Rippling Rhymes

By Walt Mason.

THE COLD RAIN.

The wind is cold, the sky is wet, the rain's continuous and moist; and many people sigh and fret who on the sunny days rejoiced. Some voters are so poorly built they view a dark day with affright; they think that all the beans are spilt if there should be a cloud in sight. But I have made a gaudy fire, I hear it roaring up the flue; and here I sit and swat my lyre, and raise a happy howdydo. I look out at the liquid rain that hasn't sense enough to quit, and see it washing down the pane, and do not throw a morbid fit. The rain will make the fields more fair, and that should cheer up dismal souls; and it will purify the air, and make the microbes hunt their holes. The rain will save the oats and ryes—that's what the good old rain is for; and thus we see, if we have eyes, that storms like this will win the war. How often, through a lack of rain, has this drouth stricken country groaned! So it is sinful to complain because your picnic is postponed. The country roads are dripping wet, no motor cars along them purr; but it's a wicked thing to fret because your joyride won't occur.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

By Courier Leased Wire

Paris, May 7.—Active artillery fighting occurred last night on both sides of the Avre, on the front southeast of Amiens, the War Office announces. The statement follows:

"The artillery on both sides was active north and south of the Avre. A German raid against a small French post near Hangard was repulsed. In the same region we carried out a local operation and brought back prisoners.

GAS MASKS.

By Courier Leased Wire

Geneva May 7.—The municipal authorities at Mulhausen, Alsace, have order all inhabitants to procure gas masks before May 10 as protection against aerial gas attacks. The Lausanne Gazette says it learns. The truth of the matter is, the newspaper adds, that owing to contrary winds large quantities of poison gas employed by the Germans are now drifting gradually towards towns along the Rhine, which already are feeling the effects of the gas.

Albany has empowered police and hunters to shoot on sight any cat found killing protective birds.
