OCTOBER IS HERE!

DON'T YOU GET LEFT.

Blow ye zephyrs from the mountains,
Pile the leaves up brown and sere,
Soon will cease the busy fountains,
Autumn drops her banner here;
Comes the cosy time of grouping
Round about the pleasant fire,
Rosy visions will be trooping,
And all prices will be higher.

Do not let that fact make sadness,
There's a balm for all life's ills;
We have yet great cause for gladness,
One which every flagon fills;
Even the surliest can be happy,
Troubles vanish light as foam;
We have still the genial Walker
Making many a hearth and home.

Never let a sorrow slay you,
Grief will pass, let pleasure reign;
Let no hindrance small delay you,
Turn to earnest toil again;
Here is one will help to brighten
Darkest days that come upon;
Burdens all will aid to lighten,
Give him only time and place.

By instalments, hope, persistence,
Paying little week by week,
By this trusty friend's assistance
Rises strong the low and weak.
Winter comes, prepare to meet him,
Housed in warmly, well defended,
Then are willing now to greet him
Whom our Walker has befriended.

A nod to the wise is sufficient. Only go in time as there never was such a rush for goods bought by instalments. Never such fine parlor even stoves as this season. Heavy all-wool Blankets, Comforters, Bed Spreads, etc., etc.
