ST. THOMAS ALERT GRID SQUAD DOES PRACTICE

Twenty-Five Candidates Turn Out For Signal Drill At Armories.

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Sept. 5.—The Athletics held another signal practice at the armories tonight, about 25 candidates turning out for the team. All candidates were given an opportunity to work in the positions at which they are hoping to land a regular berth, so that spare players will be as fully conversant with the system of play as the regulars. Capt. Bill Johns of the Westen U. squad had charge of the men, and expects to put a good aggregation of ball handlers on the athletic gridiron Saturday afternoon, when the Athletics oppose Sarnia.

Don McCrimmon, who was rated as one of the coming rugby players at Queen's University, showed up well in tonight's practice, and will be one of the main strengths on the line. Bruce Shaw, manager of the collegiate team twenty years ago, was another man who looked good.

"Cy" Pook, the light heavyweight boxer champion of the Dominion, was fulfilling the duties of snap back and with a little more coaching should be a whirlwind at that position. Fred Baldwin, a member of the Illinois Athletic Club, looks like the best man in the back field division.

GUELPH LEAF CUBS WIN ROUND WITH BRANTS

Took Yesterday's Mix 16--8, and Meet Hamilton Next.

Guelph, Sept. 5.—The Maple Leaf Cubs of this city went into the second round of the O. B. A. A. juvenile series when they defeated the Tigers of Brantford here this afternoon by a score of 16 to 8. The Cubs also won the first game at Brantford a week ago Saturday. They will meet the Typo Juveniles of Hamilton in the next round. There was only a small crowd on hand to witness the game today, but there was plenty of excitement, as at one stage of the game the visitors were leading by a score of 8 to 3, having scored seven runs in the fourth inning on some heavy hitting off Stevenson, the Cubs' hurler. He was replaced by Greenway, who allowed but one hit for the balance of the game, a double by the first batter to face him. After that he was the whole works. Neziol started for Brantford, but had to be taken out in the sixth, being succeeded by Radiff, who had been playing short, but he was just as easy as his team mate. The Cubs amassed a total of 20 hits, Lamont leading his team with five safe ones out of six times at bat. There were numerous errors in the first part of the game, but after the teams got settled away they improved in their playing, and some smart work was pulled off.

The score:

		R.	H.	E.
Brantford	001 700 000—	8	7	6
Guelph	300 041 35x—16	20	3

Batteries: Brantford—Neziol, Radiff and Sulski. Guelph — Stevenson, Greenaway and Gray.

Umpires—Hogan and Elliott.

Entries for the L. R. C.'s postponed Labor Day tourney close tonight. Forty-two entries have already been received, and six more are required. The draw will be published in Friday papers.

Wilkey and Hall won the Scotch doubles matinee at the club Wednesday afternoon. The first three winners were: Wilkey and Hall, F. Wilson and F. Brown, C. Walker and Donaldson.

McCLARYS CHAMPS.

Tom Cornelius' McClary rink won the finals of the Inter-Club Bowling League series last night, defeating J. W. Hunt's Dorchester four, 22—18.

The McClary quartet will keep the summer trophy for a year.

LUCAN MEETS WINGHAM.

Lucan, Sept. 4.—The first clash in the semi-final series between the Irish nine, winners of group 4 of the N. W. B. A., and Wingham Seniors will be played here Saturday starting at 4:30 p.m. The winner of this series will enter the finals for the championship.

The second game of the semi-finals will be played in Wingham next Thursday.

Associated Press Despatch.

Has De Forest Turned Foe?

He can't fathom Jimmy's silent visit to his camp.

—By LUIS ANGEL FIRPO

Special to The Advertiser.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 5.—"Today Jimmy Deforest, my old trainer, came to my camp, and did not speak to me. I do not know why, for a long time we were more than trainer and prize fighter. We were friends. It is true that I paid him to work for me, but I never felt towards him like an employer to an employee. No, he was my friend, and I was his friend. It was always so.

"Then came the time when it seemed to me that I could no longer employ him to advantage. It was not that he was no longer my friend. No, it was simply that I thought he was no longer of any use to me as an employee. When he parted he acted as though he were still my friend. He said that he wished me the best of luck and that he was sure I would be successful. From the time I parted with him until now, I had thought we were friends. Then today he came to my camp, while I was sparring, and did not come to see me. He did not even say 'Hello Luis.' No, he was there, but he acted as a stranger.

"Newspaper men tell me that he talked of me to them. They say that he said unkind thing of me. I do not know why. I do not understand. If my old trainer Jimmy Deforest is angry with me, then I am sorry. He was my friend, and I do not like to lose a friend. But if he is no longer my friend then I do not care what he shall say of me. One does not expect that an enemy shall speak words of praise.

"On Thursday, I shall do no training. Some have said that I am not training hard enough. I am rather afraid that I shall train too hard." You say sometimes of a man who does well in the training camp and badly in the ring that he 'left his fight on the road.' You mean by that, as I understand it, that he used up in training all that energy that should have gone into making the great effort in the fight.

"I am careful that I do not make that mistake. I have been working hard, much harder than some of the newspaper man who do not watch me all the time think. I work hard in the early morning, on the beach, when the newspapermen are still in bed, perhaps. Certainly I do not see them there in the early morning to watch me. Then in the afternoon when I spar, it may look, to those who are not in the ring, as though I did not work hard, but if you ask my sparring partners, perhaps they will tell you that I work hard enough.

"I feel that I can with advantage take one day's rest, and I am sure that my sparring partners will benefit by the vacation. I am sure that it will be a good thing for me, and that on Friday I will begin again the work of preparation for the great fight, stronger and better for the day of rest."

Dempsey Starts Hurricane Finish To Condition Grind

Sparring Partners Under Orders To Discard Wraps and Give Champ All They've Got—Loses Burke, Who Battles Tunney On Friday.

By ROBERT EDGREN.
Copyright.
Special to The Advertiser.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Jack Dempsey is starting a hurricane finish to the training season for his fight with Luis Firpo. From today on, his sparring partners will have to take a lot of hard knocks. But as they outnumber the champion half a dozen to one, and are all instructed to reach him with every punch they can put over, and sock as hard as they can, Dempsey isn't starting any picnic for himself. Jack Burke will be absent from the melee for a couple of days. He has an engagement of some importance himself, as he is to meet Gene Tunney for the American light-heavyweight title on Friday evening. Dempsey is very much interested in Burke's chance to become a champion. "Burke weighs 175 pounds now," Dempsey said at dinner last night, "and he's fast at that weight." He can sock, too, and he can take 'em. The harder I hit him the harder he fights. I wouldn't be surprised to see him beat anybody at the light-heavyweight limit.

George Godfrey, the clever 200-pound colored boy who does much of the hard fighting with Dempsey, hasn't had much luck with his ring engagements while acting as sparring partner. At Shelby, Godfrey was to have fought in the semi-final to the Dempsey-Gibbons match and unfortunately failed to remove his ribs from the path of one of Dempsey's hard right punches a week before the engagement. The ligaments holding said ribs in place were pulled loose and Godfrey was plastered up for a month and couldn't box anybody.

Hard Luck Again.

Last week Godfrey went away from Saratoga, with Jack's blessing, to fight Bill Tate, Dempsey's old sparring partner. Jack thought it would be a great joke if Godfrey knocked Tate out. Godfrey was in fine shape, but his luck failed again. Somebody skipped with the gate receipts on the night of the show, and there was no fight. Godfrey came back here to Saratoga to be one of Dempsey's hired help again. Fortunately, Dempsey is loose with his money as far as his boys are concerned. He pays them well for the thumps they give and take.

The day of rest indulged in by the champion after Labor Day's hard work gone through to please the big crowd, did him a lot of good. He was full of pep and in good humor.

"I have my own way of training," Dempsey said. "I train a long time, but I don't train hard every day. In the old days when fighters didn't take care of themselves between fights, they had to sweat out a lot of stuff with hard work. I always take care of my condition. I train a little all the time, and I don't drink or smoke or do anything else to hurt myself as a fighter. I know no champion will last forever, and I intend to last as long as I can. When I'm licked, it's going to be because I met a better man, and not because I threw the championship away. I wish I'd known what I know now when I was a boy. I traveled with a hard crowd for a while. But then I began to meet better people and I wanted to be like them. I cut the tough bunch cold. They never forgave me for it and I never went back.

Has Right To Improve.

A fellow has a right to study and learn and improve himself, and if you're with a bunch that can't see it that way—just wants to hang on to you and drag you down—the best thing is to drop them and drop them hard. I've started to learn a lot of things, and when I'm through fighting nobody's ever going to point at me and say, "See that poor bum—that's Jack Dempsey. He used to be a pretty good fighter, but he just like the rest of the bums—no brains."

Dempsey's theory of training includes a complete rest for a day or so whenever he feels that he is getting into ring condition too soon.

"I could have been ready for Firpo in just about two weeks," he said. "I trained hard for Gibbons, went hunting and fishing in the mountains after that fight, and was almost ready to fight again any time. But people don't think you mean it unless you train a month or six weeks. So I am putting in a lot of time. I lay off when I'm getting too near on edge, and figure my work to bring me to my best trim September 14. I'll be just right on that day."

Dempsey declines to hazard any guess about the length of the fight.

"I always try to get these big fellows quick," he said. "What's the use of letting them stay? They might put one over on me any time. I figure a fellow like Firpo isn't whipped until he's counted out. I'll get him with the first punch if I have a chance, or in the first round. They say he's the strongest man I ever fought. He may be able to take it, and then it's a case of which of us will weaken first. I'm ready for anything that happens. I make my fighting plan right in the ring after the fight starts, when I find what the other fellow has. These birds that plan their fight in advance are likely to get socked. They have one thing in mind, when they ought to be ready for anything. You can tell the world for me that it'll be short and sweet if I can make it that way, but that I'm not underestimating Firpo. He's a big, tough fellow who can sock, and nobody can tell me that kind of a fighter hasn't always got a chance. I don't expect an easy fight."

Ticket Rush Grows.

The rush for tickets in New York has grown so strong that speculators are now charging prices based entirely on the number of rows from the ring. The law limits seat prices at any boxing match in New York to $25 a seat, with war tax added, making $27.50. Seats within rows back are selling for $85 a pair. Seats in the front rows have sold, in some cases, as high as $100 a seat. The speculators have blocks of seats and there is little trouble in buying five or ten seats together in any row from the sixth back, if you have the price and don't care for money. The only question a speculator asks, when the tickets are applied for, is, "Where do you want them?"

The official ticket sale at the Garden is practically finished, as there are few tickets left. There is no doubt that much of the original ticket buying has been done by speculators, who got the jump on the general public and are now making the public pay fancy prices. According to Tex Rickard, people who pay big prices for ringside seats close to the ring are going to be stung, as the ring platform has been built unusually high, and those seated farther back will have a better view of the fight.

Detroit, Sept. 5.—After being beaten in the first heat Jane R. came back to win the next two and the major portion of the $3000 Wolverine Stake, that featured the racing card at the Michigan Short Ship meet today.

WILLS GETS INJUNCTION OUT AGAINST BIG FIGHT

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Sept. 5.—Paddy Mullins, manager for Harry Wills, heavyweight boxing championship aspirant, obtained an order in Brooklyn courts today directing Tex Rickard to show cause why a writ should not be issued restraining the conduct of the Dempsey-Firpo fight on Sept 14.

In his argument order Mullins declared that if the fight between Dempsey and Firpo occurs as scheduled Wills will be champion under the rules of the New York Boxing Commission, because of Dempsey's failure to meet him. He says Wills is the logical opponent of Dempsey, because he had $2,500 forfeit posted for more than a year.

Tex Rickard, when informed that Mullins had obtained an order to show cause, said the news meant nothing to him.

"If he had any legal means to stop the fight he would have done it long ago," he said. "But Mullins has no contract for Wills to fight Dempsey, and no right to one. He had a chance to sign a contract to fight Firpo, and he still has, any time he wants to come and sign."

With the score tied in the fifth, Anderson tripled, sending in the winning runs. In the second game Hanson held Newark to one hit, while the locals touched McGarry for seven. Four of these were bunched in the second inning, which, with three passes, netted four runs and victory.

CLEARVILLE FISHERMAN SAY CATCH IS POOR

Duart, Sept. 5.—The Clearville fishermen have had a very poor season so far, the catch being exceptionally light. Unless the fall season proves more remunerative, the entire catch for the season will not cover the operating outlay. Other points along this part of the lake shore report the same condition.

SABINE KEEPS HIS QUOITING TITLE

Beats Callendar 61--38—Reed of Delaware Beaten.

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, Sept. 5. — Robert Sabine today retained the international quoiting championship by defeating Ex-Champion Robert Callender of Toronto Victorias by a score of 61—38. The champion was always best. He had lost none of his cunning in finding the peg. Callender, despite his many years at quoiting, kept the champion always right on the peg. One other game, which attracted the fans' attention, was the duel between Reid of Delaware and Hunter of Woodstock for third place in the first series. The local man was pitching a nice quoit, and he kept ahead after the first few ends. Today's play:

DOWN AND PRING HELP GROOM SAINT BATTERS

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Sept. 5.—"Hank" Down, and Pring of the London senior club are scheduled to work against George Nethercott's team in batting practice at Pinafore Park Thursday and Friday nights. In the past few games the locals have been putting up a wonderful exhibition in the field, not a possible chance in the infield being passed, but the hitting has fallen off somewhat. Friendly Graham, who will likely oppose the Saints, is due for a warm reception if the St. Thomas boys have any say in the matter. Every member of the team is intent upon getting at least one single off the Galt hurler, and if some of the swatters have it their way there will be more than a single lifted up. Manager Nethercott this evening was undecided who he would send against the Terriers, but both Billings and McPhee are going good and with the kind of support that was given the Chatham series should have nothing to worry about from the Galt bunch. A special train of twelve coaches has been chartered on the C. P. R. and tickets to the Galt ball field and grandstand will be sold by Secretary Dake on the train. The special will leave the M. C. R. depot at 11:30 and start on the return journey from Galt at 8 o'clock.
