souls undone;
That would consign immortal minds.
To gloom of endless night:—
May we "maintain the truth in love"—
And "God defend the right."

TIME.

Time speeds away—away—away,
Like torrent in a stormy day;
He undermines the stately tower,
Uproots the tree, and snaps the flower;
And sweeps from our distracted breast
The friends that loved—the friends that blest:
And leaves us weeping on the shore,
To which they can return no more.

Time speeds away—away—away,
No eagle through the skies of day,
No wind along the hills can flee
So swiftly or so smooth as he;
Like fiery steed from stage to stage,
He bears us on from youth to age;
Then plunges in the fearful sea
Of fathomless eternity.—Knox.

POLITENESS IN MARRIED LIFE.

"Will you?" asked a pleasant voice.

And the husband answered, "Yes, my dear! with pleasure."

It was quietly but heartily said; the tone, the manner, the look, were perfectly natural but very affectionate. We thought how pleasant that courteous reply! how gratifying it must be to the wife! Many husbands of ten years's experience are ready enough with the courteous politeness to the young ladies of their acquaintance, while they speak with abruptness to the wife, and do many rude little things, without considering them worth an apology. The stranger whom they may have seen but yesterday, is listened to with deference, and although the subject may not be of the pleasantest nature, with a ready smile; while the wife, if she relate a domestic grievance, is snubbed, or listened to with illconcealed impatience. Oh! how wrong this is—all wrong.

Does she urge some request—"oh, don't bother me!" cries her gracious lord and master. Does she ask for necessary funds for Susy's shoes and Tommy's hat—"seems to me you're always wanting money!" is any little extra demanded by his masculine appetite—it is ordered, not requested. "Look here, I want you to do so and so; just see that it's done;" and off marches Mr. Boor, with a bow and a smile of gentlemanly polish, and friendly sweetness for every casual acquaintance he may chance to recognise.

When we meet such thoughtlessness and coarseness, our thoughts revert to the kind voice and gentle manner of the friend who said, "yes, my dear with pleasure." "I beg your pardon," comes as readily to his lips, when by any little awkwardness has disconcerted her, as it would in the presence of the most fashionable stickler for etiquette. This is because he is a thorough gentleman, who thinks his wife in all things entitled to precedence. He loves her best—why should he hesitate to show it, not in sickly maudlin attentions, but in preferring her pleasure and honouring her in public as well as private. He knows her worth—why should he hesitate to attest it? "And her husband he praised her," said Holy Writ; not by fulsome adulation, not by pushing her charms into notice, but by speaking as opportunity occurs, in a manly way, of her virtues. Though words may seem but slight things and slight attentions almost valueless, yet depend upon it, they keep the flame bright, especially if they are natural. The children grow up in a better moral atmosphere, and learn to respect their parents, as they see them respecting each other.

Many a boy takes advantage of a mother he loves, because he sees often the rudeness of his father. Insensibly he gathers to his bosom the same habits, and the thoughts and feelings they engender, and in his turn becomes the petty tyrant. Only his mother, why should he thank her? father never does. Thus the home becomes the seat of disorder and unhappiness, only for strangers are kind words expressed, and hypocrites go out from their hearthstone fully prepared to render justice, benevolence, and politeness to every and any one but those who have the justest claims.

Ah! give us the kind glance—the happy home-tread—the smiling wife and courteous children of the friend who said so pleasantly, "Yes, my dear; with pleasure."

"DREADS IT LIKE A DORG."—Miather Smith was arraigned for stealing a demijohn containing three gallons of whiskey. "Are you guilty or not guilty?" asked the clerk. "Wall, you can call it that you likes; I tuk the wiskey, that I admit, and drunked it too."—"You took it without leave, did you not?" "Try me and see, Judge; I reckon I'm experienced in that line a trade." "I think from your appearance that no one will doubt your word on that point." "I prove a character any one doubt it." "Nobody doubts that, and it will be necessary to send you to the Penitentiary three months to get the whiskey out of you. Can't stand it, Judge? I've lived on the critter fifteen years; it's been meat and drink, and you'd better hang me and done with it." "It is a pity, but there is no help for you; it will do you good to get sober." "Wall if I must I must; but I'll tell you what it's, Judge.—I dreads it like a dorg."

ANECDOTE OF WESLEY.—At one time, when Mr. Wesley was travelling in Ireland, his carriage became fixed in the mire, and the harness broke. While he and his companions were laboring to extricate it, a poor man passed by in great distress. Mr. Wesley called to him and inquired the cause. He said he had been unable, through misfortune, to pay his rent of twenty shillings, and his family were turned out of doors. "In that case, you need?" said Mr. Wesley, handing him the amount, "here, go and be happy." Then turning to his companion he said, pleasantly, "You see now why our carriage stopped in the mud."

The Subscriber having been appointed Agent to the above Company for New-Brunswick, begs to announce that he is prepared to receive Proposals for FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE. The large Capital of the Company, and the number and influence of its Proprietors, enable it to rank with the most eligible Offices, either in America or Europe, with respect to the advantages offered to the Public.

FIRE BRANCH.

Persons Assured by this Company are not subject to any covenants or calls to make good losses which may happen to themselves or other, nor do they depend on any uncertain fund or contribution, the Capital Stock of this Company being an unquestionable security to the Assured in case of Loss or Damage by Fire.

LIFE BRANCH.

In addition to the more customary methods of Insurance, the Company likewise Assures Lives on any of the following contingencies:—

For the terms of One Year, Seven Years, or any other definite period.

For the whole continuance of Life.—The Premiums to cease, after a limited number of Annual Payments.

For Two Joint Lives.—The sum assured to be paid on the death of either.

On the longest of Two or Three Lives.—The sum assured to be payable at the death of the last survivor; or,

The Survivorships.—To secure the payment or the sum assured, if a life A die before another life B.

For a sum to be payable at age 60, or at death.

Premiums on Credit.—A portion of the Premiums on Credit. Assurances may be effected in various ways, not enumerated, to meet the convenience of parties.

The important advantages afforded by the Company in the Life Branch will include the following viz:—

The Guarantee of an ample Capital, and Exemption of the Assured from liability of Partnership.

Moderate Premiums.

Large Participation of Profits by the Assured amounting to Two-thirds of its net amount, which may be applied at the option of the party effecting the Assurance:—1st. By the immediate payment of the sum so apportioned.—2nd. By an equivalent increase of the sum assured.

Small Charge for Management.—The expenses of the Office being borne in due proportion by the two Branches.

Prompt Settlement of Claims.

Policies lapsed by non-payment of the Premium may be renewed within three months, by paying the premium, with a fine of 10s. per cent., on the production of evidence to the satisfaction of the Directors of the good health of the life assured.

The Company will always be prepared to Purchase the Policies of this Office at their equitable value or will grant a New Policy in lieu thereof without any further payment of Premium, for a sum to be agreed on.

Extra Premiums, suitable to special circumstances, will be accepted to ensure a party possessing a Policy on the life of another to guard against the possibility of its being vitiated by the Life departing beyond limits, or by any other cause.
