THE SUMNER HYMN.

BY OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

Once more, ye sacred towers,
Your solemn dirges sound,
Strew, loving hands, the April flowers,
Once more to deck his mound.
A nation mourns its dead,
Its sorrowing voices one.
As Israel' monarch bowed his head
And cried "My son! My son!"

Why mourn for him?—For him
The welcome angel came
Ere yet his eye with age was dim
Or bent his stately frame;
His weapon still was bright,
His shield was lifted high
To slay the wrong, to save the right—
What happier hour to die?

Thou ordersst all things well;
Thy servant's work was done;
He lived to hear Oppression's knell,
The shouts for Freedom won.
Hark! From the opening skies
The anthem's echoing swell,—
"O mourning Land, lift up thine eyes!
God reigneth. All is well!"

NOTES AND NEWS.

UNITED STATES.

A Kentucky gentleman didn't get mad until he had been called a "liar" eighty-one times. The monotony of the thing "riled" him.

Albert Garnier has accepted the challenge of Francois Ubassy to play a French carom game of billiards, 1000 points up, for $1000.

How nice to be rescued! The little waif, Mary Ellen, in New York, has fourteen dolls, eleven gold dollars, and is smothered with kisses continually.

A colored lawyer prosecuted the colored rioters in Louisville, Ky. He told the Court that he blushed for his brethren. The Court couldn't detect it.

"A good man gone to roost," is the announcement of an obituary in a Western paper. When cremation becomes fashionable, it will be the proper thing to say, "a good man gone to roast."

A small boy in New Haven made a sensation for a short time by quietly transferring a card bearing the words "Take one," from a lot of handbills in front of a store to a basket of oranges.

This is the way they print obituary notices in Arkansas: "W—— Y——, of Helena, on Monday, 26th inst., aged twelve years. His last words were, 'I didn't know it was loaded.'"

In New York one Templeton has been sentenced to Sing Sing seven years for shooting at his wife and not killing her. Husbands who attempt to play this little game will remember his fate, and take better aim than he did, or insanity will not save them.

At Santa Barbara, California, recently, the Press was the astonished recipient of $1,925 in gold, the gift of citizens who felt "that the Press had performed, and was still performing, a noble work for the town." Such is the reward, at very rare intervals, of those who do write.

The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher makes this comprehensive reply to an anxious questioner who is desirous of knowing whether a man can love his second wife as well as the first: "That depends on what sort of a wife the first was and what kind of life the second leads him."

A New York servant left her mistress, and took with her, as mementoes, one ring containing sixteen diamonds, two solitaires, one cameo surrounded with pearls, one oval ring with turquoises surrounding a ruby, one gold watch, a sealskin jacket, several silk dresses, etc., etc. Attentive and discriminating creature.

Charles Fleetner, age 4 years, fell yesterday from a third-story window in the house at No. 184 Greene street, and landed on his head in the mud. To the surprise of all witnesses, he picked himself up unharmed, and began playing with some children in the street. Dr. Gutman, who was called in, could discover no injuries whatever.—N. Y. Tribune.

Eliza Ann doth still continue to berate her late lord and master, Brigham, in a truly affecting manner. She says he is awfully mean to all his wives but one. Amelia, his favorite, rules him with a rod of iron. He loves, fears and obeys, and is in all respects a most thoroughly henpecked husband. The average monogamist can't help having a sort of fellow-feeling for the old sinner after all.

The people of Iowa are not so terribly smart after all! The people of Maine raise sweet corn, put it up in tin cans and sell over 100,000 of these cans of corn to the people of Iowa, where corn is so cheap that it is often used for fuel. So the Iowa farmer sells a bushel and a half of his corn for a quart of corn from Maine, and gives another half bushel to the railroad for bringing to him the quart can from Maine.

A female correspondent for a south-western paper undertakes to prescribe what is lady like and wise in manner, conversation and reading. She denounces novel reading as a waste of time, and recommends Clarke's Commentaries as a profitable substitute. She, moreover, says that talking about the "bully boy with the glass eye," or "cracking somebody in the snout," is not first family parlor chit chat. That female must be authority, for she has evidently mingled with a high grade of polished society.

The Beauregard (Miss.) Times tells of a beau who has a regard for some Miss and better times in the future, and who has set a trap for a wife. He has a bachelor's home, nicely fitted up, and in it is a dry-goods box large enough to hold a small horse and wagon. In this box he has stowed away a full set of cooking utensils, washing machine, bed quilts, trundle bed, all his nice clothes, several bars of soap, a half barrel of No. 1 mackerel, pair of baby's red shoes, a blank marriage certificate and a new bonnet. If he don't catch a wife soon we shall believe his trap is not in a good place, and advise him to move it to Nyack, New York, where there are three hundred and ninety seven girls and eighty-six handsome widows looking for just such an assortment as that Southern chap displays.

Saturday morning, the wife of Silas Davis, an aged citizen of the town of Stetson, Me., stepped into the dooryard and discovered her husband lying on the ground with the top of his skull split off, while over him was standing his son, James P. Davis, holding a bloody axe, with which the murder was done. The young man has been considered of unsound mind for some time, and was for a while confined in the State Insane Hospital, but was recently discharged as cured. He expresses no contrition for the deed and offered no violence to his mother, but at her bidding quietly put away the axe and went into the house. He quietly submitted to arrest.

GENERAL.

The English servant girls showed their Pius devotion to the Pope by Easter presents amounting to $15,000.

A decree has been issued in Madrid, calling for a levy of all persons liable to military duty and over nineteen years of age.

A fop, in company, wanting his servant, called out, "Where's that blockhead of mine?" "On your shoulders, sir," said a lady.

A grave elder in an English church forbade the banns of a certain young couple because he had "intended Hannah for himself."

Victor Emanuel is reported to have bestowed "a royal salute" upon both cheeks of the Princess Marguerite. She should have given him one in return—on his ear.

This world is all a fleeting show;
How sweet from it to pass,
To vanish up the chimney as
Carbonic acid gas!

The world is full of men who will cheerfully "boss a job" for a dollar and a half a day, when five dollars a day for actual work would not be the slightest temptation for them.

La Mothe was not a great writer, but he understood human nature. Finding that his book had a slow sale, he procured a prohibition against the reading of it, and every copy was disposed of.

M. Gustave Lemaire, who was the sole special correspondent of the Belgian newspapers during the Franco-German war, has received the decoration of the Legion of Honor from the French Government for humane services rendered during the Communist revolt.

The Carlist General Audechagna was killed in one of the engagements before Bilbao previously to the deliverance of the city by Marshal Serrano's troops. A church in San Pedro Abanto was nearly demolished by the fire of the Republicans.

A regulation black and tan poodle, to be worth $100, must have a head about the size of a black walnut; eyes that stand out of their sockets; a tail about the size of a lead pencil, and legs so attenuated that the animal falls over on his back every time he lifts his head to bark.

First ruffian.—"Wot I was hup for, and wot 'ave I got? Well, I floor'd a woman and took her watch, and I've got two years and a flogging." Second ruffian.—"Ah, I flung a woman out o' the top floor window: an' I've only got three months." First ruffian.—"Ah, but then she was yer wife."

Norway is a nice country for a young man to "live and move and have a being" in. The girls are not allowed to marry until they can cook meat properly, bake bread nicely, and knit stockings to fit them. The meat and bread can be decided upon easily enough, but how will a person know anything about the other accomplishment?

A young woman in this city attempted to poison herself one night last week. She seems to be troubled with too many lovers, and not wishing to do a greater injustice to one than to another she decided to get rid of herself, but the attempt failed and she still lives, much to her disgust no doubt.—P. E. Islander.

The "much calumniated King Herod," as Charles Lamb called him, would find certain of the Brooklyn school-rooms quite after his own heart. The Board of Health reports one school-room at least as having directly caused several deaths by its lack of ventilation. The fact, however, is ventilated, and that is a necessary preliminary to reform.

Dr. I. I. Hayes, the experienced Arctic explorer, will represent the American Geographical Society at the millennial celebration in Iceland. He will sail for England about June 1, and will sail from Dundee for Iceland, in a vessel chartered for that purpose, about June 20. He will explore portions of Iceland never before visited. He has signified his willingness to accept the company of eight gentlemen, Fellows of the Society or non-residents of New York, who will pay their proportion of expenses.

"No Friend o' the Pairty."

A gentleman from the North Shore was lately in Ottawa on Government business, and being accorded an interview with the Premier, was, while stating his case, interrupted with the following:—

McKenzie—"I understand Maister ——yer no friend o' the Pairty."

Mr. ——, "I do not come here as a politician, sir, but simply to get justice."

Mackenzie,—"Na mon, but I understand, you did na gie the Gooverument mickle justice in the late election in yer Coonty."

The interviewer is now of the opinion that the Premier places "the Pairty" before the country, and that he would make an excellent politician for a parish.—Chatham Gleaner.

The interviewer was J. C. Gough, M. P. P.
