MONCTON

Moncton, N. B., Aug. 6—Henry Nooles, the Englishman who assaulted I. C. R. Baggage Master Forbes here a few days ago, elected to be tried by Judge Forbes, and at Dorchester today pleaded guilty. He ascribed his offence to liquor, said he was drunk at the time. In answer to Judge Forbes, Nooles said he had been out from England for a few weeks.

The judge remanded the prisoner to jail under suspended sentence, and said he would inquire into his case, with a view of having him deported back to England. Judge Forbes remarked he did not think that the expense of keeping this man in the penitentiary two or three years should be saddled upon the country. The prisoner seemed to feel his position keenly. Baggage-Master Forbes, who was assaulted, has been laid up since the assault, but is improving.

HOPEWELL CAPE

Hopewell Cape, Aug. 8—The matter of a cause in the parish of Hopewell stipendiary's civil court wherein George W. Newcomb is plaintiff and Daniel O. Woodworth is defendant, has created quite a stir in legal circles during the past two weeks.

The plaintiff, a leading merchant of the parish, having an alleged claim against the defendant for goods sold and delivered, swore out an affidavit upon which a writ of capias was issued by Police Magistrate Stuart, and Provincial Constable James W. Kinnie arrested the defendant, who immediately gave bail. On the day for trial, the parties were in court as follows: The plaintiff, with A. W. Bray acting in his behalf; the defendant, with E. E. Peck.

The case occupied two days and at the close of the plaintiff's case a number of the items in his particulars were withdrawn.

Mr. Peck moved for a non-suit on the grounds taken at the opening of the court and on the further ground that plaintiff had failed to prove the sale and delivery of the goods set out in the particulars.

The non-suit was refused and the defence declined to call any witnesses and judgment was signed Aug. 2 in favor of the plaintiff for $72.71.

The defendant applied for a copy for review. Mr. Bray then demanded an execution and had it immediately placed in the hands of the same constable who served the capias.

On the morning of Aug. 3 the constable went to the defendant's house to execute the execution and was met by the defendant and served with the certificate but he told the defendant the certificate was no use to him, and promptly took him to jail.

Mr. Peck, learning of the move of the constable who drove by a back road to the jail, took the front road and on reaching the shiretown met the officer only a few rods from the jail, having placed the defendant behind the bars.

The proper affidavits were quickly prepared and before the day was done C. Lionel Hanington, acting on behalf of the prisoner, appeared before Justice Hanington for an order, under section 4 of chapter 133 of the Consolidated Statutes of N. B. The order was issued and served upon the plaintiff, the justice and the jailer.

The argument took place on the 6th inst. at Dorchester, C. Lionel Hanington for the applicant, W. B. Chandler, K. C., for the plaintiff, who was also present. Mr. Bray and Mr. Peck were also present watching the matter for their respective clients.

Mr. Hanington argued that the certificate obtained by the defendant from the magistrate was intended by the statute to stay the execution of the execution.

Mr. Chandler replied arguing ably to the contrary and citing from 24th N. B. Reports and the case Youngclaus vs. Wallace in support of his contention.

The judge's decision was that under chapter 122 of the Consolidated Statutes N. B. 1903, section 11, the service of the certificate on the constable should have stayed the execution of the execution, and that the defendant was illegally arrested and in jail on said execution, and an order for the discharge of the defendant was made. His honor pointed out wherein the cases cited differed from this one.

Mr. Chandler asked the judge by his order to exempt the plaintiff and constable from actions at law by the defendant for false arrest and imprisonment but this request was not complied with.

This is a decision which will assist constables to better understand the significance of a certificate issued by a magistrate after judgment.

BOY'S LIFE GIVEN FOR THAT OF PLAYMATE

Rescued Companion from Water, But Tetanus Came from Scratch of Shell.

New York, Aug. 8.—Harry Leroy Whitty, nine years old, who lived with his parents at Walden (N. Y.), died in Fordham hospital yesterday morning. He had given his life to save that of a playmate.

Young Whitty's father is a well-to-do merchant. Harry and a band of playmates were swimming in the Wallkill river, near Walden, a week ago last Saturday, when one of the boys, Joseph Kent, cried for help. He had been taken with a cramp. The Whitty boy, without a moment's delay, jumped into the water from a wharf. There was not much depth to the water, but it took all the little fellow's strength to pull his playmate up on the shore.

As he was tugging at his friend's limp body young Whitty cut his hand on a shell. The flow of blood was stanched and nothing was thought of it until several days later, when it began to pain and swell. A local physician, fearing tetanus, advised the boy's removal to Fordham hospital, where better treatment could be had. The wound seemed to yield to the physician's skill at first, but on Monday the dreaded tetanus developed and the boy soon died. Dr. Taft said the tetanus came so quickly there was no chance of saving him.

Flats at £3,000 a Year.

The most splendid set of flats in London—probably the most splendid in the world—will shortly be erected on the site of the late Duke of Cambridge's house in Park Lane. They will cover an area of 13,000 feet, with an exceedingly large frontage to Piccadilly and Park Lane; and the position, commanding fine views of both Hyde Park and the Green Park, is generally regarded as one of the finest in London.

The building, of white terracotta, will cost at least £150,000 to erect, and will certainly be much more luxurious than the finest flats of either Paris or New York. Each will extend the whole length of the building, and will have a depth of about 230 feet and a frontage of 60 feet, and each suite will contain about 16 rooms. The rent? A mere trifle of £3,000 a year. That is to say, for the three lower floors you will pay £3,000 a year per flat; but if you are one of those poor people who cannot afford as much, you can have one of the two upper flats for £2,000 a year.

New York, Aug. 7—William S. Alley, for twenty-nine years a member of the New York Stock Exchange, shot and killed himself in the Larchmont Yacht Club late Monday night. Failing health and recent financial reverses that had forced him to sell his seat on the stock exchange are believed to have been the causes.

The formal transfer of his seat was to have taken place Tuesday. By killing himself before the transfer became effective he saved to his wife and children $10,000 insurance in the stock exchange gratuity fund.

As the receipts from the sale of the seat would have been swallowed up by creditors' claims, the only assets the former wealthy broker could leave to his family was the gratuity fund insurance. That is exempt from stock exchange claims, and it is believed he took this into consideration in shooting himself.

Twice in his career on the stock exchange Mr. Alley had failed, the last time on July 11, 1906. He was once suspended with eleven other firms on a charge of maintaining wire connections with the Consolidated Exchange. Last May he filed a petition in bankruptcy, showing liabilities of $191,331. His assets consisted of little else than his stock exchange seat. In the days of his prosperity Mr. Alley maintained offices at No. 45 Broadway, but in recent years he had only desk room in the offices of Sussdorf Brothers, at No. 43 Exchange place.

Mr. Alley organized the firm of Alley, Conger & Co., and after the dissolution of that partnership organized W. S. Alley & Co. That firm also dissolved. He was a specialist in certain lines of securities. He had a wide acquaintance in financial and business circles and until recent years was considered a very wealthy man.

Much of Mr. Alley's time was spent at the Larchmont Yacht Club and in sailing his boats on the Sound. He was considered one of the most proficient sailors along the coast and took great pride in his ability. At one time he was commodore of the Larchmont Yacht Club. His home was near the club.

Mr. Alley spent Monday afternoon at the club. He went home for dinner, but returned in the evening and spent an hour pacing the veranda. He appeared to be nervous and fellow yachtsmen noticed that he talked to himself. Going into the club he sought a secluded room. A shot was heard from the room and servants found the broker stretched upon the floor with his revolver beside him, a bullet wound in his head. He was still alive. He died unconscious in an ambulance on the way to the New Rochelle Hospital, where an operation was to be performed.

After his financial reverses began to weigh on him Mr. Alley's friends in the financial district noticed that he was failing in health rapidly. Many predictions were made that he would not live long after the sale of his seat on the stock exchange. Notice of the sale of the seat to Edgar J. Mayer was posted July 27.

BIGGEST LOCOMOTIVE IN WORLD CHRISTENED

Schenectady, N. Y., Aug. 8—The largest locomotive in the world was christened today at the local plant of the American Locomotive Company. A bottle of champagne was broken over the pilot and the monster locomotive given an official name, Angus.

The locomotive is the first of three heavy freight pushers ordered by the Erie railroad. It has four cylinders and is in reality two locomotives combined. The total weight is 673,000 pounds, well distributed over the sixteen driving wheels. The boiler pressure is 215 pounds, which means that the locomotive is capable of hauling on the level 210 loaded freight cars, or a train a mile and a half long. The hauling capacity is double that of any other locomotive now in the service of the road.
