LASSOED AUSTRIAN GENERAL

Rome, Sept. 13.—Corporal Salvatore Sardina, who captured an Austrian general with a lasso on the front, has arrived at Rome.

Details of his exploit, published in the Tribuna, state that he had climbed a tree when the Austrian general left a group of officers and came under the tree. The corporal dropped from the tree upon the general, subsequently throwing a cord around his neck. The general fired his revolver, wounding the Italian in the hand. The corporal nevertheless compelled him to surrender and took him to an Italian trench.

Soon afterward the King and Gen. Cadorna arrived, and the King, seeing the general, asked him why, as he was so robust, he had been captured by a single man. The general shrugged his shoulders. Sardina was promoted and awarded the medal for valor and 1,000 lire.

Radical Changes Now.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Rome, Sept. 13.—The next meeting of the Italian cabinet will deal with new measures upon which the quadruple entente allies have decided for the future conduct of the war, according to the correspondent in this city of the Turin Stamps. These measures are said to be analagous to those employed by the Germans to assure their recent military successes. The Agencia Libra says the recent visit of General Joffre to the Italian front and Emperor Nicholas' assumption of the active command of the Russian army, are indications of radical changes which are imminent in the conduct of the war.
