A Chinese Sedan.

Crushing Character of Their Recent Defeat by the Japs.

Unsatisfactory Condition of the French Fleet at Toulon.

Twenty Killed.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 17.—Twenty persons were killed and a large number of others seriously injured at Minsk today by the collapse of a large naphtha warehouse.

The War in the East.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—A dispatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from Shanghai says the Japanese gained a decisive victory on the 15th, capturing Ping Yang, which was held by 20,000 Chinese troops. After eighteen hours hard fighting the Japs made their way into the city and took the greater part of the garrison prisoners.

Official advices from Tien Tsin received at the Chinese legation yesterday make no mention of a battle having occurred at Ping Yang.

The secretary of the legation, while admitting the possibility that the Chinese may have met with a serious reverse, does not accept as accurate the reports received from Seoul.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—A news agency here has received advices from Shanghai announcing a two days' engagement at Ping Yang between Chinese and Japanese, in which the Japanese forces were victorious. Twenty thousand Chinese soldiers surrendered. The dispatches further say that no trustworthy details are obtainable, all attempts of British and American correspondents to get to the seat of war having proved unsuccessful.

The number of Chinese killed in the battle is estimated at 2,300.

The Japanese Emperor has telegraphed from Hiroshima, where the headquarters of the army are located, congratulating Marshal Count Yamagata upon the success of the Japanese arms.

A flying column of the Japanese army is pushing northward with the object of taking possession of the mountain passes.

The Shanghai Mercury prints a special edition containing dispatches from the front, and in its editorial comments on the result of the battle expresses ful appreciation of the crushing defeat and great slaughter of the picked troops omprising the Chinese army engaged. The paper dilates upon the consequence of the disaster to the Chinese arms and xpresses well-grounded fear of a speedy Japanese invasion.

The London Telegraph says th Mongolian Colossus has feet of clay wh ch are crumbling. If the powers, especially England, were to intervene prompt with friendly counsels the conflict mi t be ended.

A Central News dispatch from kio says that four Chinesa generals, Taso Pako, We Juikwi, Ma Yukoweng an Sei Kinlin, together with 14,500 other cers and men were taken prisoners by the Japanese at Ping Yang. The Japanese outnumbered the Chinese three to one.

The Graphic in an article under he caption of "The Chinese Sedan" comments on the Ping Yang battle at length. The Japanese, the article says, have managi their campaign with a grasp of milita science and soldierly ability deserving the utmost credit.

Cable Flashes.

The normal condition of the fleet a Toulon is officially stated to be one of lack of preparation.

The British bark Capenhurst (Capt. Jones, from Newcastle, N. B., Aug. 28. for Liverpool), was abandoned on Sept. 9 in latitude 48° north, longitude 48° west. She was waterlogged and only her main mast was standing. Her crew were rescued with great difficulty.

Hippolyte, President of the Haytien Republic, has almost recovered his health. The news of the atttempted assassination of his married daughter is confirmed, and six men are said to have been shot for the crime.

Retribution Dire.

Ives Shammed Insanity and Then Went Insane.

Judge Wm. Elliot Commits Him to the Asylum.

He Was Sultan of Turkey, Owned the Judge and Wanted Him to Give a Chew of Tobacco.

Ives commenced by shamming insanity and then became insane. Such is the explanation given by Dr. Bucke before Judge Wm. Elliot this morning when the case came up finally for disposal.

"He laid himself out to sham insanity," said the doctor, "and the funny part of it is that he really became insane. I know he was shamming to escape punishment at first, because his wife told us all about it. He is insane at the present time beyond all question. He cannot be shamming now, because the game is not worth the candle."

Ives presented a pitiable sight as he was brought in raving. He wore the prison garb, his face was pale, his eyes glistened with an unnatural luster and his beard had commenced to grow. His curly hair was flying, and with his hair lip and English accent it was hard to understand a word he said.

"Where are my chickens? Chick, chick, chick," he cried. Then his mind wandered quickly and he wanted a drink. He forgot about that immediately and tried to take off his boots. All the time he was talking aimlessly to the man that held him.

"I am going to have my palace torn down," he shouted. Then with a sudden flight of fancy he asked, "Where is my chicken, Lily and Princess Martha. They never come to see me."

The judge asked him his name.

"I am the Sultan of Turkey. I own all this palace. I own you. Have you got a chew of tobacco?"

Judge Elliot—Where are you from?

Ives—From here. This is my palace. These are my cows, my sheep and my ducks. Where is my Princess Martha?

"Where were you born?"

"Constantinople."

"Where is your home now?"

"This is my home."

"What about Constantinople?"

"This is Constantinople. This is where I raise all my ducks. I can't bother to talk with you now. I haven't got time. Here chucky."

And W. H. Ives, charged with blackmailing Gus May, a local insurance agent, was committed to the asylum. Dr. Macarthur and Dr. Waugh also gave evidence. Ives, it will be remembered, wrote a letter to May accusing the latter of assaulting his wife, and demanding money in reparation.

MISS SALLIE MONROE SWIFT, of Massachusetts, has won distinction in two ways. She is the official reporter of the Middlesex and Barnstable terms of the supreme court, being the first woman officially recognized as a court stenographer, and this summer she made a bicycle record of less than ten hours over the route from Yarmouth to Boston, 88½ miles. She is said to be the first woman to make the run.

THERE has died at his residence, Carniney, near Ballymena, Ireland, one who was reckoned to be the most diminutive man in Ulster. His name was David Yaston, and his stature did not reach beyond the height of three feet. At the time of his death, which occurred on July 26, he had attained the age of about 50 years. He was a married man and leaves a widow and several of a family to mourn his early death. For years past he was known throughout Ballymena and the district as an evangelistic preacher and carried on the grocery business.

New Silks.

In silk, like sealskin, you have to trust a good deal to the character of the person you buy from. Our experience in buying these goods leads us to think we are a judge of values. Our very best energy is commanded in handling every piece. Every store cannot retail silks to advantage. Few houses find it worth their while to make silks a specialty. We have won success with them by having a growing stock and a growing appreciation of better qualities. We are continually on the upgrade, as evidenced by our new stock. You can get a liberal education in silks by spending an hour at this counter.

Mantles

Do you want anything in this line? If so, we have it. We must have it, for here is almost a limitless variety. Row upon row, pile upon pile, box upon box. Every garment with some special feature to recommend it. Over 3,000 garments to select from. Can you grasp the range of prices, patterns and quality this affords all buyers? If you want anything made to order, we carry a particularly large stock of cloth, while our mantle-maker needs no comment.

AGENTS FOR

Dress Trimmings.

Dress Goods is the backbone of this dry goods business, and trimmings are part almost of the goods. In all the drygoods stores, no equal stock. This has been true for years of our Trimming Department. It is pre-eminent just now. We have just added three cases French novelties in Braids; Jets, Ruchings, Gimps and Fur Trimmings. Everything to match our dress goods.

Hosiery and Gloves.

The necessities of being properly dressed, is it likely we would neglect these adjuncts of our business. Never before were we able to offer such values and assortments. A special word of Kid Gloves: We are the exclusive agents for the celebrated makes handled by the late firm of Spittal, Burn & Gentleman. Those who have worn these gloves need no word of praise for them; to others we say try a pair. Fitted on while you wait.
