CANADA SURPRISED HIM.

Chat With a South Australian Government Commissioner

On an Investigating Tour Around the World—Canadian Climate and Products Surprised Him—Snow a Curiosity.

Mr. Fred C. Smith, of Adelaide, horticultural commissioner for the South Australian Government, is in the city, en route around the globe. His official mission is to inquire into the horticulture of the various countries of the earth for the information of the government which he represents. He has spent several months in California, a week in Oregon, some time in British Columbia and the Northwest, and a period at the World's Fair. Mr. Smith is the son of a foremost Australian horticulturist, and is a recognized authority on the subject. He is also a journalist of prominence, and corresponds for several of the leading papers of his own country.

"This is my first visit to Canada," said Mr. Smith to an ADVERTISER reporter yesterday morning. "I am both delighted and surprised at what I have seen. The people of Australia have very little knowledge of your country, which they look upon as a region in the frozen north. A visit would soon correct that impression. I was astonished at the fine climate and the horticultural possibilities of your Northwest. Why, you grow every fruit that we do in Australia, with the exception of oranges, apricots and other tropical products. I thought to have found there an export market for our fruits."

"What do you think of the World's Fair?"

"Words cannot describe it. I spent most of my time in the horticultural building, where I had plenty of opportunity to examine Canadian fruits. Your exhibit should open the eyes of the world to Canada's resources. I was much interested in your grapes and had no idea your country grew such variety and quality. Grapes are an immense factor in Australian horticulture."

"I hope to see better trade relations established between the two countries," continued Mr. Smith. "As British colonies we should know more of each other. I shall advise Australians to see Canada when they go to the United States. Very few of them think it worth the trouble at present. There is room, I think for a profitable interchange of products between us."

Mr. Smith lives in the southern part of Australia, and isn't a great way from the equator. "We very rarely see snow there," said he. "Once some of it accumulated on the top of a mountain near by. A snowball was made of it and placed on exhibition in a jeweler's window. It attracted great crowds. One of the most novel sensations I ever experienced was a snowfall in the Selkirks in British Columbia. I stood on the car platform to watch it during the journey."

The commissioner thinks Ontario a model province, and London one of the prettiest of cities. He leaves at once for Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa and Quebec; thence for England, Holland and other European counties; thence to India, China, Japan, Borneo and home again. He expects to reach his native land in September. Mr. Smith is politically a free trader.

The great lung healer is found in the excellent medicine sold as Fickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membrane of the throat and air passages and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, pain or soreness in the chest, bronchitis, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption.
