DISFIGURED FOR LIFE!

Mothers Should Realize What Neglect of Skin-Troubles May Mean to Children.

A lifetime of disfigurement and suffering often results from the neglect, in infancy or childhood, of minor affections of the skin and scalp. A mother overlooks a little rash or attempts some simple treatment and in a day, perhaps, the little one is covered with severe eczema or a similar distressing eruption. Then the struggle for a cure begins.

A multitude of remedies are tried, doctor after doctor consulted and hospitals visited, but too often the suffering extends, without substantial relief, from days to weeks, weeks to months and months to years. Added to this is the ever-present fear that the itching, burning and disfiguration will become chronic, marring future welfare and making life miserable.

In the prevention of the simple skin troubles from which all this suffering so often arises and in establishing a condition of skin health that makes eruptions impossible, mothers are assured that nothing is purer, sweeter or more effective than Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. And greater still, if possible, is the success of these simple household remedies in the treatment of the severer skin affections themselves. With the first warm bath with Cuticura Soap and gentle application of Cuticura Ointment, the itching and burning of eczema cease, the child falls into a refreshing sleep, the mother rests and for the first time, possibly, in many weeks peace falls on a distracted household. Frequently a single cake of Cuticura Soap and box of Cuticura Ointment are sufficient.

Positive as is this statement, it is justified by more than thirty years of pronounced success. To quote but a single instance, Robert Mann, of Proctor, Minnesota, says:

"Our boy was born in Toronto on Oct. 13, 1908, and when three months old a slight rash appeared on his cheek. What appeared to be a water blister would form. When it broke, matter would run out, starting new blisters until his entire face, head and shoulders were a mass of scabs and you could not see a particle of clear skin. We tried about every advertised remedy without avail. Indeed some of them only added to his suffering and one in particular, the ——— Remedy, almost put the infant into convulsions. The family doctor prescribed for him and told us to bathe the baby in buttermilk. This did not do any good, so we took him to a hospital. He was treated as an out-patient twice a week and he got worse, if anything. We decided that it could not be cured and must run its course and so we just kept his arms bandaged to his side to prevent his tearing his flesh. We left Toronto and shortly after our arrival in Duluth, the Cuticura Remedies were recommended. We started using them in May, 1909, and soon the cure was complete. You would not think he was the same child for Cuticura made his skin perfectly clear and he is entirely free from the skin disease. There has been no return. We still use only Cuticura Soap for baby's bath."

Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Pills are sold by druggists everywhere. Send to Potter Drug & Chem Corp., Boston, Mass., for a free copy of their latest 32-page Cuticura Book on treatment of skin diseases.

REV. DR. ROSS' TRIBUTE TO LATE FRANCIS LOVE

The following is the eulogy which Rev. Dr. Ross, of St. Andrew's Church, delivered at the funeral of Magistrate Love Monday.

A Man Greatly Beloved.

If I were to choose a text today it would be the words spoken of a Jewish seer, who passed his life on a foreign strand and died far from the land of his fathers, "A man greatly beloved." A higher eulogy or one that grips more closely the universal heart of humanity can scarcely be spoken of anyone. That our departed friend was greatly, deeply loved, this audience testifies in no uncertain terms. It is witnessed by the universal expressions of affection and esteem which have been so profuse and evidently very sincere on every hand. It has been proclaimed by the tremor in the voice when neighbor met neighbor these few days and said, "Frank Love has passed away! Well he will be greatly missed." The newspapers whose business it is to gauge popular feeling and to supply it with the food it desires, have gathered up every scrap of accessible information about him, every incident and anecdote of his early career, because they know it will be eagerly read with moist eyes by almost every citizen of London. There are not many among us whose death would call forth such a general feeling of sadness and personal loss. Our Maker has not given to every man the power to play on the emotions of his fellows with so masterly and kindly a hand, and not everyone who has the gift in some measure is so willing to forget himself and minister joy to his brethren.

In attempting to account for the affection he inspired we are to remember,

His Unfailing Cheerfulness.

One who knew him well speaks of him as "an apostle of the joyful emotions." Whether on the field of sport, or round the social board, or at the serious business of life, his bright, optimistic spirit was an inspiration to those around him. Even the intensely depressing effect of the dread disease that was sapping his life could not dim his hopefulness, or bring any gloomy or despondent complaints from his lips. Now most men have trouble enough in their own lives, and it is a relief to associate with cheery spirits who can make them forget their ills. This quality drew children to him, for they love the sunny soul. Little ones have a wonderful power of penetrating to the heart of a man. No gruff exterior can deceive them! No groans or whining make-believe can persuade them that a hypocrite is a good man. They penetrate to the innermost recesses of the spirit by the secret freemasonry of love! Our friend was loved by his own children with an enthusiastic and remarkable affection; and he shared all their confidences to an unusual degree. And he was a welcome playmate and a delightful companion to all children, for he retained the child's spirit to the end. Blessed be the man whom the little folks love, and whose coming they hail with shouts of joy.

2. Another element in his character which drew men was his generosity, a strange quality in a police magistrate, in whose heart the milk of human kindness is supposed to be somewhat soured! No one need wonder if it were so, considering the thankless and depraved, the hopeless, wicked and spiteful pieces of human driftwood with which he has to deal. But he never got hardened; nay, rather his daily contact with dissipation and want, and all forms of innocent and guilty misery, seems to have drawn out into constant exercise the finer sympathies of his nature, and filled him with a vehement desire to be helpful. Time would fail me to speak of his charities given out of the fullness of a generous heart, and out of a limited income, benefactions often unjust to himself and those dependent on him, sacrifices made where no eye but the Master's saw him, sacrifices of time, of physical strength, of vital energy, services which he did not need to render, and which few men in his position would have undertaken. Nor do I believe he would wish me to speak of those cases in which he took upon himself the penalty which his sense of justice compelled him to impose on some transgressor, when he paid the fine, the cause home helpless wife would suffer if the sinner were imprisoned.

3. But I believe that much of the affection and esteem in which he was held arose from the efficiency with which he performed the duties of his office. He was spoken of far and near as an ideal magistrate. It is the opinion of those most capable of judging, that he administered his trust with admirable insight and prudence. I fear our citizens do not know the deep debt of gratitude they owe to any man who fills that office well, still less can they understand the difficulties with which he is daily face to face. One of the saddest places on earth to a sensitive soul is the police court room. Its very atmosphere is debilitating. There stand the poor drunkards in their ill-smelling garments, their faces bleared, their limbs shaking, their nerve force gone, their will power destroyed, muttering the same old lame excuses. There is daily recited the same fearful story of ruined homes, heart-broken wives and blighted children. Thither are brought the hardened criminals, the ulcers on the face of civilization, a menace to our public peace. They must be punished, but it is not heartsome work. Then there are the boys, handicapped with an evil heredity, who have begun to follow the downward footsteps of a vicious ancestry. There, alas! are sometimes girls, allowed by careless parents to wander out at night, who are falling into evil ways, who are in grave danger of a very real and a very terrible hell which is even now yawning at their feet. The problem before the magistrate is how to arrest their moral descent and reclaim them for a useful and happy life. It is very easy to mechanically inflict the penalty deserved; but to take the burden of this sinning and yet valuable soul on his own heart, to penetrate below the exterior and read the real disposition of the offender, to so mingle stern warning and condign punishment with hopeful encouragement that reformation might be effected and a life conserved—all this was never easy, but this was our friend's conception of his office, this was the ideal he held before him all through the years.

Yet he was no weak, putty man to be easily moved by the bluff of every bold transgressor. Old and hardened offenders, who thought they could presume on his good nature, were often astonished at his stiff sentences. But when he saw penitence and shame struggling in some beginner in crime, he was lenient, that leniency might awaken the slumbering manhood and lead to better things. He settled many quarrels between husbands and wives, and thus preserved the integrity of homes which would otherwise have been broken up. Not the least important part of his work was done outside the court room, in his own house mostly, where the poor and unfortunate who had come to regard him as their true friend, besieged him at all times of the day and night, where they sat on his verandah for hours waiting for him to return from his official duties, and although he might be much wearied, he would listen patiently to their woes, and appoint other interviews.

I do not know whether there will be many aspirants for his office among his brethren of the legal profession, but I know that there are very many of us in other callings who would not care to fill it. Yet he regarded it with enthusiasm as a privilege and a blessing, a sacred trust reposed in him by the Master whose name he bore, an opportunity for serving the weakest of human kind such as comes to very few.

It is remarkable that he had so few enemies. Some believe he had none. It would perhaps be too much to say that he had not a single enemy. But I suppose there never was a man in a similar position, called every day to frustrate nefarious schemes, to nip some budding fraud, to tear to pieces flimsy excuses, to make the just consequences of crime return on the wrong-doer's head, who had so few people holding spite against him, nay, even retaining the esteem and confidence of those whom he punished.

And now a word regarding his personal inner life. No man could regret more bitterly than he the moral aberrations and mis-spent time of his earlier years. When he turned to the Master and publicly professed his faith in the saving power of Jesus of Nazareth, some of his comrades were inclined to regard it as a jest. When a poor woman in the court room explained that she could not find him the evening before because he had been at the prayer meeting, the information raised a laugh. But today the humor of the situation has faded away, and the stern realities remain. Frank Love was no hypocrite. Rather he was inclined to emphasize the worst side of his nature lest men should think him better than he was. He faced the great darkness humbly, yet cheerily, as he had lived, trusting to the forgiving mercy of our compassionate Redeemer. It would be good for us, his fellow-sinners, to possess his spirit of contrition and his child-like faith.

ANNUAL TEA IN TALBOT ST. CHURCH

School Room Was Filled Last Evening With a Jolly Crowd.

The annual tea and entertainment of Talbot Street Baptist Bible School was held last evening. TICKETS IN FRENCH

Question To Be Finally Disposed of by Conference at Montreal.

Montreal, Jan. 11—The question of railway tickets being printed both in French and English will come up for final discussion by the railways at a conference to be held in Montreal today.

There has been considerable misapprehension of the intention of the railway companies regarding the printing of their tickets in French. The railways say that there is little or no demand for tickets in both languages, the names of the stations are practically identical, and the ticket conditions simple and generally understood and advertised in French newspapers and by French bills for excursion tickets.

While some of the railways have been advised that the new law exceeds the power of the Provincial Legislature, it is not considered likely that any of them will contest the law.

CARRIED OUT TO SEA.

Astrakan, Russia, Jan. 10.—Eighty-five fishermen were carried out into the Caspian Sea on an ice floe today. A steamer from Baku went to the rescue of the men, but the chances that any of the number will escape death were poor.

RUSSIA STILL AGROUND.

Libau, Russia, Jan. 10.—The steamer Russia, from New York, for Libau, which went on the rocks outside the port Sunday, remained fast today with bad holes in her bottom. A part of the crew have been landed.

MR. POCOCK CHAIRMAN OF THE WATER BOARD

Hospital Trust Is Also Holding a Meeting Today.

The organization meeting of the water commission, as well as of the hospital trust, will take place this afternoon.

It is quite certain that Water Commissioner Philip Pocock will be selected as chairman for the coming year. He occupied the position for part of last year, when Mr. McMahen was taken ill. The members of the board are of the opinion that he is entitled to a further term, and it will be given him without opposition.

It is expected that Mr. J. C. Judd will be named chairman of the hospital trust. He has been the presiding officer for the past year, and his colleagues are unanimous in wishing him to continue for another year at least.

REVOLT IN HONDURAS

Insurrectionists Capture the Bay Islands and Attack Mainland.

New Orleans, Jan. 10.—A special from Port Barrios, Guatemala, this morning states that the revolutionary forces operating on the north coast of Honduras, after capturing all the bay islands, attacked the mainland and seized Cape Triumfo, Bishops Point and Micas Lagoon, in addition to the town of Tela, which was reported captured in wireless dispatches from Puerto Cortez last night.

The special states that the gunboat Hornet last Saturday convoyed a large fleet of schooners loaded with troops to the mainland, and that Tela fell Sunday without a struggle.

It is asserted that Manuel Bonilla, who leads the revolution, has complete control of the entire bay islands group, including the islands of Ruatan, Bona Ch, Barbara; and Utilla, and that all of the Davila officials on the islands have gone over to the revolutionary cause.

FINCH SENTENCED

London Agent of American Company Stole a Large Sum.

London, Jan. 10.—A. W. Finch, the London agent of Phelps, Dodge & Co., of New York, was today sentenced to one year's imprisonment for defrauding his employers of $15,000.

In pronouncing sentence, the court stated that the most extraordinary feature of the case was the fact that although the defalcation was so large, the complaining company had recommended mercy for the prisoner.

PENSION LIST GROWS.

Washington, Jan. 10.—The House of Representatives today passed the Sulloway general pension bill, which grants pensions ranging from $12 to $36 a month to all soldiers who served 90 days in the United States army in the civil war, or 60 days in the Mexican war, and who have reached the age of 62 years. The bill adds about $45,000,000 a year to the pension roll.

BOTH REACHED THE POLE

Schley Says That Peary and Cook Can Share the Honors.

New York, Jan. 10.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook received this letter today from Rear Admiral W. S. Schley, U. S. N., president of the Arctic Club, under whose auspices Dr. Cook made his expedition to the north:

"Washington, Jan. 7, 1911.

"Dear Dr. Cook:

"I thank you very much for your kind letter, and I would assure you that I have never varied in the belief that you and Civil Engineer Peary reached the pole. After reading the published account daily and critically, of both claimants, I was forced to the conclusion from their striking similarity that each of you was the eye-witness of the other's success.

"Without collusion it would have been impossible to have written accounts so similar, and yet in view of the ungracious controversy that has occurred since that view would be impossible to imagine.

"While I have never believed that either of you got within a pin-point of the Pole, I have steadfastly held that both got as near the goal as was possible to ascertain, considering the imperfections of the instrument used and the personal errors of individuals under circumstances so adverse to absolute accuracy.

"Again I have been broad enough in my views to believe that there was room enough at the pole for two; and never narrow enough to believe that only one man got there.

"I believe that both of you are entitled to the honor of the achievement.

"(Signed) Very truly, yours,

"W. SCHLEY."

In Wood Green, England, there is living a woman of 105 years of age who can read without glasses.

Among the exhibits at the twenty fifth show of the London and Provincial Ornithological Society, held in the Lambeth Baths, was a pure white canary. Both its parents were ordinary colored Yorkshires.

Strength Comes

Not From What You Eat, But From What You Digest.

A Tablet Digests a Meal—Trial Package Free.

Most people eat most foods without discrimination it matters little what. Few stop to think what that food does for them. This is the first turn on the road to dyspepsia. Reckless disregard of the proper choice of foods, rapid eating and improper mastication, are the unnoticed causes of all stomach disorders from the slight ache to the malignant cancer.

There is nothing more revolting, than a dyspeptic stomach, a very vat for putrefaction, sending forth its poison throughout the entire system, depressing the brain, befouling the breath, souring the taste, deadening the muscles, incapacitating the liver and kidneys for their work, debilitating the heart, choking the lungs and clogging the bowels.

All of these disagreeable and dangerous conditions are due to the improper digestion of food and the consequent assimilation of poison. What else can be expected? If the food lies in the stomach, if the system is constipated, fermentation is the natural outcome. It shows itself in sour, watery risings, belchings, heartburn and painful breathing.

There is only one way to relieve this condition. If the stomach refuses to digest your food put something into it that will. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are nothing but digestives. They are not a medicine. They work when the stomach will not.

Each tablet contains enough pepsin, diastase, golden seal and other digestive elements to reduce 3,000 grains of ordinary food to the proper consistency for assimilation into the blood.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are absolutely pure. There is nothing harmful in them, as shown in their indorsement by 40,000 physicians in the United States and Canada.

Ask your family physician his opinion of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and if he is honest toward you he will state positively that they will cure your stomach trouble, whatever it may be, unless you have waited too long and have allowed your disorder to develop into cancer.

Act today, and begin to end your suffering. A free trial package will be sent to your address upon request. The 50 cent size packages are for sale at your druggist's. F. A. Stuart Company, 150 Stuart building, Marshall, Mich.

INDIGESTION GOES IN FIVE MINUTES

Heartburn, Gas, Dyspepsia and Other Stomach Misery Vanishes Before You Realize It.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch Gas, and Eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, Bad Taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave, sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or Indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or Indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Biliousness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for Indigestion or Gastritis or any other stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion.

GOT IT

Got Something Else, Too.

"I liked my coffee strong and I drank it strong," says a Penn, woman, telling a good story, "and although I had headaches nearly every day I just would not believe there was any connection between the two.

I had weak and heavy spells and palpitation of the heart, too, and although husband told me he thought it was coffee that made me so poorly, and did not drink it himself for he said it did not agree with him, yet I loved my coffee and thought I just couldn't do without it.

"One day a friend called at my home—that was a year ago. I spoke about how well she was looking and she said:

"'Yes, and I feel well, too. It's because I am drinking Postum in place of ordinary coffee.'

"I said, what is Postum?

"Then she told me how it was a food-drink and how much better she felt since using it in place of coffee or tea, so I sent to the store and bought a package and when it was made according to directions it was so good I have never bought a pound of coffee since. I began to improve immediately.

"I cannot begin to tell you how much better I feel since using Postum and leaving coffee alone. My health is better than it has been for years and I cannot say enough in praise of this delicious food drink."

Take away the destroyer and put a rebuilder to work and Nature will do the rest. That's what you do when Postum takes coffee's place in your diet. "There's a Reason."
