HOME ECONOMICS

MRS. ELIZABETH KENT, MacDONALD COLLEGE.

STONE JARS.

Any food that should be kept moist to be kept fresh, may be stored in stone or earthenware jars. Recollections of a proper childhood include the cookie jar, when fat molasses cookies, raisin buns, and sugared crullers issued on joyful occasions. A row of stone jars of suitable size to the family needs, is very likely to be the sign of a well-stocked larder, equal to the needs of every day, and to the emergency of the unexpected guest. For bread, cakes or pies that are to be reheated for serving; for vegetables, such as carrots and beets, which dry out quickly; for pickles of all sorts; and for preserving eggs, earthenware crocks with well-fitting covers are invaluable. Cider vinegar and molasses seem to have a better flavor if kept in earthenware than in glass. Bacon and cheese may also be stored in stone jars. The small crocks that can be had nowadays are neat and economical of space in pantry and refrigerator.

When you are buying your kitchen equipment do not forget to look at the earthenware, to see what convenient shape and size may be offered to meet your special needs.

Any container of moist foods needs special care in cleanliness. Earthenware must be kept fresh by regular washing and thorough drying, preferably in the sun. Many a failure in preserving eggs may be traced to careless use of last year's jars without a thorough scalding and drying. Stone ware that once gets musty is likely to stay musty; it is one more of the many cases where prevention is easy, cure difficult. Moist foods, especially subject to the formation of mold, must receive good care, no matter how they are stored, and stoneware is only serviceable if it is kept entirely free of moldy foods.

(By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D., Noted Physician and Author.)

Liver for Growth.

Stopping to water the Liz at the Caledonia (N. Y.) state fish hatchery, we were fortunate enough to see how the experts raise brook trout and other fish for stocking the waters of New York. There were pools for fish of all ages and classes, from unhatched spawn to veritable old ancestors. Experience had taught the experts that the best of feeds for the very young fish is liver, fresh animal liver finely chopped, and fed at frequent intervals through the day. It is wonderful to see how rapidly the fish grow on this food.

Once on a time the butcher man used to give away liver for the asking, if you had the nerve to ask for it. To go into a butcher shop in those halcyon days and shamefacedly ask if there was any liver available was almost as difficult as it is today to ask your butcher if he has any scraps, and still not show the man your dog. Liver, then classed with sweetbreads, kidneys and such-like refuse, contained a lot of purin, that nitrogenous material from which uric acid is derived, and therefore was not a safe thing to eat. Well, maybe not for the overfed and underventilated folks of those days. "Uric acid" is no longer deemed a poison. Even the butcher today exacts a round price for liver, as, of course, he always should have done. A pound of liver—well, let us not be too hard on good old round steak; suffice it to say that a pound of liver can look two pounds of steak in the eye without the quiver of a lid.

There are other things than uric acid in liver. Vitamins galore, both water-soluble and fat-soluble vitamins. The protein or nitrogenous material of liver is quite as good in quality, biologically, as that of other meats; that is to say, the character of the protein is well suited to the requirements of nutrition.

There is an eye disease known as xerophthalmia, sore eyes (conjunctivitis), with great dryness of the eyeball and lack of the normal lustre, which is cured by the liberal use of such foods as fresh liver of chicken, pig, beef, or other animal in the diet.

Young animals do not grow normally or remain healthy if restricted to such meat as beef. They must have vitamins, and there is no better way to supply vitamins than in the form of liver, kidney, sweetbreads and the like. Glandular tissues, and the fat in and about the glands, are rich in vitamins; whereas the muscle tissues or flesh of the same animal are poor in vitamins. The marrow of bone is of the greatest value for the young growing animal. Children are animals. Any child old enough to have teeth is old enough to gnaw on a bone and suck therefrom the sweet marrow.

Cod liver oil (the fat expressed from the liver of the cod) contains vitamins, which is one reason why it is often good medicine.

"All the Boys Want a Ride on My New C.C.M."

TOMMY STEVENS has one big kick—

All the boys want to ride his new C. C. M. bicycle.

Tommy says, "The fellows pester the life out of me. Before one of them has finished a ride, some other fellow is

Coaxing for a Turn

They all seem to like my new C. C. M. a lot better than their own bikes."

Aside from this one kick, Tommy is tickled to death with his new bicycle.

He admits he can hardly blame the fellows for wanting to ride it. It runs so much easier. And when the boys ask him why, Tommy tells them about the

C.C.M. Triplex Hanger

It reduces friction. And there's a freedom from those mean "tight and loose" spots often developed by other hangers.

Tommy says, "It makes a C. C. M. bicycle run so smooth and easy you'd almost think you were riding down grade. And I can feel the Triplex fairly sizzle with power and pull away like mad when I hit her up!"

Boys! Girls! Have you ridden a C. C. M. Bicycle with the C. C. M. Triplex Hanger? Get your father to go to the dealer's with you and see one.

The New Models Are Beauties

The last word in bicycle style and smartness. Wonderfully smooth enamelling that fairly sparkles. And the "bright as sunshine" nickelling is done over copper so it can't rust.

All C. C. M. Bicycles have the New Hercules Positive Drive Coaster Brake — the kind that coasts farther and has no clumsy side arm.

The C. C. M. is "A Real Bicycle for a Real Boy."

And there's a special one that the boy won't outgrow. Equally good for a lad of nine or a youth of twenty. Step into a C.C.M. dealer's and ask to see the C. C. M. 18-in. Curved Bar Model.

SERVICE STATION C·C·M BICYCLES

THERE are over 1,000 C. C. M. Service Stations in Canada carrying genuine C.C.M. parts and giving C. C. M. service at reasonable cost. Look for the above sign.
