Weddings

Crocker-MacDonald.

A wedding of interest to many friends in New Brunswick took place in the Central Congregational church, Boston, on November 23, 1921, when Miss Merle MacDonald, daughter of Mrs. Alexander MacDonald, of Bootown, N. B., was united in marriage to Bensa Crocker, jr., of Boston. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Willard Sperry, pastor of the church in the presence of the immediate families of the contracting parties. The bride was supported by her sister, Miss Agnes MacDonald, and the groom by Major Robert B. Greene.

The groom is one of the best known of the young business men of the "hub," being head of the firm of Crocker & Co., importers and brokers. During the war he served in the American aviation corps and has not lost his love of the air game since, as he maintains five aeroplanes of his own at Cape Cod, his summer home. He is a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery as well as several of the most prominent clubs of Boston. Mrs. George W. Currie, Queen street, is a sister of the bride.

Strength

Strength of muscle does not indicate strength of nerves. On this account many people who look healthy enough suffer from nervous troubles and cannot understand what is ailing them. Sleeplessness and irritability are among the early symptoms. Indigestion and tired feelings soon follow.

Read this letter from an Ontario man:

Mr. W. L. Gregory, Charles St. E., Ingersoll, Ont., writes:

"I had been troubled for quite a while with indigestion. At times there would be a twitching of the nerves of my stomach; and I also found it difficult to get a good night's sleep. I am a moulder, and owing to the nature of my work my system became run-down. I took a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found great benefit from this medicine. They did me a great deal of good. I have not been bothered at all with indigestion since, and can sleep much better. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends, as I think it splendid for anyone run-down and needing a tonic."

A. P. Allen sub-deacon and Rev. W. Duke was master of ceremonies, and His Lordship Bishop LeBlanc gave the final absolution. Interment was in the old Catholic cemetery.

A STUDY OF OLD AGE

is always interesting and reveals the fact that the blood is usually thin and lacking in the strengthening properties of young folks blood. If you want to fill your blood with the fire of youth, build up your strength, restore your nerves, just use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. This wonderful medicine is a grand system regulator. Keeps the bowels in good condition, keeps the body free from waste and impurities. For young and old the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills is recommended. 25c at all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Montreal.

VISCOUNT BRYCE DIES SUDDENLY

Served as British Ambassador to U. S.—Widely Known as Man of Letters.

London, Jan. 22—(By the Associated Press)—Viscount Bryce died at Sidmouth today.

The end came peacefully and somewhat suddenly. Viscount Bryce had been staying at Sidmouth for the past three weeks and was extremely energetic to the last.

As a man of letters and a publicist, Viscount Bryce was a world figure. Outside of his own country he was best known in the United States, where since the early eighties his interests had so largely centered that he was sometimes styled an "English Yankee." One remarkable thing repeatedly said of him was that he knew America better than most Americans. His work entitled "The American Commonwealth" has been a standard textbook in the schools of the United States for the past generation—providing the spectacle of a foreigner instructing Americans in the workings and structure of their own life and as de roequeville had done to some extent years previously in his "Democracy in America."

Through his book, through innumerable addresses in this country, and through five years service as the British Ambassador in Washington, Viscount Bryce became one of the most notable human links in the chain of friendly relations between the United States and Great Britain. The extent to which he made his personality felt is explained in part by the fact that while he was a scholar and statesman of the highest rank he always could be found willing to meet people and to discuss publicly and in a friendly way topics of national and international interest.

He was a man of varied achievements, and mere references to his interest in America does not by any means sum up his remarkable career. He was called "the most versatile living Englishman," which would be true says one biographer, had he not been born in Ireland, son of a Scotch father and Irish mother, and educated in Glasgow, whence he went to Oxford. He was born in Belfast May 10, 1838; his father being the Rev. James Bryce of Glasgow, a clergyman of the established church; and his mother, Margaret (Young) Bryce of County Antrim, Ireland. He was educated in the high school and University of Glasgow and subsequently gained a scholarship at Oxford, from which he obtained his B. A. degree in 1862 and his D. C. L., in 1870. He afterwards added to his honors degrees in many of the most famous universities in the world.

As a matter of dates it is interesting that in 1863, the year of his graduation from Oxford, when he was only 24 years old, appeared his "Holy Roman Empire," a work which has come to be used in colleges and universities the world over, and which like his "American Commonwealth" reflects remarkable capacity for research and philosophical vision. The "Holy Roman Empire" was an expansion of the Arnold Prize Essay which he delivered at his graduation from Oxford.

In 1886 he was appointed Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs; he served as Chancellor for the Duchy of Lancaster, which gave him a seat in the Gladstone Cabinet and he was president of the Board of Trade in the Rosebery government. With the Liberals in power again in 1906 Mr. Bryce was made Chief Secretary for Ireland, a post for which he had been eminently fitted, as he had been a friend to Ireland and an exponent of Home Rule. After holding this post for thirteen months in the Campbell-Bannerman Ministry he resigned to accept King Edward VII's appointment of him as Ambassador to the United States to succeed Sir Henry Mortimer Durand.

The appointment met with universal approval on both sides of the Atlantic. At a farewell dinner given him by the Pilgrim Society in London Mr. Bryce was highly honored in tributes from many distinguished men, and in the United States he was warmly welcomed as a great asset in the preservation of friendly relations between the English speaking peoples. He held candor to be the keynote of successful diplomacy and during his incumbency at Washington he discussed treaty and publicity all questions which came up to threaten the harmony of existing relations. Among the important disputes that were settled through his diplomatic skill was the Newfoundland fisheries controversy, which went to the Hague tribunal. He also handled the general arbitration treaty of 1908 between the United States and Great Britain and was also prominently associated in the settlement of disputes involving this country and Canada, one being the famous waterways treaty, and the international boundary line. In connection with the Canadian reciprocity negotiations, Mr. Bryce was also much in the public eye, appearing in favor of the scheme, which, however, collapsed on referendum to the Canadian people.

Lord Bryce's own story of how he came to write "The American Commonwealth" was told by him at a Pilgrim Society dinner in New York some years ago. He had read extensively of America for seventeen years previous to his first visit here in 1870, but his actual contact with this country was had through only three "flying visits" as he called them before he wrote his book. "It never occurred to me that my book would be read by more than a few persons on this side of the Atlantic" said he, "so I could speak with more freedom."

"I wrote it for Europeans—those benighted Europeans who did not know what America was and what she would become. And the book was really written by yourselves. It was put together out of many conversations I had not only with statesmen in the halls of Congress, but at dinner parties, on the decks of steamships, in smoking cars, with drivers of wagons on western prairies, with ward politicians and city bosses."

After the minutes had been read and adopted the report of the directors was read. They referred to the successful year which had just been closed and the improvement which had been made in the appearance of the cemetry. The erection of the vault, which would accommodate 80 to 90 bodies, and did away with the necessity for opening graves in the winter time. The installation of the new water system, the building of a new barn and other improvements which had been made. The report also contained a resolution of regret on the death of R. O. Jones, for several years president of the company.

The report of the auditor was as follows:

"I have audited the books of the Cedar Hill Cemetery Company, Ltd., and find an accurate and complete record of all transactions for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1921, and ending Dec. 31, 1911. I have checked the receipts and disbursements and find receipted bills on file to voucher all monies paid out. The total for the year amounted to $3,908.11, and the current expenditure to $3,365.40, and special expenditure $851.82. For all these items there was on file vouchers. The books were kept in an excellent manner, and credit is due to the efficient treasurer, who is responsible for the same.

Respectfully submitted,

H. MARSHALL STOUT.

The board of directors were re-elected en bloc, James Williamson being chosen to fill the vacancy due to the death of Mr. Jones.

Sage And Sulphur Darkens Gray Hair

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Restore Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Almost every one knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago, the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is musty and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Bogus Quarters Are Being Circulated On The Border

Canadian Penny When Silver Plated Looks Like Twenty-Five Cents.

Calais, Jan. 23.—Canadian penny pieces of the 1917 issue, having the head of King George, silver-plated and resembling the Canadian 25-cent piece of the 1920 issue, have made their appearance on the border. Four of these coins were found when the receipts of the basketball game were counted up last night, having easily got by the ticket sellers as nothing of the kind has been known here before. How many more are in circulation is not known as this is the first discovery made public. Now everyone is looking closely at their Canadian silver.

Are You Human?

A little baby. A little child. Don't they appeal to you? Doesn't your heart yearn to pick them up, to cuddle them close to you, to shield them from all harm? sure it does else you're not human. Being human you love them. Their very helplessness makes you reach out in all your strength to aid them. In health there's no flower so beautiful. In illness there's no night so black.

Save them then. Use every precaution. Take no chance.

When sickness comes, as sickness will, remember it's just a baby, just a child and if the Physician isn't at hand don't try some remedy that you may have around the house for your own use.

Fletcher's Castoria was made especially for babies' ills and you can use it with perfect safety as any doctor will tell you. Keep it in the house.

CASTORIA

A Word About Truth.

"Great is Truth, and mighty above all things." So says the Old Testament, yet it is equally true to-day. Truth shows no favors, fears no enemies.

From the inception of Fletcher's Castoria, Truth has been the watchword, and to the conscientious adherence to this motto in the preparation of Fletcher's Castoria as well as in its advertising is due the secret of its popular demand.

All imitations, all substitutes, all just-as-good preparations lack the element of Truth, lack the righteousness of being, lack all semblance even in the words of those who would deceive.

And your Mothers, mothers with the fate of the World in your hands, can you be deceived? Certainly not.

Fletcher's Castoria is prepared for Infants and Children. It is distinctly a remedy for the little ones. The BABY'S need for a medicine to take the place of Castor Oil, Paregoric and Soothing Syrups was the sole thought that led to its discovery. Never try to correct BABY'S troubles with a medicine that you would use for yourself.
