LONDON, WEDNESDAY, JULY 14.

CONCERNING FLAGS.

A Toronto contemporary, who has been interesting himself very much with what he considers the defenceless position of Canada, has also taken up the question of flags. He sees many cases of the contempt with which the British flag is treated by the people of the United States, both in their own country and when visiting the Dominion; and he notes with sorrow that Canadians do not seem to concern themselves very much about it.

With regard to most of the cases of lese majeste, where the flag has to suffer—whether it be the Union Jack or the Stars and Stripes—there are usually two sides to these stories. And the conclusion of a dispassionate observer is that there is generally "much cry and little wool." Toronto had a bad one on Dominion Day, when an automobile party from the other side trailed the British flag in the dust. Later explanations make it appear that some mischievous boys tied the flag in question to the hind axle of the motor, and that the occupants of the machine knew nothing about it. Then we had a story from Port Stanley that a cottager from the States had her flag flying above the Union Jack, which led to more indignant protests. The owner of the cottage explains that the building was decorated profusely with Canadian flags, and that a small edition of the Stars and Stripes floated from the gable, and that she supposed she was doing honor to Canada instead of perpetrating an insult.

Whether or not these explanations be true, there is no doubt that many violations of international flag etiquette take place without malice—with, indeed, the best of intentions, and these incidents are usually exaggerated by super-sensitive, ultra-loyal people, who have more patriotism than judgment. There are foolish people on both sides of the line, and as there are probably twelve times as many people in the United States as there are in Canada, it is not unreasonable to estimate that there are twelve times as many fools in the Republic as in the Dominion. There may be more, but we are not egotistical in crediting our neighbors with only their fair proportion.

Let it not be assumed for one moment that we can condone indifference to the flag of one's country. The flag is the country's symbol. Every good citizen should pay it honor and respect. Our neighbore across the line have always done this; and there have always been some among them who have done more. Not content with honoring their flag, they have, when visiting other countries, delighted in flourishing it before everybody in a manner which brings them into contempt. It may be questioned whether it is patriotism with these people, so much as ignorant self-conceit—they are probably thinking more of themselves than of their flag.

Canadians certainly do not err in this respect. While we believe our people are as loyal to the flag and the empire as can possibly be desired, they are not, as a rule, disposed to go into hysterics over it. We are built more on the type of the average Englishman, who never thinks it necessary to indulge in blatant patriotism. He is perfectly satisfied with his country; if other people are not, it is no concern of his. He does not consider that his flag or his empire need to be "boosted."

Many of our neighbors in the United States do not feel this way. They seem to be afraid that other people will not recognize the greatness of young "Uncle Sam" unless it is being continually dinned into their ears. They will probably get over this when they grow older, and feel a confidence which does not need to be bolstered up by ceaseless "hurrahs."

So far as Canadians are concerned, let us love and honor the old flag. Let our children be trained up in a sane patriotism, which leads to deeds of devotion, and not words of boastfulness. If some ignorant, discourteous visitors make fools of themselves occasionally, that can do no harm—unless we try to imitate them.

PREMIER DEAKIN'S PROGRAMME.

The programme of the new Australian Ministry, as outlined by Premier Deakin, is generally considered remarkable more for its omissions and compromises than for what it includes. This is attributed to the fact that the constituent elements of the coalition majority are at variance upon almost every issue of federal interest, and that the majority itself does not exceed nine votes.

The chief need of the Commonwealth is immigration. Recognizing that fact, the Government has decided on an active policy, in the carrying out of which it looks for the co-operation of all the states. Following the example long since set by Canada, the Government will appoint a high commissioner in London, with a well-equipped office, to take charge of the financial interests of the Commonwealth, supervise immigration and foster trade and commerce.

Another Government proposal is the establishment of an inter-state commission, which will undertake many of the functions of the British Board of Trade and a federal labor bureau, and assist in supervising the workings of the existing customs tariff in its operations upon the investment of Australian capital and labor, and will advise upon the removal of any inconsistencies and the development of preferential relations within the empire.

The Commonwealth's representative at the imperial defence conference will consult with the admiralty on the marine defence of the ports and coasts of Australia by the most effective vessels, manned and officered by Australians trained to the standard of the royal navy. In the matter of land defence the Government's policy will be founded on universal training, commencing in youth and continuing towards manhood. A military college, a school of musketry, and probably a primary naval college will be established to train officers, and the counsel of one of the most experienced commanders of the British army will be sought for with regard to the general development and disposition of adult citizen soldiers.

The obligations of the next eighteen months render the question of finances more important than it has been at any time since the federation. Provision will be required for defence and industrial projects. The taking over of lighthouses, the federal capital site, the construction of a railway to Western Australia, and the outlay on post and telegraphs, and especially telephones, will mean unusually large expenditures. The termination of the ten-year period of the distribution of customs revenue provided for in the constitution is near at hand, and the Government is preparing a temporary arrangement pending a satisfactory permanent settlement of the financial relations between the Commonwealth and the states.

THE DOMINION LOAN.

[Winnipeg Free Press.]

Some apprehension was felt with regard to the outcome on the London market of the loan just issued by the Dominion Government. Canada's credit has been good and there was never any doubt as to its being otherwise; but no government of any of the dominions of the empire had previously ventured upon so large a loan as that which has been successfully launched by Mr. Fielding. A few days ago cabled information was received to the effect that the loan had been sucessfully underwritten at a good price, and yesterday the cables announced that the cash subscriptions for the loan had been very much better than anticipated. That so large a loan has been handled successfully and that Canada's credit remains unimpaired is an incident that will afford satisfaction to Canadians generally.

TORONTO GETS FIELDER.

Buffalo, July 14.—Sammy Swartzmeier, the well-known ex-Dry Dock and Pine Ridge semi-professional, will get his first try-out in Eastern League ball today, when he will wear a Toronto uniform in the Canuck outfield. Swartzmeier, who refused to accept a cut in salary from the Erie club in the O. and P. League, Monday, arrived in the city yesterday with his release, and was promptly signed by Kelley. Swartzmeier is a good fielder and a fair hitter, and stands a good chance to make good. This spring he was tried out by Binghamton in the State League, but was farmed out to Portsmouth in the West Virginia League. He came back in May, ill with malarial fever, and went to Erie early in June.

Expressions of Condolence Extended to Families of Deceased Bowlers at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, July 13.—The 22nd annual meeting of the Ontario Bowling Association was held in the casino of Queen's Royal tonight. The attendance was very large and enthusiastic. The secretary's report and the financial statement showed the association to be in an exceedingly prosperous condition.

The following officers were elected: Honorary patron, Lord Strathcona; honorary president, Wm. Brown, Westmount; president, D. Dexter, Hamilton Thistles; first vice-president, Dr L. Robertson, Stratford; second vice-president, J. J. Warren, Parkdale; honorary secretary, Colin Postlethwaite Canadas, Toronto; honorary assistant secretary, A. E. Huestis, Granites, Toronto; auditors, Thomas Rennie and R. J. Kearns.

The report of the visit of the Canadian team to Great Britain last year was read by the honorary secretary. It showed 8 games won, 24 lost. Points for, 2,506; against, 2,975.

Dr. Russell, secretary of the team moved that an invitation be extended to the British bowlers to visit Canada in 1910, and that the Western and Eastern Associations be requested to join in the invitation. This was carried.

The following clubs were elected to membership: Weston, Tillsonburg, Whitby, Barrie, Oaklands, Toronto; Victorias, Hamilton.

Late John McNee.

The loss by the grim reaper of C Boeckh, Toronto; Donald McDonald Guelph, Dr. Radcliffe, St. Kitts, and John McNee, London, was feelingly referred to by Past President Woodyatt. Expressions of condolence were extended to the bereaved families by a standing vote.

The question of holding the meeting at some other place than the Queen's Royal was freely discussed. The wit and repartee of Dicky Kearns and "Sunny Jim" Warren kept the members in constant laughter.

On motion of T. M. Woodyatt and Dr. Hawke, a committee, consisting of E. T. Lightbourn, A. S. Wigmore, M J. McCarron, G. R. Hargraft and J. J Warren, was appointed. Prospect Park Niagara Falls, and Ottawa were suggested.

J. J. Warren, Dr. Hamil, C. O Knowles, R. J. Kearns, I. M. Woodyatt, J. L. Payne all spoke, considerable feeling being manifested. It was finally decided to leave the matter in the hands of the committee.

New constitution and bylaws were submitted and adopted, the principal change being the defining of the real and imaginary ditch.

The financial report showed total receipts of $764 62; disbursements $459 17; balance on hand, $305 45.
