THE MARQUIS OF RIPON'S APPOINTMENT.

Mr. Gladstone's letter defending the appointment of the Roman Catholic Lord Ripon as Viceroy of India is considered in certain circles to be certain to prejudice the Nonconformists, especially those of Scotland, against its writer; but in the eyes of the world it is the most statesmanlike document he has yet issued. The letter was written in reply to an address at a meeting of the British Reformation Society through Lord Oranmore, containing certain resolutions on the appointment of Roman Catholic peers, Lord Ripon as Governor-General of India, and Lord Kenmare as Lord Chamberlain:

"MY LORD,—In reply to your letter enclosing a memorial from the British Reformation Society, relating to the appointments held by Lord Ripon and Lord Kenmare, I am commanded by Mr. Gladstone to inform you that the qualifications of Lord Ripon for the high office of Viceroy of India had been carefully considered by her Majesty's Government, and that her Majesty's Government repose particular confidence in the honour, integrity and impartiality of Lord Ripon, and are convinced from long experience of his personal qualities that he would never allow his own religious leanings or professions to interfere with the perfect equity of his conduct in any case where religious interests might be concerned. I am desired to add that the office of Viceroy is one detached in a remarkable degree from all direct contact with religious or ecclesiastical interests; and that in the case of the Lord Chamberlain's office, Lord Kenmare, as has been publicly stated, has by voluntary arrangement divested himself of all functions bearing upon ecclesiastical matters. I am to add further that the citation in your memorial from the work entitled 'Rome and the newest fashions in religion' is verbally accurate, but presents when taken alone an incomplete and misleading view of Mr. Gladstone's opinions which are developed in the same book.

"I have, &c., "Your, etc.,
(Signed) "J. A. GODLEY."

A thousand cotton spinners wrecked and set fire to a mill in Barcelona, Province of Catalonia, Spain, to-day. The police and military quenched the flames and arrested the leaders of the mob. When order was restored the prefect issued a decree to dissolve every trade union in Catalonia. Barcelona, as the capital of the Province, contains immense woollen, cotton, and calico mills. In all these branches of industry trades' unions were formed some years ago for the protection of the operatives, and the forced dissolution of these unions may cause considerable trouble.

THE COMMUNISTS.

The first sign of the Communist demonstration, at Paris, on Sunday, was given by the assembling of a small knot of people around the Bastile column. These people were soon ordered to disperse. Shortly after two men arrived carrying red wreaths, but they were immediately arrested. This caused a crowd of 500, which subsequently gathered, to make an unsuccessful attempt at rescue. Several of the would-be rescuers were arrested. Three persons arrested were eventually discovered to be newspaper reporters and were immediately released. Later on a procession of 600, many carrying red bouquets and wreaths, defiled in front of the wall where the Communists were shot in 1871, and placed flowers against the wall as they passed.
