EIGHTH YEAR. MONDAY MORNING, JUNE 27, 1887. PRICE ONE CENT

THE END OF JUBILEE WEEK

MANY OF THE ROYAL GUESTS TAKING THEIR DEPARTURE.

The Dangerous Condition of the Crown Prince—A Letter From the Queen Thanking the People for the Loyalty they Have Displayed.

LONDON, June 25.—At last the jubilee week is over and a good many of the royal guests from abroad are taking their departures. London is assuming its wonted aspect, and faces hitherto beaming with enthusiastic loyalty are becoming long at the idea of the bills which will have to be paid for all the festivities, entertainments, decorations and processions of the past week.

In the first place the Crown Prince of Germany has paid a severe penalty for his participation in the royal procession to Westminster Abbey on Tuesday last. The dust, fatigue and excitement of the day were too much for him, and when he reached home at night he was so ill that his medical attendants and Dr. Morell Mackenzie had to be summoned in all haste. His throat was found to be greatly inflamed and his condition worse than at any time since a month before his first operation. The swelling is so strong that Dr. Mackenzie has not even been able to proceed with a further operation as had been agreed. The news concerning his health has been kept from the public as much as possible, but his immediate entourage seem in very low spirits about his condition. He is exceedingly popular here, and received a greater ovation from the crowd on Tuesday than almost any other prince, either native or foreign. In fact, seeing him there in his white uniform and with his magnificent physique towering above the heads of all other princes present, it was difficult to realize that he is so near the door of a painful and lingering death.

An unpleasant feature of the past week has been the difficulties in connection with the Queen of the Sandwich Islands, a self-invited guest, whose presence was most unwelcome and productive of endless squabbles. High and mighty potentates such as the Crown Princes of Austria and Germany were naturally unwilling to waive their precedence in favor of a monarch whose title after all is a mere parody, and who is nothing better than the wife of a small black, colored chieftain of doubtful descent and reputation, and whose immediate predecessor feasted on the corpse of one of England's greatest naval captains. Queen Kapiolani was pointedly omitted from the banquet given on Tuesday night at Buckingham Palace by the Queen to all the foreign royalties present in London, and it is probable that she will return to her island home a sadder and maybe a wiser monarch.

The Queen's grand party at Buckingham Palace is looked forward to with fear and trembling. Over 8000 invitations have been issued, and Heaven only knows what will be done with all the guests if it happens to rain.

A Letter From the Queen.

LONDON, June 26.—The Home Secretary has received the following letter from the Queen:

I am anxious to express to my people my warm thanks for the kind—more than kind—reception met with going to and returning from Westminster Abbey with all my children and grandchildren. The enthusiastic reception I met with then, as well as on all these eventful days in London, as well as at Windsor on the occasion of the jubilee, touched me most deeply. It has shown that the labor and anxiety of fifty long years, twenty-two of which were spent in troubled happiness, shared and cheered by my beloved husband, and while an equal number were full of sorrows and trials borne without his sheltering arm and wise help, have been appreciated by my people. This feeling and sense of duty towards my dear country and my subjects who are so inseparably bound up with my life, will encourage me in my task, often a very difficult and onerous one, during the remainder of my life. The wonderful order preserved on this occasion and the good behavior of the enormous multitude assembled merit my highest admiration. That God may protect and abundantly bless my country is my fervent prayer.

A special number of The London Graphic, describing the jubilee celebration, will be on sale in a day or two. Secure copies early. McAinsh & Ellis, opposite Postoffice.

An Officer Deprived of Rank Because He Did Not Challenge an Opponent.

BERLIN, June 25.—The social sensation of the week has been the verdict of the officers of the Court of Honor in the case of Major Hinze, accused of omitting to challenge to a duel his political opponent in the Reichstag election who, during the campaign, aspersed his honor as an officer. He was a Progressist deputy in the late Reichstag. He opposed the septennate and favored the short service system. He became intensely unpopular among his former brother officers, who denounced him during the electoral struggle as unfit to bear an army title or to wear a uniform. He prosecuted his slanderers in a court of law and obtained a successful verdict, whereupon the staff officers of the guards corps appointed the Court of Honor, whose decree deprives Hinze of the right to the title of major and to wear the uniform of the army.

The Emperor has confirmed the degradation of Hinze, although there is a clause in the criminal code, applying equally to soldiers and civilians, which forbids challenging to a duel, under a penalty of six months' imprisonment. The Emperor's decision puts the stamp of the highest authority on duelling as a laudable custom prevailing over the law forbidding it.

Hinze's friends charge that the military court was influenced by political hatreds. They say that he only refrained from challenging his opponent because the offence was directed against him as a politician and not as an officer.

Ruined by the Earthquake.

CARSON, Nev., June 25.—The Mono county marble quarry, sixty miles from this city, was completely destroyed by the recent earthquake. The marble is broken up in chunks not even a foot square. The ledge is over two miles long and four hundred feet wide, containing a fine grade of marble ranging over seventeen shades from pure white to black. The mine was valued at $1,000,000.

A FIRE FED WITH LARD.

Over a Million Dollars Lost in a Conflagration at the Chicago Stock Yards.

CHICAGO, June 26.—A million and a quarter dollars went up in smoke at the Union Stock Yards to-day. Early this morning one of the employes of the Chicago Packing and Provision Company discovered a fire in the tank room. In a few moments one of the tanks exploded, scattering burning lard over the adjacent buildings, and a dozen separate fires were soon competing with each other in the destruction of the immense establishment. The fire burned fiercely for fourteen hours, but is now extinguished.

The Chicago Packing and Provision Company's works occupy about six acres of ground, but the fire was kept within the district bounded by Fortieth-street, Centre-avenue, Forty-second-street and the railroad tracks, a block west of Centre-avenue. This territory contained four large buildings, the main building, 300 by 475 feet, was totally destroyed, and the other buildings were very badly damaged.

IMPRISONED IN A MINE.

Six Men Entombed in the Gould & Curry Mine, Virginia City.

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev., June 25.—Unavailing efforts were repeatedly made to-day to rescue six miners remaining intombed in the burning Gould & Curry mine, in which five miners lost their lives last night. The fire was extinguished about noon to-day and the cage sent down, but it was driven back after it had reached the 1000 foot level. Relays of miners are tunneling through from the Consolidated Virginia mine and expect to reach the place of the imprisoned miners by noon to-morrow. The damage to the mine from the fire is very slight. It is known that the imprisoned men were alive at 2 o'clock this morning, which has occasioned great energy on the part of the relief parties, holding out hope that the miners may still be alive when the tunnel is completed.

DROWNED HER CHILD.

A Woman Throws a Baby Into the Sea at Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 25.—While a number of belated loungers on the beach were walking near Ohio-avenue at midnight Thursday a tall, graceful woman was seen to walk down to the sea with a little child in her arms and, kissing the helpless little one, fling it into the receding waves. Those who had observed her accosted her and continued in pursuit until she reached Disston-alley. At that point she turned at bay and, presenting a revolver at the men, threatened to shoot. Under cover of this threat she escaped. The Life Guard was notified and searched for two hours for the body, but without success.

A CLASH OF AUTHORITY.

The City Sheriff of Dublin Locks Up the County Sheriff.

DUBLIN, June 26.—County Sheriff Hamilton called a meeting of Loyalists for to-day, to be held in the Green-street Court House, which belongs to the city. Hamilton and a party of friends having entered the building the City Sheriff locked them in, preventing the audience from entering. Hamilton appeared at an upper window, and amid much laughter explained the predicament and announced that the meeting would be held in the Court of Queen's Bench. The Loyalists accordingly proceeded to the place named and held their meeting.

London Stock and Money Market.

LONDON, June 26.—Discount was firmer and more active during the past week at 1¼ to 1¼. On the Stock Exchange business was very limited, every department being dull and weak. On Monday the settlement begins and after that more activity is expected. American railroad securities were distinctly lower, everything dropping daily, excepting the Vanderbilt stocks, which remained fairly steady. The actual business done throughout the week was unusually small. The New York pame only slightly affected the markets, the chief decreases cabled being in stocks that are not dealt in on this side. English investors showed no disposition to part with the better class of stocks under a feeling of confidence, American railroad earnings appearing favorable and general business sound.

Killed Their Jailer and Escaped.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 26.—A telegram was received late last night by City Marshal Agnew stating that C. R. Carter, Tom M. Kellon and three other prisoners killed the deputy sheriff and escaped from the jail at Mount Vernon, thirty miles west of here, at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning. Carter was in on a sentence for murder. He was to have been hanged next Friday.

French Hatred of Germans.

BERLIN, June 25.—The position of Germans in France has become, under social persecution, barely tolerable. They would be hunted out of the country altogether but for the protection guaranteed them under the Frankfort Treaty, which debars the French from placing a prohibitive impost upon Germans resident in France.

The Emperor Recovered.

BERLIN, June 25.—The Emperor has completely recovered. He drove out at noon today accompanied by the Duchess of Baden, and in the afternoon heard long reports from Count Herbert Bismarck. Yesterday he resumed his custom of appearing at the window to return the greetings of the multitude that daily gathers in front of the palace.

Dr. Thomas preached at the evening service.

FRIDAY'S DROP IN STOCKS.

THE OPINION PREVAILS THAT GOULD BROUGHT IT ABOUT.

It is Believed That the Gould Crowd Were After Cyrus W. Field, for Whom Their Love is Cooling—Gould Says He is Out of Speculation.

NEW YORK, June 25.—It seems to be the general belief that the flurry in Wall-street, which began yesterday morning, is at an end, and that the market will soon be in good condition. The Times this morning says: It is no libel to say that there are people in Wall-street who do not credit all the statements made by the Gould crowd yesterday. Gould and Sage called loans by the wholesale. They did their level best to corner money. They tumbled basketfuls of stock on the market; the break was of their own designing—so believes everybody who presumes to have an independent opinion in Wall-street. It was their own Western Union and Missouri Pacific and Manhattan that they used to slug the market with. And if they were not gunning after Cyrus Field every indication seemingly worth attention is all wrong. It has been an open secret this many a day that Gould and Sage do not love Field, for all their speculative copartnership with him. Russell Sage is on record as predicting that a time was coming when "Cyrus' feet will go patter, patter, patter"—Deacon Sage's poetical description of Brother Field on a dead run. Mr. Field, according to common fame, is loaded heavily with Manhattan.

Gould has been a loaner of money to the Henry S. Ives crowd and he "called" $8,000,000 yesterday. Though Gould has been advertised a good deal lately as a patron of Ives and though the two have had yachting parties together, and though Ives has been recognized in many quarters as Gould's chosen instrument for settling the big telegraph war through a Baltimore and Ohio deal, still close observers have not been misled into the idea that Gould was quite all that this theorizing popular opinion has suggested. When somebody remarked to Gould that Ives was a young man to be so conspicuous in Wall-street, Gould's quiet observation was: "Well, it often happens that Wall-street's greatest financiers are young men. How old was Ferdinand Ward?" His relations with Ives were quite intimate enough to give him information as to when and where the much-talked-about syndicate was weakest. And Jay Gould has a habit of utilizing his information.

As is always the case after a day of unusual excitement in Wall-street, the corridors of the Windsor Hotel were crowded last night by brokers, anxiously discussing the situation and swapping theories about the probable future course of the market. The worst was over, it was generally conceded.

Jesse Seligman predicts that within the next few days it will be discovered that gold is on the way here from Europe and that tight money is no longer a danger. Other bankers with foreign connections gave Mr. Seligman's opinion indorsement. Large loans on stock collaterals were made after the market closed yesterday as low as 5 and 6 per cent.

The contingent that is always on parade as possessing "Gould information" was among the weariest citizens that this town can boast. Every one of them all was caught loaded up with stocks at top prices. Russell Sage and Jay Gould have slaughtered every one of their "friends," as their hangers-on love to label themselves. Jay Gould made no excuse for his wholesale calling of loans that he thought stocks were cheap and he could use his money to better advantage in the market than he could by having it out on loans. That sounds well. People who are bullish love to hear that they have gained such a recruit, but it isn't quite so cheering as it might have been if it had happened to come along before this same recruit had completely wiped them out.

Gould Says He is Out of Business.

NEW YORK, June 25.—In an interview last evening Jay Gould said he had absolutely stopped speculation. He withdrew from Wall-street to remain out a year ago last January, and he would never under any circumstances be a speculator again.

Being asked whether he contemplated retirement from the active management of his business interests Mr. Gould said: "Yes, as completely as possible. My son has familiarized himself with the management of the different properties with which I am connected and he can now attend to them as well as I can. It is a relief which I am grateful for and I shall never return to any of the hard work."

FATAL FIRE IN LONDON.

Several Lives Lost in the Burning of a Tenement House.

LONDON, June 26.—Fire broke out in a tenement house off Oxford-street this morning and the flames spread so rapidly that several of the inmates were unable to make their escape. Several frightful scenes were witnessed by the enormous crowds of people that had been attracted to the spot. One youth jumped from a top story to the ground and was instantly killed. His mother then followed him. In her descent she struck upon the railing in front of the house and rebounded on the heads of the crowd. She was conveyed to a hospital.

Another woman appeared at a window holding a child in her arms. A moment later she fell backward into the flames. Both the remains of herself and two children were afterwards discovered.

A meeting of the Treasury Board was held yesterday morning at which, it is understood, the question of superannuating several old members of the service was considered. The names of Messrs. Griffin, Deputy Postmaster-General; Johnson, Commissioner of Customs; Powell, Under-Secretary of State and Wicksteed, accountant in the postoffice, are mentioned amongst those whom rumor has it are to be superannuated at the close of the fiscal year, but the rumors may not be quite correct. All the gentlemen named are over 60 years of age, and have been more than thirty-five years in the public service.

Mr. Kamper, who has been negotiating with the Government on behalf of a syndicate of French and German capitalists, with a view to establishing extensive iron works and obtaining control of the Intercolonial Railway, returned here yesterday from Montreal accompanied by Mr. E. O. Perrault, Vice-Consul for France, to resume his negotiations. It is said that Mr. Senecal and other Quebec and Montreal capitalists are interested in the scheme.

The directors of the Regina and Long Lake Railway Company held a meeting here yesterday and adjourned for a few days, when the contracts for the road will be awarded. The President, Mr. Pugsley, expects that the rails will be laid from Long Lake to the South Saskatchewan this fall, and that the road will be built to Prince Albert and Battleford within another year.

McKenna & Co. of this city have been awarded the contract for building the new Grand Trunk car shops at Stratford. The price is understood to be about $65,000.

The shareholders of the Northwest Central Railway Company held a meeting in Senator Clemmow's office yesterday. It is said that arrangements have been perfected whereby the 40 miles of the road will be built this summer, and that a contract will be signed in a few days.

SAVED FROM SUICIDE.

A Woman Arrested at Niagara Falls as She Was About to End Her Life.

NIAGARA FALLS, June 26.—About a week ago a woman took a situation as dish-washer at the International Hotel, Niagara Falls, N.Y. She gave her name as Mrs. Carrington, but appeared much above the ordinary class of servants and would not associate with them. Friday night she had some trouble about her sleeping quarters and seemed despondent all day Saturday. About 5 o'clock on Saturday she came down stairs dressed for going out, and had a small satchel and a bundle done up in a shawl strap. She told one or two that she was tired of life and would commit suicide. She left the hotel by the back way and hurried toward Goat Island. Policeman Haley, who was in the vicinity, was notified and followed in a hack. He overtook her just as she was crossing Bath Island Bridge and arrested her. She made several attempts to get away, but he placed her in a hack and took her to the lockup.

For some time she refused to give any information in regard to herself, but finally admitted that Carrington was not her name but said it was Amelia Walsh, that she was a widow, and had a son living. She came from Belgium about a year ago and had resided in Montreal, where she was in a store. In her satchel was a bank book bearing her right name and address, 1745 Notre Dame-street, Montreal. She said she had no friends, was tired of life, and would be better off dead. In her satchel was the name of I. J. Thompson, St. Catharines, who, she said, was herfriend, but had left there and gone to Toronto. He was to have come here to-night but she got a letter this morning saying he could not come. Mrs. Whitley is between 35 and 40 years old, tall and fine looking, with light red hair. She is well educated, and has probably seen better days. The lady is now in the lockup awaiting an examination.

SPORTING ON THE GREEN.

The Public School Children's Games in Queen's Park—Drill Competition.

The children of the Public Schools sported on the green in Queen's Park Saturday afternoon. Thousands of the youngsters ran, jumped and frolicked until they were tired. There were a large number of events on the program and all were keenly contested.

The first drill competition was between the Fourth Book classes from the Church-street, the Park, Phœbe-street, and John-street schools. The drill was remarkably good, the results being out of a maximum of 110 points:

1. Jesse Ketchum	105
2. Church-street	100
3. Lesslieville	94

The fact of a few senior pupils being in the Jesse Ketchum squad, debarred this school from the first prize, which fell to Victoria-street, the former receiving a special prize.

The drill consited of ordinary squad drill in the first competition, and the same in the second with the addition of the drill with arms and the manual exercise. The judges—Major Hamilton and Major Delamere, Q.O.R., and Capt. Manley, R.G.—expressed themselves to the boys as highly pleased with their work. After three cheers for the judges and three for Capt. Thompson, the instructor, the boys dispersed. The senior classes compete on Thursday.

WAR ON THE BUCKET SHOPS.

An Attempt will be Made to Close up Those at Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 25.—War has been declared here by large grain and stock operators against the bucket shops, and an attempt will be made to close them up. This has been brought about by alleged dishonest dealing of one of the largest firms, which refuses to pay profits amounting to $17,000 in one case and in another to $5000 on a pork deal. An indictment was laid before the grand jury on a charge of gambling, but was thrown out. Now civil proceedings will be instituted to place the concern in insolvency. The prime mover against the bucket shops is A. Kirsack, a leather merchant. He is backed by others, who claim to have been swindled. The shop in question has forty-two branches in Canada, and has coined money everywhere. It has ruined several parties here.

A Fire at Acton.

ACTON, June 25.—Mrs. S. A. Secord's store and dwelling, corner of Mill and Main-streets, and occupied by G. Andrews & Co., was destroyed by fire this morning together with part of the stock and furniture. The fire was first discovered about 1 a.m., and was supposed to have been extinguished then. About 4 o'clock the alarm sounded for the same building; this time the fire broke out in the upper flats, and had made such headway that the building could not be saved. The building and stock were covered by insurance.

THE K. OF P. AT CHURCH.

Loyal Turnout of Brethren—Rev. Hugh Johnston's Sermon.

A special service was held in the Carlton-street Methodist Church yesterday afternoon, attended by the Knights of Pythias, who marched in processional order from the Castle, Victoria Hall, Queen-street. The Toronto Uniform Division, with Sir Knight Commander G. H. Mitchell, headed the procession, followed by Supreme Prelate Dr. J. S. King; Ontario Lodge No. 25, Mystic Lodge No. 1, and the Ivanhoe Lodge No. 4—numbering in all about 200 Knights. The musical portion of the service included two anthems and a couple of well-selected hymns.

Rev. Hugh Johnston, M.A., B.D., preached an eloquent and impressive sermon, taking as his text I. Peter, ii.,

17. Love the brotherhood.

The preacher said that Christianity is the religion of brotherhood. It set forth love as the dearest quality in the Almighty, as the very heart and centre of His being and declares that the life of God in man is love, for if we love one another God dwelleth in us. It is the only evidence and test of religion, for love is the fulfilling of the law. The question "How shall I discharge my duty to God, to my fellow being, and to myself?" was one which was answered in various ways, but high above all these sounded the inspired voice: "Love one another, honor all men, love the brotherhood, fear God, honor the King."

The text he considered singularly appropriate to the occasion, he having been honored with the request to preach before the Pythian Brotherhood of Toronto. As far as he could understand the foundation, principles and objects of the order, the Pythian Knighthood was a brotherhood of honorable men, interested in each other's welfare and sympathising with each other's misfortunes. Its official declaration of principles is that it is intended solely to disseminate friendship, charity and benevolence. Toleration in religion, obedience to law and loyalty to Government are its cardinal points. The order was instituted to uplift the fallen, to champion the cause of humanity, to soften down the asperities of life, to subdue party spirit, and by the sweet and powerful attractions of the glorious bounty of friendship, charity and benevolence to bind in one harmonious brotherhood men of all classes and of all opinions. Its cardinal doctrines inspite purity of thought and life.

The order was instituted in February, 1864, and has now a membership of nearly 20,000, grouped together in nearly 3000 castle halls in almost every quarter of the globe. Already the Knights had distributed for the relief of members over $20,000,000—a noble offering on the triple shrine of friendship, charity and benevolence. The sum annually devoted to the relief of the widows and orphans of deceased Knights was about $1,000,000; their total life insurance was $15,000,000; while their exchequer boasted of about $5,500,000. The society was founded upon the Word of God, and the true Pythian should be a Man's Christian—a Knight of the Order of the Cross.

The reverend gentleman proceeded to dwell upon the desirability of maintaining the principles upon which the society was formed, and the necessity of Christian unity. The church, he said, was not that day occupied by Pythians only, but every section of the Protestant church was represented. This was as it ought to be, and they were every day drawing nearer to that happy union. The church is a brotherhood, and they should cling together as brothers—they were all treading on the uptwinkpath as pilgrims to the same heaven.

A collection was taken up in aid of the Boys' Home and Girls' Home. The National Anthem having been sung and the benediction pronounced, the congregation separated.

Ancient Foresters at Church.

The Ancient Order of Foresters attended in a body an anniversary jubilee service in St. James' Cathedral yesterday afternoon. The members formed in line at Alice and Yonge-streets at half past 2 and marched to the Cathedral. First came the juvenile drill corps and the younger members, who were followed by the members of the fourteen lodges in the city and the Ancient Order of Shepherds, numbering in all about 600. An excellent sermon was preached by Rev. A. H. Baldwin of All Saints' from 1 John. iii.:

18. Let us not love in word, neither in tongue but in deed and in truth.

Miss Bailey sang a solo, "Show Me Thy Ways, O Lord," and the other features of the musical portion of the service were greatly well rendered. The collection was in aid of the hospital for sick children. All of the branches of the A.O.F. will take part in the jubilee procession July 1, and will, it is expected, turn out 2000 strong.

Modern Christianity.

The farewell sermon of Rev. Mark Guy Pearse was preached last evening in the Metropolitan Church. He took for his text Isaish xliv,.

17. Deliver me; for Thou art my God.

I do not want to hear the story of a dead Christ. I do not want, to hear so much about the Cross, that dark and gloomy picture. I want to hear, yea to talk of and be with a living Christ—and wherever I go I want a Christ that goes with me.

The preacher characterized church service as a homemade God; faith, repentance and all such are of Man's making. The reverend gentleman closed with these words:

My dear brethren, the last word I shall breathe in this my last sermon shall be the name of Jesus! Jesus.

"The Temple of the New Jerusalem."

Special sermons were preached in this place of worship in Elm-street, Toronto, yesterday by Rev. Chauncey Giles, President of the General Convention of the New Church in the United States. The Temple is a plain, unpretentious edifice, affording accommodation for nearly 200 worshippers, and the denomination, who are best known as Swedenborgians, have also a place of worship at Parkdale. For well nigh a score of years they have occupied the Elm-street Temple, and are energetic in the maintenance of their special tenets. Rev. Chauncey Giles is a venerable minister, of pleasant style and good delivery, and the two discourses given by him yesterday were well-reasoned, thoughtful preparations. The morning topic was, "The Man's Side and Friendly to Every Human Interest," and that in the evening was entitled "The Spiritual Wants of the Age and the Means the Lord has Provided for Supplying Them." The latter address was founded on Amos viii.:

11, 12. Behold the days come, saith the Lord God, that I will send a famine in the land, Not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord: and they shall wander from sea to sea, and from the north even to the east, they shall run to and fro to seek the word of the Lord, and shall not find it.

The preacher said that there had been no age in the history of humanity that answered more than the present one to this description. He then sketched the general intense desire for truth, and the activity of the pulpit, press and platform. Satisfying truth had been given to man and lay within the reach of all who would receive it. In the doctrines and principles of the New Church could be found an answer to all human questionings and the problems that had exercised the genius of men for centuries. They were affirmative and positive, and were not the product of human opinion, nor did they depend on the decrees of Councils. They held the same position in the spiritual world as did the laws of nature in the natural world. The new doctrines affirmed all the distinctive principles of Christianity and formed a spiritual science. They practically revealed a new world of supreme excellence and glory, and gave a new purpose to human life. They were universal in their application and were the fulfilment of the Divine promise, "behold I make all things new."

Mr. Giles will further explain the principles and doctrines of the New Church and the misconceptions regarding them in a lecture this evening in Victoria Hall, Queen-street east.

DEATH OF SIR M. C. CAMERON

THE LAST OF AN EMINENT AND WELL-KNOWN CANADIAN.

He Succumbs to Inflammation of the Bowels—Sketch of His Life—Lawyer, Politician and Judge—A Brilliant Career—Funeral Arrangements.

At the residence of his son, Dr. Irving H. Cameron, southwest corner of Sherbourne and Gerrard-streets, there died at 11 o'clock on Saturday night a man widely known throughout the whole of Canada, but particularly in Ontario, and as widely popular and respected as he was known. The man was Sir Matthew Crooks Cameron, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas Division of the High Court of Judicature of Ontario. For some weeks past he had been ill, caused by blood poisoning from a carbuncle. It was thought at first that he would recover but only four days ago he was attacked with inflammation of the bowels and these disorders, together with the constant suffering which he has experienced since the accident which made him a cripple from his boyhood, were too much for his slight frame and he had to succumb.

The death of the eminent Chief Justice is largely due to the zealous discharge of his official duties. For days he continued to sit upon the bench in an enfeebled condition. On June 18, after having been confined to the house for a few days, he was removed to the home of his son, Dr. Cameron, because of alterations being made in his own house, 144 Duke-street. His condition for a week was critical, but on Friday last he rallied somewhat, and hopes were entertained that he might recover. A change for the worse, however, was noticed on Saturday morning, and he grew continuously worse till death ensued at 11 o'clock that night.

Sir Matthew was conscious up to the moment of his death. The primary cause of death was the blood poisoning resulting from a carbuncle on the back of his neck, but the immediate cause was inflammation of the bowels. During his illness Dr. H. H. Wright was the attending physician, and Drs. Richardson and Ogden assisted in several consultations. Dr. Wright said Sir Matthew's death was undoubtedly due to his determination to discharge his duties when he should, in his enfeebled condition, have been in bed.

The late Chief Justice is the subject of a sketch in Dent's Canadian Portrait Gallery. Matthew Crooks Cameron was for many years the best known nisi prius lawyer at the bar of Upper Canada. Tence, and his personal appearance is, perhaps, familiar to a greater number of persons than is that of any other professional man in Western Canada. For some years prior to his elevation to the Bench he was also prominent in political life. He was at the Bar that his greatest laurels were won, and it is by his professional achievements that he will be longest remembered. He was born at Dundas, in the County of Wentworth, October 2, 1822, consequently being nearly 65 years of age at his death. His father, the late Mr. John McAlpine Cameron, was of Celtic stock, and emigrated from the Highlands of Scotland to Upper Canada in 1819, settling in Dundas, where he engaged in commerce. In 1826 he became Deputy Clerk of the Crown for the Gore District and removed to Hamilton, and subsequently entered the service of the Canada Company. He died in Toronto in 1866. The mother of the Chief Justice was Miss Nancy Hoy of Northumberland, England, who died half a dozen years ago.

Sir Matthew was the youngest of his family and the only one of it born in America. He was named after Mr. Matthew Crooks of Ancaster, a brother of the Hon. James Crooks and an uncle of the late Hon. Adam Crooks, Minister of Education. When he was 4 years of age his family removed from Dundas to Hamilton, where he attended a school kept by a Mr. Randall. Later he was a pupil at the Home District Grammar School, Newgate and New-streets, now Adelaide and Jarvis-streets, Toronto. In 1838 he entered Upper Canada College, where he remained till 1840, when his college career was cut short by a lamentable accident. While shooting on the Island with two companions one of them accidentally shot him in the ankle, shattering the joint. For months he was confined to his room, he was told that he would never again be able to walk without a crutch; and the active, sprightly boy of 18 suddenly became a thoughtful, serious student, whose one ambition was to be a light in the legal profession. He quit college, entered the law office of Gamble & Boulton, Toronto, was admitted as an attorney and solicitor in Trinity Term, 1848, and called to the Bar in Hilary Term 1849.

Then began a career which made him eminent in a high degree. While still a young man and new to the work he distinguished himself against such men as Henry Eccles, John Hillyard Cameron, Philip Vankoughnet and the present Chief Justice Hagarty, his Teutonic ancestry qualifications being a competent knowledge of his profession, a subtle power of analysing evidence, a ready command of language, an impressive utterance and delivery and a manner which was open and confidential without being familiar, and which made juries and judges listen to his convictions. He was an extraordinarily hard worker, and he was ever noted for the unremitting attention which he gave to his work. On the Bench he would sit from 9 in the morning till 7 in the evening without leaving it, never taking lunch. In his early legal career he practiced much in the Gore District, but later he extended his practice, and it is said that Lanark and Renfrew are the only two counties in the province in which he has not tried a brief. His first firm was one formed with his former principal, the late Mr. William Hidny Boulton. Later he entered into partnership with Hon. Wm. Cayley, Dr. Daniel McMichael, Q.C., who married a sister of Sir Matthew's wife, both of whom subsequently admitted.

In 1859 Sir Matthew began to take a part in public affairs, being elected to represent St. James' Ward in the Toronto City Council. Two years later he was an unsuccessful candidate for the Mayoralty. In 1861 he was elected to represent North Ontario in the Assembly, but in the general election of 1861 he was defeated, only to be re-elected in 1864, when a vacancy occurred in the representation for North Ontario. He sat in the Assembly until Confederation; when he was defeated in an effort to be elected to the House of Commons. Then he was elected to represent East Toronto in the Assembly, became a member of the Sandfield Macdonald Coalition Administration, was Provincial Secretary and Registrar from July, 1867, to July 12, 1871, when he became Commissioner of Crown Lands. After the downfall of the Government he led the Opposition against Hon. Edward Blake's Government. He was always a staunch Conservative and a thoroughly honest politician.

Sir Matthew was appointed a Q.C. in 1863, a Bencher of the Ontario Law Society in 1871, a Puisne Judge of the Court of Queen's Bench in 1878, and Chief Justice of the Common Pleas Division in 1884. Only two months ago he received the honor of Knighthood. He was the first President of the Toronto Conservative Association and was connected with many other organizations.

The deceased was married in 1851 to
