DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE

ARE NOT a Purgative Medicine. They are a BLOOD BUILDER, TONIC AND RECONSTRUCTOR, as they supply in a condensed form the substances actually needed to enrich the Blood, curing all diseases coming from POOR AND WATERY BLOOD, or from VITIATED HUMORS in the BLOOD, and also invigorate and BUILD UP the BLOOD and SYSTEM, when broken down by overwork, mental worry, disease, excesses and indiscretions. They have a SPECIFIC ACTION on the SEXUAL SYSTEM of both men and women, restoring LOST VIGOR and correcting all IRREGULARITIES and SUPPRESSIONS.

EVERY MAN Who finds his mental faculties dull or failing, or is physical powers flagging, should take these PILLS. They will restore his lost energies, both physical and mental.

EVERY WOMAN should take them. They cure all suppressions and irregularities, which inevitably entail sickness when neglected.

YOUNG MEN should take these PILLS. They will cure the results of youthful bad habits, and strengthen the system.

YOUNG WOMEN should take them. These PILLS will make them regular.

THE WOODEN SHOE.

A STORY OF PAGANINI. THE MUSICIAN.

Towards the end of September, 1832 it was announced among the artistic circles of Paris that Nicolo Paganini had fallen seriously ill at the conclusion of a grand concert given by the illustrious violinist. He was attacked by a low intermitting fever, which refused to yield to the remedies employed, and even gave rise to apprehensions for his life.

Paganini, whose leanness was already almost spectral, now seemed to have his frail existence suspended by a thread, which the slightest shock might sever. The physicians unanimously ordered solitude, absolute repose and a strict regimen as to diet.

In order to carry out these prescriptions, Paganini removed to the Villa Lutetiana, in the Faubourg Poissoniere. The excellent establishment, which no longer exists, was intended exclusively for the reception and cure of wealthy invalids. A spacious, comfortable house stood in a large parklike garden, where each patient could ramble at will and enjoy either solitude or society at his choice. A great charm of this house was that every one lived just as he or she pleased, in the evening either retiring to the solitude of his apartment or joining in the games, music or conversation held in the drawing room. Paganini naturally belonged to those who preferred passing the evening in quietness and retirement. There was plenty of gossip about him in the drawing room: three or four censorious old maids fell on him tooth and nail.

"Ladies," began one, "have you seen this great musician?" He salutes no one and never speaks a word. He takes his bowl of soup in an arbor in the garden and then hastens away if any one approaches. What an oddity he must be?"

"That's part of his malady," said another; "people say that there is some terrible mystery about his life; some love story, I imagine."

"Not at all," added a third; "Paganini is a miser; there's no mystery about that. Do you remember that concert which was organized in favor of the families who had suffered from the inundation at St. Etienne? The great violinist refused to take part in it because he would have had to play gratuitously. Depend upon it, he fears that, were he to mix in our society, he might be asked for similar favors."

Paganini guessed pretty well how he was regarded by his fellow boarders, but like Gallio of old, he cared for none of these things. His health became gradually better, yet in the whole house he never exchanged a word with any one except Nicette. This was the housemaid who attended on him; a cheerful innocent country girl, whose gay prattle when she served him his meals often availed to dispel the cloud which habitually darkened the brows of Paganini.

One morning Nicette presented herself with a sad, drooping countenance, and served breakfast without uttering a word. The musician, who was amusing himself with carving a piece of ivory for the handle of a dagger, noticed the change in the young girl and questioned her upon it.

"What's the matter, my child? You look sad; your eyes are red; some misfortune has befallen you, Nicette?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

"Would it be indiscreet to ask you what it is?"

"No, sir, not precisely, but,"—

Paganini fixed his great black eyes on the girl's troubled countenance.

"Come," he said, "I see how it is. After having made you a thousand promises he has quitted you, and you no longer have any tidings of him."

"Ah, poor fellow! He has quitted me certainly, but it was not my fault."

"How is that?"

"Because in the conscription he drew a bad number, and he has been sent away with a great long gun on his shoulder, and I shall never see him again," sobbed poor Nicette, as she buried her face in her white apron.

"But, Nicette, could you not purchase a substitute for him?"

The girl, withdrawing her apron, smiled sadly through her tears.

"Monsieur is jesting," she said; "how could I ever buy a substitute?"

"Does it cost very dear?"

"This year men are tremendously dear, on account of the report that there is going to be a war. Fifteen hundred francs is the lowest price."

The musician pressed Nicette's little plump hand between his long sallow fingers as he said:

"If that's all, my girl, don't cry; we'll see what can be done."

Then, taking out his pocketbook, he wrote on a blank leaf:

"Mem.—To see about giving a concert for the benefit of Nicette."

A month passed on; winter arrived, and Paganini's physician said to him:

"My dear sir, you must not venture out of doors again until after the month of March."

"To hear is to obey," replied the musician.

During the winter a comparative degree of health and strength returned to Paganini. Having no longer the pleasant, shady arbors of the garden as a refuge, he began gradually to linger a little in the drawing room. After dinner he used to throw himself on a sofa of crimson velvet and pass an hour or two in turning over a volume or engravings, or sipping a glass of sugared water flavored with orange flowers. The old ladies of the society gossiped on about him and his odd ways, but he affected not to hear, and certainly did not heed them.

Christmas approached. On the anniversary a custom exists in France dear to its juvenile inhabitants. A wooden shoe is placed at the corner of the hearth, and a beneficent fairy is supposed to come down the chimney laden with various presents and dainties, with which he fills it. It is calculated that one year with another the Christmas wooden shoe enriches the trade of Paris with 2,000,000 francs.

On the morning of the 24th of December four of Paganini's female critics were in consultation together.

"It will be for this evening," said one.

"Yes, for this evening; that's settled," replied another.

After dinner Paganini was, according to his custom, seated on the drawing room sofa, sipping his eau sucree, when an unusual noise was heard in the corridor. Presently Nicette entered and announced that a porter had arrived with a case directed to Signor Paganini.

"I don't expect any case," said he; "but I suppose he had better bring it in."

Accordingly, a stout porter entered, bearing a good sized deal box, on which, besides the address, were the words, "Fragile, with care." Paganini examined it with some curiosity, and, having paid the messenger, proceeded to open the lid. His long, thin, but extremely muscular fingers accomplished this task without difficulty, and the company, whose curiosity caused them somewhat to transgress the bounds of good manners, crowded around in order to see the contents of the box.

The musician first drew out a large packet, enveloped in strong brown paper and secured with several seals. Having opened this, a second, and a third envelope and the curious eyes of twenty persons were regaled with a gigantic wooden shoe carved out of ash, and almost large enough to serve for a child's cradle. Bursts of laughter hailed the discovery.

"Ah!" scid Paganini, "a wooden shoe. I guess tolerably well who sent it. Some of these excellent ladies wish to compare me to a child who always expects presents and never gives any. Well be it so. We will see if we cannot find some method of making this shoe worth its weight in gold."

So saying, and scarcely saluting the company, Paganini withdrew to his own apartment, carrying with him the case and contents,

During three days he did not reappear in the drawing room. Nicette informed the company that he worked from morning till night with carpenter's tools. In fact, the musician, whose hands were wondrously flexible and dexterous in other things besides violin playing, had fashioned a perfect and sonorous instrument out of the clumsy wooden shoe. Having enriched it with one silver string his work was complete. Next day a public notice appeared that on New Year's eve Paganini would give a concert in the large hall of the Villa Lutetiana.

The great master announced that he would play ten pieces—five on a violin, five on a wooden shoe. The price of the tickets was fixed at twenty francs each. Of these only 100 were issued, and it is needless to add that they were immediately purchased by the elite of the beau monde, who during several months had missed the pleasure of hearing Paganini. The appointed evening arrived; the hall, furnished with comfortable chairs, was prepared and lighted for the occasion; elegant equipages weae stationed along the Faubourg Poissonniere, and expectation was on tiptoe to know what the announcement respecting the wooden shoe could possibly mean.

At length Paganini appeared, smiling, with every appearance of renewed health and on his favorite violin played some of those marvellous strains which never failed to transport his auditors to the seventh heaven of delight. Then he seized the shoe, which, in its new guise of a violin, still preserved somewhat of pristine form, and his whole being lighted up with enthusiasm, he commenced one of those wondrous improvisations, which captivated the souls of his hearers. This over represented first the departure of a conscript, the tears, the wailing of his bethrothed, then his stormy life in the camp and on the field of battle, and finally his return, accompanied by triumph and rejoicing.

A merry peal of wedding bells completed the musical drama. Long and loud were the thunders of applause; even the old ladies who disliked Paganini could not refrain from clapping, and bouquets, thrown by fair and jeweled hands, fell at the feet of the musician. In a corner of the hall, next the door, Nicette was weeping bitterly; the symphony of the conscript had gone strait to her heart. At the end of the concert the receipts were counted; they amounted to 2,000 francs.

"Here, Nicette," said Paganini, "you have 500 francs over the sum required to purchase a substitute; they will pay your bridegroom's travelling expenses."

Then, after a pause, he continued: "But you will want something wherewith to begin housekeeping. Take this shoe violin or this violin shoe, and sell it for your dowry."

Nicette did so, and received from a rich amateur 6,000 francs for Paganini's wooden shoe.

It is now, we believe, in the possession of an English nobleman, who was formerly British embassador at Paris.

Not Our Thomas.

Last evening about 7 o'clock Chief of Police Parker was walking along Columbia street and saw a man gaining into the yard of the house occupied by Mr. Tufts, directly opposite the police station. The chief stepped back into the shadow of City Hall and saw the man walk into the yard and help himself to the clothes on the line. The officer ran across the street and entered the yard and had not advanced to the man but a short distance when he tripped and fell over a barrel. The noise started the clothesline thief and he started to escape, but was quickly in the officer's grip. He gave his name as Thomas Rogers and said he belonged in St. John, N. B. In court this morning he was given 30 days in jail for the offence.—Bangor Commercial.

The secretary of the Intercolonial railway employes' relief and insurance association reports three deaths and two cases of total disability for the month ending Dec. 25th. They are: George Stuart, cleaner, Pictou, died Nov. 26, of typhoid fever; $250. Onesime Bourque, laborer, Moncton, died Nov. 28, typhoid fever; $250. H. W. Fraser, Glengarry, N. S., died Nov. 30, of phthisis; $250. Alex. Locke, shunter, Halifax, total disability; $250. John Coffey, trackman, Shediac, total disability; $500. The death levy is estimated to produce $1,687,80, leaving a surplus, after providing for a small deficit last month, of $150.28. This fund is now estimated on a more satisfactory basis than formerly. The total number insured at present is 3,919.

Pale and listless girls and prematurely aged women would soon give place to bright, healthy, rosy females if Dr. Williams' Pills were used for the ills to which women are peculiarly liable. They enrich the blood, build up the nerves, and restore the shattered system, regulate the periods etc. Try them and be convinced. Sold by all dealers, or sent post paid on receipt of price—50c. per box, or five boxes for $2—by addressing The Dr. Williams Med. Co., Brockville, Ont.

The sale of the Annand mine, the North British and two other gold mines at Montague, to an English syndicate, which was reported in the Herald some time ago, was completed the other day. The sum of $12,500 was put up at the time to bind the negotiations, and now the whole amount or an instalment of it has been paid. Charles Annand's share of the $150,000 which is the price received for the four properties, is $100,000. This sale means a great deal to the province and will doubtless mark an important era in our gold mining industry.—Halifax Herald.

Answer This Question.

Why do so many people we see around us seem to prefer to suffer and be made miserable by indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Coming up of the Food, Yellow Skin, when for 75c we will sell them Shiloh's Vitalizer, guaranteed to cure them. Sold by Parker Bros., Market Square, G. W. Hoben, North End, S. Waters, West End.

A large mud shark, so called by fishermen, came into Digby strait last Tuesday and ran ashore on the fishing beach, where it was captured by Messrs. Adams and others. Its length from tip of nose to tail was 14 feet and its weight about two tons. The liver nearly filled a paraffine oil cask.

Indispensable to every household, ask your grocer for Lessive Phenix. It will not make the washing waterhard. It will not make your clothes yellow. The old chemical powders do that. But Lessive Phenix brings in the new era of purity and sweetness, and dazzling perfection whether in connection with the wash, or in cleansing or scouring. Takes the place of Soap. Ask your grocers for it.

Good Advice.

DEAR SIRS,—I have been troubled with headache for over 40 years, and had so bad about once a week that I was sometimes not expected to live. I was advised to use B. B. B., and have taken 3 bottles. I now have no attack only once in four or five months, and I feel that if I continue using it I will be entirely cured. Therefore I recommend it highly.

For Pain or Colds.

GENTLEMEN,—Fifteen months ago I had a beating breast. I tried a number of remedies but got no relief. I then tried Hagyard's Yellow Oil, which gave me instant relief. It is the best thing I ever used for all kinds of pain or cold.

MRS. JOHN CORBETT, St. Marys, Ont.

New Sarum Notes.

DEAR SIRS,—I have used six bottles of B. B. B. I took it for liver complaint. Before I took it I had headache and felt stupid all the time, but now I am healthy and entirely well. In addition I have a good appetite, which I did not have previously.

These Steamers are all double engined, full powered, built in water-tight compartments, have Middle Saloons and Staterooms, and are furnished with every requisite for making the passage across the Atlantic both safe and agreeable. Their State-Rooms are all on the spar decks, thus insuring the greatest of all luxuries at sea, viz., perfect ventilation and light.

The Steamers will be despatched from Portland about 1 o'clock p. m., or as soon as possible after arrival of the Grand Trunk Railway Train, due at noon.

Tickets, State Rooms and full information concerning the Steamers, Passage Rates, etc., furnished on application.

SALE OF SCHOOL LANDS IN MANITOBA.

IT IS PROPOSED to offer for sale at Public Auction, during the winter, certain School Lands in the Province of Manitoba. These lands, comprising an area of about 250,000 acres all well selected and are situated in the best settled portions of the Province.

Farmers in the older Provinces, desiring to obtain lands having railway and market facilities, should avail themselves of this opportunity. Lists of the lands to be offered for sale are now ready for distribution.

The sale will take place at the following points, commencing each day at 11 a. m:

At Morden, Wednesday, 13th Jan., 1892.
At Pilot Mound, Friday, 15th Jan., 1892.
At Deloraine, Wednesday, 20th Jan., 1892.
At Glenboro', Friday, 22nd Jan., 1892.
At Portage la Prairie, Wednesday, 27th Jan., 1892.
At Minnedosa, Friday, 29th Jan., 1892.
At Brandon, Wednesday, 3rd Feb., 1892.
At Winnepeg, Friday, 5th Feb., 1892

In every case the lands will be put up at the upset price per acre set against them in the published list. The lands will be sold without regard to persons who may be in illegal occupation, and any improvements existing thereon will go to the purchaser. The present occupants of the lands are at liberty to remove buildings and fences any time prior to the sale.

All payments to be made in cash; Scrip or Warrants will not be accepted.

TERMS OF PAYMENT—One fifth in cash at the time of sale; balance in four equal successive annual instalments, with interest at 6 per cent.

For further particulars, lists of lands etc., apply to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior Ottawa; to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands, Winnipeg, or to any Agent of Dominion Lands in Manitoba
