SEVEN DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE!

(By Telegraph to the News Room.)

The Royal Mail steamer Niagara arrived at Halifax at 6 o'clock on Wednesday morning. She left Liverpool on the 6th inst., and brings 60 passengers; among those who landed at Halifax are Messrs. R. Wright, J. L. Inches, and W. B. Nicholson, of this City.

Cotton was in active demand, and prices had advanced fully 1-8th of a penny. Sales of the week [illegible]. Breadstuffs were generally [illegible], flour had slightly declined. Indian Corn was in limited demand.

Sugar—Sales moderate, and prices unchanged. Coffee was very quiet but not lower. Tea but little enquired for.

Trade in the manufacturing districts was healthy. In Manchester, goods and yarns were in demand at improving prices.

Freights to all ports in the United States had advanced. Emigrants came forward more freely, and passenger rates are 10s. higher.

The Bullion in the Bank of England now amounts to £19,239,021. Discounts were easy at former rates. The Consol market had improved, and prices on the 5th closed at 97¼ to 97⅜ for money and account.

The Anti-Corn-Law-League had been revived. Large meetings for the purpose of resuscitating the body had been held at Manchester and Leeds. At the former City, subscriptions to the amount of nearly £40,000 had been made.

The re-elections of the new Ministers, whose seats had become vacant in the House of Commons, was going forward. Sir John Packington, the Colonial Secretary, and Lord John Manners, Chief Commissioner of Woods and Forests had been returned. Lord Henry Lennox, a Lord of the Treasury had also been re-elected. The speeches of all these gentlemen were very cautious as to free trade, throwing the consideration of the question overboard for the present, and looking to the results of the next general election as a justification for interfering with the Commercial policy of the late Sir Robert Peel.

The new Lord Chancellor, Sir E. Sugden, had taken his seat in the House of Lords, as Baron St. Leonards.

IRELAND.—The Earl of Clarendon has taken final leave of Ireland. Lord Naas, one of the new Ministry, was to be opposed in his re-election for Kildare.

FRANCE.—The elections were progressing favourably to the Government. Here and there a member of the opposition was returned, but that was all.

The Bank of France had reduced the rate of interest to 3 per cent. Railroad Shares and Bonds will be discounted as commercial paper.

The re-organization of the National Guards was going forward.

Gen. Cavignac has been elected for the third, the most important district in France.

INDIA.—The overland mail at London brings dates from Calcutta to Jan. 24th, and Bombay to Feb. 3d. Commercial affairs at the latter place were dull. The import market at Calcutta was somewhat improved. The Burmese war was concluded, and the mouths of the Irrawaddy had been blockaded—the batteries of Rangoon destroyed, and 300 persons killed.

RUSSIA.—An official letter from the Foreign Office, of March 2d, states that the Emperor of Russia had given instruction to the authorities on the East coast of Siberia and the North West coast of North America, to furnish Capt. Beatson with all possible assistance in his search for Sir J. Franklin.

UNROLLING OF THE MUMMY FOUND IN ST. STEPHEN'S CRYPT.

On Saturday, at noon, a deputation of members of the Antiquarian Society met at the New Palace of Westminster, for the purpose of examining the mummy, or preserved body, found a few days since in the east wall of St. Stephen's Crypt. Mr. Barry, the architect, was in attendance to receive the party, among whom we noticed Dr. Lyon Playfair, Mr. Hawkins and Mr. Franks, of the antiquarian department of the British Museum, Mr. Prior, Mr. Bruce, and Mr. Ackerman, secretary to the Antiquarian Society, Mr. Pettigrew, accompanied by his son, Dr. W. Pettigrew, was also present, these gentlemen having kindly undertaken the responsible duty of unrolling the body.

Until Saturday the mummy had remained half embodded in the stone wall where it was discovered, nothing being visible beyond the crozier and the upper part of the cere-cloths in which the remains were folded. The examination having been determined on, the body was removed from its narrow cell at an early hour on Saturday morning, and placed upon a bench within an enclosed boarding, where the gentlemen appointed to examine it assembled as above stated. The removal was effected without injury, beyond the fracture of the right fore-arm, which had been injured by the pickaxe of the workman who first broke in upon the venerable remains. The preparations having been completed, Dr. Pettigrew commenced his operations by making an incision down the centre of the abdomen, and in a lateral direction round the skull. After some little difficulty a layer of five thick canvas cloths were removed from off the face. A second series, bound round by string, then presented themselves. In due course these were loosened, and to the great satisfaction of all presented, on being raised, the face was disclosed in a most remarkable state of preservation. The cartilage of the nose was not at all decayed, and with the lips and other portion of the face remained perfectly flexible to the touch. Even the expression of the countenance was in a degree retained, and it was remarked that identity of the individual would not have been impossible had any compeer of his venerable age been present. The abdomen was found to be folded in ten layers of canvas cloth, each of which appeared to have been soaked in wax and nitre, or salts of some such description. On the wrappers being removed the stomach was found retreated from the cloth and to have become a mass of adipose matter, in which state the legs and arms were also found. No writing of any description was discovered in the folds, nor was any mark leading to an indentity of the individual found. The body measured 5 feet 11 inches in length; and, judging from the front teeth remaining, three or four of which in the lower jaw were much worn, must have been that of a very aged man. The mouth was filled with tow, which had evidently been steeped in wax, and a small quantity of hair remained on the chin and upper lip. The body was enclosed in ten layers of very thick canvas, and bound round by string, the latter being in a very remarkable state of preservation. The crozier was entirely of oak, with an elaborately carved crook—the whole measuring six feet two inches in length. Although there remains an absence of any positive proof as to the identity of the body, it may be stated that the gentlemen present [illegible] the presumption of its being [illegible], Bishop of St. David's, who died about the middle of the fifteenth century, [illegible]. The examination having been completed, the remains were placed in a strong elm coffin, and screwed down for the present they remain in a place of security, but it is understood the body will hereafter be replaced as nearly as possible in the spot where it was discovered.—[London Observer.]

SAINT PATRICK'S DAY.

The members of the Saint Patrick's Society, celebrated the Festival of their Patron Saint, on Wednesday evening last, when upwards of seventy gentlemen, including the Officers of the Sister Societies, and many of our most respected citizens, partook of a most sumptuous Dinner, served up in Messrs. Scammell's usual good style. Conviviality and politeness were the ruling spirits of the evening, and many fine songs were admirably sung on the occasion—among which some of the charming melodies of the late Tom Moore, were beautifully given. Irish wit in all its exuberance abounded, [illegible] we were particularly pleased with one from CHAS. DOHERTY, Esq. in reply to Ireland, which contained many happy allusions and beautiful passages, exhibiting much research, and a thorough acquaintance with that country, her eminent men, position and prospects. THOS. PARKS, Esq. the President, presided during the evening. We subjoin a list of the toasts given from the Chair:—

CONSUMPTION.

Though often hereditary, it arise more frequently from causes which low medical writers have yet noticed. The higher classes are more subject to it than the lower, who have to labour for their support by exercising their arms, by which means the viscera of the chest and all the organs of the stomach are developed. These are the regions where all the vital organs are seated. The upper classes, on the other hand, generally exercise their lower limbs, which can never be done but at the sacrifice and expense of the upper extremities and chest. Alas! consumption and premature deaths are but too often the results of their error.

From the Cincinnati Daily Times.

We would advise our readers who are laboring under an affection of the lungs, to make immediate trial of this truly excellent medicine. The most intelligent and respectable families of our city have adopted it as a favorite family medicine; and persons predisposed to Consumption who have used it, speak in the highest terms of its efficacy.

HARD TIMES.

Bank Directors may curtail their discount sheets, and button up their pockets, at the approach of their customers, and all that, in this ice-bound country, during the months of February and March; Landlords may stand in the sunny side of the Market Square, and talk about their good stands, that situation or this, for business; the grand secret is, do you understand thoroughly the business you are engaged in; if so, your situation will answer. The WOOLLEN HALL, opposite the Carleton Ferry Landing, next the Commercial Bank, stands unrivalled in this City. That establishment gives employment to about fifty families, making Coats, Pantaloons, Vests, Shirts, Drawers, &c. A great portion of the New Brunswick public must patronise that establishment, otherwise they could not employ so many workmen this season of the year.—They are clearing out their stock now on hand.—Coats that sold a month ago for forty-shillings, now thirty shillings, and all other goods in their line equally cheap FOR CASH.

☞ SLIGHT COLDS, if neglected, lead to Chronic Coughs and Consumption. They can speedily be removed by an agreeable compound, called, Bliss's Cod Liver Oil Candy, for sale at the Drug store of S. L. TILLEY, King street.
