Bicyclist Receives Probably Fatal Injuries in Garrison Hollow.

Toronto, July 9.—John Thompson, a butcher's employe, living with his wife and family at 93 northcote avenue, lies in the General Hospital with a badly-cut head and internal injuries which may result fatally. He was riding a bicycle in Queen street west at 10:30 last night, and was on the devil strip in Garrison Hollow, when cars approached from both directions. He tried to ride past the west-bound car before the other reached him, but was unsuccessful, and was caught between the two. His bicycle was smashed, and on examination it was found that he had received an ugly cut in the head and several bruises, while it was evident that there were several internal injuries. Dr. Watson, who was called, ordered his removal to the hospital. He was unconscious from the time of the accident, and the physicians entertain grave fears of his recovery.

Splendidly Treated

Americans Getting Their Full Share of British Hospitality.

Great Review in Their Honor at Aldershot.

Cheek by Jowl With Princes and Lords.

Unusual Honors for Col. Walker, the American Commander—A Brilliant Spectacle.

London, July 9.—The reception accorded to the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts by the officers of the Royal Artillery at the latter's mess at Woolwich, yesterday evening, was the most enthusiastic it is possible to imagine. Col. Lockhead, of the Royal Artillery, presided, supported by the Earl of Denbig, Gen. Morris and Prince Christian Victor. The toasts of "The Queen" and "The President of the United States" were drunk standing and in silence. Lieut. Savage, of the Bostonians, responded for the visiting Ancients, and the Earl of Denbigh replied for the Honorable Artillery Company. All reference to a closer union of the two countries were loudly applauded. The American Ancients returned to the Hotel Cecil at 4 o'clock this morning.

The scenes of yesterday were repeated in the courtyard of the Hotel Cecil this morning. Large crowds assembled as early as 7 o'clock, and there was much enthusiasm displayed. The visiting detachment of the Ancients marched to Waterloo railroad station today, accompanied by the bands of the Honorable Artillery Company and of the Salem Cadets. There was loud cheering for the Americans all along the line of route, and the visitors left the station at about 9 o'clock for Aldershot, to witness a review of the troops. The weather was very hot and the road to Waterloo Station was dusty in the extreme, but for all that the streets were more crowded than they were yesterday, and the Bostonians presented a fine appearance under the brilliant sun, which reflected their glittering accoutrements.

When the men entered the railroad station the band of the Honorable Artillery Company struck up "The Star Spangled Banner," and the standard-bearers waved their flags as Col. Walker saluted with his saber. Then there was a tremendous outburst of cheering and shouts of "Good for the old Stars and Stripes," "Bravo for Cleveland," "What a magnificent body of men," etc. The American artillerymen were received at the railroad station by Lord Wolseley, commander-in-chief of the forces, Sir Evelyn Wood, the quartermaster-general of the army, and other officers of high rank, all in full uniform. The United States ambassador, Mr Thos. F. Bayard, his secretary, Mr. Carter, and the other officials of the United States Embassy accompanied the Bostonians on the train to Aldershot.

The ancients arrived at Aldershot at 10 o'clock, and were met on the platform by the Duke of Connaugh, commander of the military district, Sir Redvers Buller, the adjutant-general to the forces, and the quartermaster's staff, the latter on horseback. When the train stopped at the depot the Duke of Connaught said: "Where is the American ambassador?" Mr. Bayard was pointed out to the duke, and the latter, after welcoming him, escorted the American diplomat to a carriage, which was immediately driven to Laffan's Plain. Accompanying Mr. Bayard were Messrs. Carter and Hoge, who were presented by the Duke of Connaught by the American ambassador. No speeches were made. The Ancients were then drawn up on the platform, and the Duke of Connaught, after welcoming Col. Walker and the officers of the Honorable Artillery Company, inspected the visiting detachment.

The Americans were then conveyed to Laffan's Plain in over 40 War Department wagons. The sun was scorching as the long procession started at 10:30, and the route to the plain was lined with villagers and others who warmly cheered the Americans. The Duke of Connaught, Lord Wolseley and the headquarters staff were on horseback. When the plain was reached it was seen that the saluting point was flanked by a large number of coaches and drags, filled with ladies. For the accommodation of the visitors and their friends special stands had been erected. Nearly 20,000 troops were paraded, and they presented a brilliant spectacle, with uniforms trim, neat and well fitting, accoutrements polished to the utmost and arms glistening spotlessly clear.

The sham fight commenced soon after the arrival of the American Ancients. The troops were under the command of Generals Swaine and Bergough. After some well executed maneuvers had been carried out, the whole force marched past the saluting point, where the Stars and Stripes floated, a short distance from the royal standard. In all, there were 2 regiments of infantry, cavalry and artillery on the field. The carriage containing the United States ambassador was drawn up under the royal standard and next to the royal carriages, containing the Duchess of Connaughmt and her two daughters.

The march past commenced at 1 o'clock, Lord Wolseley had previously introduced Col. Walker to the Duchess and the Princess, and then Mr. Bayard and Col. Walker stood by the royal carriage. Lord Wolseley, however, asked Col. Walker to share the salute with him. This is a great and unusual honor. Col. Walker accepted and stood by the side of Lord Wolseley's horse. Lord Wolseley, the Duke of Connaught, and Col. Walker, were the only officers in advance of the royal standard.
