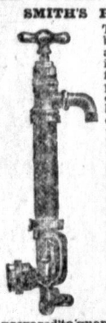
SMITH'S PATENT HYDRANT.



This hydrant is acknowledged by all mechanics to be far ahead of all others. Its superiority is shown by the popular favor it has attained. The public are warned against other dealers who claim to have a hydrant which can be compared to a straight-way valve. A straight-way valve has no seat to be subjected to the action of any liquid, therefore a hydrant to be compared to a straight valve must have no seat to be subjected to the action of the water, and there is no other hydrant made except Smith's Patent Hydrant without a seat, and we claim to have the only straight-way hydrant. All others have a seat subjected to the action of the water, and the majority of them will have to be dug up inside of a year to be repaired, and at extra cost. This we are prepared to guarantee the users of our hydrants against. For sale by the patentees; price $5.

The Business Outlook.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's this week indicate a fair degree of activity in jobbing circles and among manufacturers, particularly as to the distribution of drygoods, clothing, boots and shoes, and hardware. At almost all cities importing business is said to be fairly active or satisfactory for the season.

Cotton and wool dress goods and general woolens are in chief movement from jobbers. Men's wear woolens in moderate call. Cotton goods, firm; foreign goods more active. Wool is quiet. Cotton ⅛c to ¼c lower. Raw sugar is 3-16c and refined 5-16c higher.

Wheat has reacted on more favorable foreign crop reports, and corn has sympathized. Exports of wheat, both coasts, and flour as wheat equal 1,575,672 bushels this week, against 2,679,007 bushels the first week of September, 1889, and 2,562,322 bushels last week.

Business failures, 141 in the United States this week, against 134 last week and 143 this week last year. Canada had 25 this week, against 36 last week. The total number of failures in the United States, Jan. 1 to date, is 6,938, against 7,746 in a like portion of 1889.

Youthful Shop-Breakers.

At the Police Court this morning C. R. Somerville charged Henry Brennan, John Brennan and Albert Brown with shopbreaking. The first mentioned youth has not grown during the last few years, and although 10 years old could easily pass for half that age. Known as "Skinny," he has made a reputation for himself. Chief Williams stated he had entered every house in the northern part of the city and stolen goods. He could easily get through a 4x9 inch aperture and then unfasten doors or windows and allow his accomplices to enter. The mothers of the urchins were in court and blamed each other's children as the causes of their offspring's faults with tears in their eyes for another chance for the little fellows. Mr. Somerville accordingly withdrew his charge and the boys were again set at liberty.

Verdict Against Mrs. Dobbin.

At the Toronto Assizes a case has been tried which will create considerable interest among Londoners. The plaintiff is the wife of Rev. John J. Dobbin at Caledon East, formerly of this city, and the defendant, Alexander Cranston, is a farmer residing in the township of Albion, in the county of Peel, and is an elder in church and a member of the Presbytery. The character of Mrs. Dobbin, it is charged, was assailed and her social standing in the neighborhood injured. It was contended that in consequence of these reports the plaintiff suffered a great deal of annoyance, and was refused admittance to homes of several of her husband's congregation, among others that of Mrs. William Cranston, Mrs. John Pearson, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Hector McLeish and Miss Matilda Walker. It is alleged that the defendant in this suit is the person who circulated the reports, and $5,000 damages was asked. The jury found a verdict for the defendant.

Costly Street Brawl.

Last evening while walking up Richmond street, William Keyes and John McLintock were assaulted by a young man named George Underwood, who was under the influence of liquor. A companion of Underwood's, Frank Rourke, who was endeavoring to get his chum home, tried to pull him away from the affray, and the quartet were all in a heap, when P. C. McGowan put in an appearance. Noticing that Underwood was foremost in the row, the constable proceeded to arrest him, when he was assailed by Rourke. In the tussle Underwood got away and McGowan drew his baton and struck Rourke over the head, cutting his ear. The bracelets were adjusted and the constable gave his attention to the other ruffian, who had recommenced his attack on the inoffensive Keyes and McLintock. After a chase he was secured, and the constable conveyed his bruised and bleeding prizes to the station. At the Police Court a charge af assaulting the police was made against them. They elected to be tried by the Magistrate and were sentenced to two months' imprisonment with the alternative of a fine of $20.

The Victim Identified.

Yesterday a young man giving his name as Porter called at the undertaking establishment of Mr. James Kilgour and requested permission to examine the clothing of the young man who was so horribly mangled on the G. T. R. track near Wabuno early in June. The visitor said he had an idea that he knew the victim, so the clothes were produced. After a short scrutiny Porter became convinced that his suspicions were well founded. He was willing to swear that the coat belonged to a young man named Weld. His story was that a few months before the date of the accident Weld and himself sailed from England to try their fortunes in Canada. After knocking around for a while Porter got work and was out of the city when the accident happened and did not miss his former shipmate. He described him as a young man of 18 years, but rather sickly, which may probably have accounted for those who saw him placing his age at 15 or 16 years. Weld had well-to-do relatives in England, and would have inherited a fortune of £26,000 when he came of age. The boots found on the body were of an extra fine English make and were also identified by Porter as belonging to young Weld. Porter says that the mother of the deceased is at present residing at Chatham, England. The matter will be further sifted.

The Waterworks Extensions.

The money of London's citizens is being expended, as they all know, for extensions to the springs at the waterworks property, Springbank. The work has been going steadily on under the watchful eye of Caretaker Sumner and the small army of men has been steadily progressing with satisfaction to the Waterworks Department and the Commissioners. But during the past few days a few facts have been developed which show the work undertaken to be of greater magnitude than was at first supposed, and the necessarily greater expenditure will prove a subject of interest. The eighteen-inch tile for conducting the water has been placed in position from the Dufton springs westward to the Colville property. The clay bottom below the gravel strata has made this section of the work easy. But at the Colville property, where the large springs are located, an unforseen difficulty has been encountered, inasmuch as no clay bottom can be found. The ditch has been sunk to a depth of twenty feet and nine feet further has been bored, but nothing but gravel and quicksand has been found. To overcome this difficulty large planks are being driven on the sides of the ditch, making a curbing which it is expected will intercept the water. Without some such contrivance the water will continue to bubble through the gravel towards the river. All the piping that will be necessary has been laid (to the western limit of the Coombs' property), and it but remains to have the curbing of the Colville section of the ditch to make the job complete. While the discovery of the nature of the ground has somewhat discomfited the Waterworks Department and will not be heard with pleasure by any ratepayer, a redeeming feature is that much more water is being found than was anticipated. Fully 1,000,000 gallons per day will flow from this section.

Another improvement which is costing the Water Commissioners some $2,000, is placing a large pipe from the steam pumphouse to the large water main, the connection being made near the east gate. By this contrivance the pumping capacity of the works will be almost doubled, as both the steam and water power can then be used at once. The water power will continue to fill the reservoir while the steam, in case of necessity, may at the same time be forcing water into the main. As the work approaches completion the number of daily visitors increases.

The Liverpool Labor Congress.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 6.—At to-day's session of the Trades Union Congress it was resolved to boycott unfairly-made goods and all railway tramways and boats whose employes are underpaid. It was also resolved to exclude representatives of non-union papers from future congresses.

Mr. Birtwistle, leader of the cotton workers, resigned from the Parliamentary Committee, as he was not in favor of passing a compulsory eight-hours labor law. John Burns, the Socialist leader, was appointed instead. The congress then dissolved.

NOTES.

The institutions named employ between 50,000 and 60,000 workers, and directly support from 250,000 to 300,000 persons.
