TWO CHALLENGES BY MR. ROWELL

Asks Whitney What About Bilingual Schools and Treatment of New Ontario.

LINDSAY'S BIG WELCOME

The Liberal Leader Arouses Big Audience by Scathing Indictment of Conservative Administration.

Lindsay, Nov. 21.—Two definite challenges were flung down to Sir James Whitney and his followers by the Liberal leader, Mr. N. W. Rowell, K. C., here tonight: one with reference to the treatment of New Ontario, the other regarding the bilingual schools. These formed Mr. Rowell's leading arguments in tonight's speech here, though he dealt also with several other questions. Speaking of the "inertia" charged against the Department of Agriculture by Mr. J. W. Flavelle, Mr. Rowell asked: "Is it any wonder that Ontario does not go ahead, when scarcely a minister will venture to do anything off his own bat, and Sir James Whitney undertakes to run the whole Government himself? Is it not time to put out this Government and put in its place another, a more progressive Government, and, I hope, a more progressive leader." Sir James Whitney can be bold and courageous and almost insulting," declared Mr. Rowell, "when the temperance people go to him, but when the spoils faction of the Conservative party wants to use the license system to further its interests, according to the Toronto News, it controls Mr. Whitney and his associates."

A Warm Greeting.

Mr. Rowell's frank, outspoken declarations of policy on the leading planks discussed by him won the warm approval of the audience.

The large audience in the Opera House accorded Mr. Rowell a warm greeting. Little Marion White, daughter of the chairman, Dr. J. A. White, president of the West Victoria Liberal Association, presented Mr. Rowell with a beautiful bouquet of carnations, for which he thanked her in the orthodox way.

The auditorium was gaily decorated, streamers bearing the legends: "A Good Platform and a Good Leader," "Majority Rule, It's British," and "No Tax on Improvements." A fine orchestra enlivened the proceedings.

Following the meeting a reception was held for Mr. Rowell on the platform and another at the hotel.

The Liberal candidate for West Victoria, Mr. C. E. Weeks, a barrister of Woodville, made a splendid speech, dealing with a number of the issues in the present campaign.

Bilingual Schools.

"The failure of the Government to frankly state its position on the question of bilingual schools," said Mr. Rowell in the course of his address, "and its evident desire to run with the fox and to hunt with the hounds is largely responsible for the widespread agitation which is disturbing the public mind today in this province. Sir James evidently hoped to avoid a declaration of policy by bringing on the elections before the receipt of Dr. Merchant's report, but, like Banquo's ghost, it will not down Sir James seeks to evade the issue by declaring that there are no bilingual schools in Ontario, and yet Conservative candidates in certain sections of the province are pledging themselves to abolish bilingual schools. Sir James evidently realizes that the public is not satisfied with his method of dealing with the question, and now Hon. Mr. Foy, the attorney-general, is coming to the rescue in a carefully prepared opinion. Mr. Foy states that the law does not authorize bilingual schools, and that if there are any such they must cease to exist. The attorney-general misses the point. It is not the law, but the administration of the law which has created the troubles and given rise to the present agitation.

"Sir James claims to have opinions of his own. If so, will he tell us what he thinks of the manner in which the law has been administered in connection with these bilingual schools during the past seven years? Is he satisfied with the present conditions? If so, let him have the courage to defend them, and tell his supporters that all further agitation is useless. Is he dissatisfied with the present conditions? If so, let him have the courage to say so, and let him tell us why he has not taken steps to remedy them, and what steps he now proposes to take to remedy these conditions. If he is ignorant of the present conditions, then there must be incompetency in the management of our educational affairs, such as we had not even suspected. Sir James is not a man of wax and putty; he is bold enough, he says, to be honest, and honest enough to be bold. The electors are entitled to an answer to these questions."

Mr. Rowell then outlined his position, as stated in Massey Hall, emphasizing that the question was one of administration and the prohibiting of improperly trained teachers.

Mr. Rowell dealt with the grant of 2,000,000 acres of land in the clay belt of New Ontario to the Canadian Northern Railway made by the Government in 1909. Despite this, Sir James Whitney claimed to have abolished railway subsidies.

"Surely," said Mr. Rowell, "Sir James was presuming upon the credulity of his readers when he made such a claim, or does he think so lightly of the value of land in the clay belt that he does not consider the granting of an area of more than one-eighth as large as the cultivated area of Old Ontario is a subsidy worth mentioning? It is the largest grant of land ever made to a railway by a Government of this province.

"Sir James," he went on, "may seek to excuse himself for making this land grant by asserting that the Liberal Government, while in power, made similar grants. But Sir James does not tell us, as the fact is, that in the land grants made by the Liberal Government, both to the Grand Trunk Pacific and to the Algoma Central and Hudson Bay Railway, the Liberal Government made stringent conditions requiring these railways to bring in settlers, to secure the building of suitable homes, and the clearing of the land in the manner provided in the acts. They also required that all spruce timber upon the lands so granted should be manufactured into pulp or paper in Ontario. Whatever may be said of these land grants, the Liberal Government sought to make them the means of building up New Ontario, of settling its agricultural lands, and establishing pulp and paper mills in Ontario.

"Why did not Sir James Whitney impose similar conditions upon the Canadian Northern Railway? The lands granted are good agricultural lands, and the railway should have been compelled to settle them. The lands are covered with spruce timber for pulpwood. Why should not this railway have been compelled to manufacture this spruce timber into pulp or paper and thus establish industries in that new country? The electors of Ontario are entitled to an answer from Sir James on these questions.

"Will Sir James if returned to power make further land grants? What is his policy on this question? We stand opposed to any further land grants. Our policy is the land for the settler and the settler for the land."

MANY INJURED IN HARRISTON ACCIDENT

Scaffolding on the New Water Tower Collapsed With Workmen.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Harriston, Nov. 21.—A dozen of the men employed on the new water tower, which is being constructed here, were painfully injured when a scaffolding on which they were working collapsed and they were thrown to the bottom of the reservoir and a big pile of building material crashed down on top of them. One man, Mr. McDonald, of Kincardine, was badly hurt, and lay in the bottom of the tower half an hour in an unconscious condition before his companions, who were all more or less injured, could arrange ropes and pulleys with which to release him.

TRIAL OF CHORUS GIRLS

Pair Charged With Shooting New York Millionaire Hotelman.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, Nov. 22.—The chorus girls, Ethel Conrad and Lilian Graham, who shot William F. D. Stokes, the millionaire horseman and hotelman, in the legs, last June, when Stokes called at the Graham girl's apartment to obtain letters he had written to the Graham woman, which he was anxious to get back, were brought to trial today in the supreme court. The girls, who are charged with attempted murder, claim they shot the millionaire in self-defence.

HENRI BOURASSA

position of the Nationalist-Conservative cabinet. "Henri Bourassa is the master of the present administration," he declared. "It is absolutely and abjectly under the control of the Nationalist party. The Premier has confessed that he does not know what he is going to do. Let me tell him. He is going to do just what his Nationalist masters tell him; he is going to do nothing. The plebiscite is the refuge of a Government which cannot make up its mind. It puts Canada in a position of humiliation before the eyes of the world."

Mr. E. M. Macdonald.

Mr. E. M. Macdonald followed with a memorable arraignment. He traversed the annals of constitutional government for a parallel to the existing coalition. It smacked only of the "broad-bottomed cabinet" of Lord Pelham in 1742. He ridiculed Premier Borden's allegation that he and Mr. Monk had differed only upon a mere question of fact two years ago, by quoting from Hansard of last year showing that both Messrs. Monk and Borden had declared in the House their unalterable hostility to one another on the naval policy. He showed that Mr. White, the minister of finance, on the other hand, had stood for the Liberal naval policy, while Mr. Hazen was, according to his own declaration, an imperialist "of the Colonel Denison variety." Meantime, Mr. Monk had declared that Canada had to wrest all concessions from England, who was ready to hand her to the United States, if necessary. "We owe nothing to England," had been Mr. Monk's words, and he had characterized the British Empire League as an "anti-Canadian society," and condemned the Col. Denison type of imperialism. "These two men," declared Mr. Macdonald, impressively pointing to Messrs. Borden and Monk, "sitting there side by side, cheek by jowl, in the Government of a British Dominion, present a spectacle to the whole country and to the world fortunately never duplicated in British history. I mistake the genius of the Canadian people if they submit to the peculiar and unworthy performance that is being carried on. This House and this country await an immediate explanation."

But the ministers all sat silent. Once in the course of his address the Nova Scotia man drew from Mr. Monk the petulant exclamation, "You don't know what you are talking about," to which Mr. Macdonald came back with a spirited retort: "The Minister of Public Works," he stated, "need not think that because he has gone over and secured a seat in the ministry he can transgress the rules of this House. He may as well make up his mind that he has got to be polite, at least." He challenged Mr. Monk to make a statement as to his position. "I'll tell you all about it at the proper time," quoth the minister; whereupon Mr. Macdonald assured him he proposed to hold him to that promise. "Let there be no sidestepping," he commented. "The whole country is entitled to know why he meekly eats out of the hand of the man he joined in a resolution of denunciation of a year ago. Col. Sam. Hughes, the Minister of Militia, had declared in the House: "The policy of the Conservative party is an imperial navy." He demanded an honest, straightforward and unequivocal statement of where the Government stood on the matter of Canada's imperial relations. But there was no response from the Government benches. The silence was greeted with laughter and applause from the Liberals. In turn Mr. Macdonald appealed to Mr. Borden, to Mr. Monk, to Mr. Pelletier, and to Mr. Nantel, but all sat silent.

Conservative Speakers.

From the Government side, Mr. Aikins, the new member from Brandon, was the first speaker. He combined an essay on the future of the Canadian West with an anti-reciprocity campaign speech. He quoted poetry and championed the flag, but never mentioned the word navy, or referred in any way to the amendment of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, which was under debate. One suggestion was emphasized: the advisability of the Government taking some action to develop a freer exchange of news between Eastern and Western Canada. He advocated Government aid or the construction of a special wire for the purpose of transmitting Canadian news at more reasonable telegraphic rates.

At night Mr. W. H. Bennett followed. The enforced absence of the redoubtable East Simcoe man from the last Parliament did not seem to have mellowed his temper.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley, speaking well on into the night, declared, amid enthusiasm, that the securing of the United States markets for the natural products of New Brunswick was still a live and powerful issue there. He pointed out that outside of Ontario there was a popular majority of 22,000 for reciprocity. He hoped, when Ontario learned that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was not responsible for the ne temere decree, and when her pople realized that the Nationalists were to control the policy of the Government, there would be reconsideration in that province. He noted that Mr. Bourassa had already published in Le Devoir the questions which were to be submitted to the electorate in the plebiscite to be taken. One of them he considered an insult to loyal Canadian people, that which asked whether the Canadian navy should be available to the empire in time of war.

Hon. Mr. Hazen opened by extending felicitations to Sir Wilfrid on his 70th anniversary. The new minister, amid cheering from both sides, gracefully expressed the hope that he "would live long to adorn the public life of this country." Continuing, the ex-Premier of New Brunswick launched into a review of the political career of Dr. Pugsley, and made a personal attack on his reason for changing his political faith. Mr. Hazen declared that the object of the amendment under discussion was to stir up racial and religious strife, and to endeavor to cause dissensions in the cabinet. Mr. Hazen asked time for the Government to determine its naval policy. He stated that nine tenders had been received by the former Government on May 1 last for four cruisers and six destroyers. The lowest tender was that of Campbell & Laird, Great Britain, for $11,280,000. He believed the real reason for the failure to award the contract was the knowledge that six years hence, when these ships would have been completed, they would be obsolete and unfit for actual warfare. The minister closed by promising a naval policy in the interests of Canada and in the interests of the Empire.

Mr. Mackenzie (Cape Breton) moved the adjournment of the debate.

CORONER INVESTIGATING A MONTREAL DEATH

Suspicious Circumstances in Connection With Death of a Young Girl.

Montreal, Nov. 22.—Coroner McMahon renewed the inquest Tuesday morning in an effort to discover whether murder or suicide accounted for the recent discovery of Marie Louise Marion's body in a north end quarry. The girl disappeared from home some five weeks ago. Facts brought out yesterday indicate that the victim had been ill-treated by her stepmother some time ago, and that she had a sweetheart. Screams from the direction of the quarry were plainly heard on the night of Oct. 16, when the girl disappeared, according to the testimony of Mrs. Joseph Prenovost, who lived near the quarry.

George Marion, father of the victim, admitted that the little girl had complained to him before Mrs. Gauvreau of having been ill-treated by his wife. He also admitted that on the night of Oct. 15 last he had been put out of the house by his wife and his mother-in-law because he was in liquor.

"Your wife's character was not gentle, then?" "No, not very."

"We shall be obliged to adjourn this inquest again," said Coroner McMahon at the conclusion of the evidence. "We can safely say now that there is suspicion over this whole affair, and we shall give the police another delay of eight days to sift this matter to a finish."

WOULDN'T COAL STEAMER.

Hamilton, Nov. 21.—Seven deck hands, George Smith, Alex. Smith, Peter Bartmann, Pat Green, John Collins, Roy Howe and Henry Karney, all of Toronto, were charged at the police court this morning with refusing to obey orders from Capt. Henderson, of the Macassa. The prisoners refused to help to "coal" the steamer this morning. Magistrate Jelfs told them they were liable to from four to twelve weeks' imprisonment, but he allowed them to go, as the steamboat company did not want them sent to jail.

"The Town Marshal."

"The Town Marshal," a popular-priced drama, with a cast of more than ordinary capabilities, pleased a good-sized audience at the Grand Opera House last night. It is one of those old-fashioned kind, where the villain is a regular rascal, but he is deftly foiled at the end. It provides good clean entertainment, and at a popular price.

SOME CANADIAN MISSIONARIES REACH SHANGHAI IN SAFETY

Twelve With Families Reached the Coast From Sz Chawn and Will Leave at Once for Home—Confirmation of Report of a Massacre at Sian Fu.

Toronto, Nov. 22.—News of the missionaries in Sz Chawn has at last reached this city. During these weeks of silence a number of the Sz Chawn Canadian missionaries had been making their way slowly towards the coast, and a cable sent from Shanghai yesterday announced their arrival in that city. The rest of the missionaries are expected at any time.

The cable recommends also that most of the missionaries be sent home on furlough. Thus relatives may look forward to having the missionaries home with them in a short time. The cablegram read as follows: "The following missionaries have arrived at Shanghai—Rev. A. C. Hoffman and family, Rev. C. J. P. Jolliffe and family, Rev. Arthur Hockin and family, Rev. W. B. Albertson and family, Rev. J W. A. Henderson and family, Rev. A. J. Elson and family, Rev. T. W. Bateman and family, Rev. R. B. McAmmond and family, Dr. Crawford and family, Rev. G. G. Harris and family, Misses Switzer and Norman. Others may be expected to arrive any day. Will telegraph later. Members of the Chungking Council strongly recommend you to furlough McAmmonds, Jolliffes, Allans and Switzer, Please reply immediately."

Massacre at Sian Fu.

Pekin, Nov. 21.—Swedish missionaries who arrived at Tientsin last night confirm the reports of the massacre at Sian Fu. The victims they said were Mrs. Beckman, a school mistress, five foreign children, a German in the Chinese mail service, and many Chinese girls who attended Mrs. Beckman's school. The Chinese girls were killed because their feet were normal and they were mistaken for Manchu girls.

It appears that the missionaries had persuaded the girls to remove from their feet the bandages usually worn for the purpose of forming the much-admired small feet for which the Chinese women are noted.

The Swedish missionaries, whose names are Sandberg and Erickson, say that the magistrates of their town offered them $400 each to depart. The party was attacked and robbed after they had left and one was severely wounded by highwaymen in Honan. Shen Si, they say, is the most determined anti-foreign province in China, and without a strong invading force nothing can be accomplished, as it is beyond the reach of the gunboats and the Yangtse River.

The French consul at Yunnan Fu telegraphs that a courier from Klanchang, Yunnan Province, confirms the report of an attack upon the French mission. One man, Legendre Dessirier, was killed.

Fighting at Hankow.

The Hankow revolutionists crossed the Han River on Nov. 17, and attacked the Imperialists, who were entrenched in four lines. The revolutionists carried three of the lines, but at the fourth they were repulsed and retired at nightfall to Han Yang. They resumed the attack on the 18th, with some success, but failed in the end to carry the trenches and oust the Imperialists. There were heavy casualties on both sides.

LONDON BUSINESSMAN IMPRESSED WITH WEST

Mr. C. R. Somerville Has Returned From a Trip Through to the Coast.

Mr. C. R. Somerville, of this city, has returned from a three-weeks' trip to the west, where he touched every important point from Winnipeg to the coast. It was his first visit to that country in many years, and he noted a wonderful improvement.

"The country is growing very fast," he stated to The Advertiser. "The cities have increased in size, and in other ways have made wonderful strides. There is an air of optimism everywhere, and all have great faith in the future of the west. I could see a great change in every city I visited.

"The winter had set in before we left, and as a result, it caught the farmers with a great deal of grain still in the fields. But if the weather continues dry they will save nearly all of it. Some may not be as good quality as it otherwise would have been, but the farmers will have some return at least for their labor. I expect to see them all do well.

"The prices of land in the cities, I fancy, is too high. There is a boom on in the majority of them, and I am of the opinion that the prices are in excess of the real value of the land."

Mr. Somerville is greatly improved in health, and enjoyed the trip to the west greatly. He will go to Europe before spring to bring his family home. They are at present in Switzerland.

WINGHAM DEATH

J. Jefferson, General Storekeeper, Was Only Ill for Three Weeks.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Wingham, Nov. 22.—Mr. J. Jefferson, one of the pioneer residents of this district, died at his home at Donnebrook, yesterday after an illness of only three weeks with an affection of the stomach. Prior to that time he was in excellent health, and strong and vigorous, notwithstanding that he was 84 years of age. Mr. Jefferson lived for a time in Goderich, but settled in Donnebrook a great many years ago, and kept a general store there. He is survived by two sons and two daughters, John and Robert, of Donnebrook; Mrs. Wallace Hough, of Wingham, and a daughter in Hensall. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Miss Annie Clow was called to Whitechurch today owing to the serious illness of her brother.

MONSTER SOCIETY DAY

A Movement on Foot For a Gigantic Celebration at Hamilton.

[Canadian Press.]

Hamilton, Nov. 22.—A movement is on foot to arrange a monster society day here next year in which the forty odd fraternal and patriotic societies of Hamilton will take part, as well as societies from practically every municipality in this part of the province. The promoters figure on getting 20,000 or more visitors here, having a monster procession with 30 or 40 bands and a big picnic in the afternoon.

BURNED $1,000 BILL.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 22.—Siguard Hartig, a real estate dealer, formerly of Cincinnati, accidentally lit a cigarette with a $1,000 bill here yesterday. He intended to burn only the end of a bit of yellow paper protruding from the edge of the bill for the edificationa of his friends. Samuel Haller, another friend, joined the group just as Hartig lit the cigarette.

"Give me a light, Sig.," said Haller, seizing the bill. Before Hartig could recover the bill it was in flames. The two men quarreled and were separated by a city detective, who reported the incident to the police. A small corner of the bill and a few ashes were recovered and will be sent to the treasury department at Washington by Hartig in an attempt to have the loss made good.

INGERSOLL LIBERALS WILL MEET FRIDAY

Mr. T. R. Mayberry and J. Walter Curry Will Give Addresses.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ingersoll, Nov. 23. — A meeting in the interests of Mr. T. R. Mayberry, the Liberal candidate, will be held in the town hall on Friday evening, and will be addressed by Mr. J. Walter Curry, of Toronto. Mr. Curry is widely known as a platform speaker, and his visit to Ingersoll will no doubt bring out a representative attendance of the electors who are interested in the provincial qustions now being discussed.

A large and very appreciative audience gathered in St. Paul's Church last evening, the occasion being a grand concert under the auspices of the C. E. Society. The programme was furnished by Cyril Dwight-Edwards, baritone, Miss Louise MacDonald, contralto, and Miss Florence Eggleston, violinist. The artists were no strangers to an Ingersoll audience, especially Mr. Dwight-Edwards, and the attendance was a tribute to their popularity. A splendid programme was rendered, to the delight of all present, and in the opinion of competent judges it was a rare musical treat.

UNIONISTS CAPTURE RADICAL STRONGHOLD

The South Somerset By-Election Was Carried by the British Opposition.

[Canadian Press.]

London, Nov. 22.—The hitherto consistently Radical stronghold of South Somerset has gone over to the Unionists. The Hon. A. Herbert has been elected to the vacancy caused by the raising to the peerage of Sir Edward Strachy. Mr. Herbert majority was 148.

This is the second Unionist gain since Mr. Bonar Law became leader of the Unionist party in the House of Commons.

MAKING OF DIAMONDS

Chemical Expert Discovers a New Method for Producing the Favorite Gem.

[Canadian Press.]

Berlin, Nov. 21.—A new method of making diamonds has just been discovered by Dr. Werner Von Bolten, a chemical expert connected with the Siemens-Halske laboratory here.

The process is based on the decomposition of lighting gas by a mercury amalgam, whereby the carbon contained in the gas is crystallized into diamonds. As these diamonds are extremely minute, small bits of diamond dust are introduced into the apparatus, where they serve as mother crystals upon which larger diamonds are gradually built up.

The process is still in the experimental stage, and the diamonds are small, but it is hoped that Dr. Von Bolten's discovery may result in the solution of the problem of manufacturing diamonds by artificial means.
