International Tennis Tourney.

The Niagara International Tennis Tournament will be held this year on Wednesday, Aug. 27, and following days. This is the eighteenth annual renewal of the oldest tennis tournament in Canada, and, in fact, the Niagara tournament is one of the few in America that have been held consecutively every year covering so long a period of unbroken success. This year it is expected that the team of English players, composed of Messrs. Doherty, Mahoney and Pim, will be present and will take part in the doubles and possibly the singles. Invitations have been extended to them and unless something unforeseen occurs they will be present. The events will be as follows: All comers' singles, for international challenge trophy; handicap singles, men's doubles and ladies' singles. The honorary secretary is Mr. Stewart Houston, 182 Victoria-street, Toronto, from whom all information can be obtained.

Had His Hair Singed.

While waiting for my turn in that big barber shop on Richmond-street east, I noticed some gentlemen having their hair singed and the proprietor informed me that singing the hair and shampooing the head with the real egg, was one of the best treatments to preserve the hair from falling out. This shop is certainly a credit to Toronto and the only union shop that I have been in yet.

SEAWANHAKA CUP RACES

Tecumseh, American Challenger, Won Second Race From the Trident, in Close Sail.

RACE OVER A TRIANGULAR COURSE

Winner Crossed Line 1 m. 22 secs. in the Lead—Weather Conditions Favored Yankee Boat.

Montreal, Aug. 8.—Under light weather the Tecumseh, the American challenger, defeated the Canadian defender Trident in the second race for the Seawanhaka Cup to-day on Lake St. Louis, being 1 minute 22 seconds in the lead. There was very little breeze, and the weather distinctly favored the American boat. The race was over a triangular course of 4 miles, sailed three times, making a total distance of 12 miles. The first leg was a beat to windward, the second a reach and the third a free run.

At 1.45 the preparatory signal was blown. At 1.50 the warning signal was blown, and five minutes later the boats started. Tecumseh immediately worked into the windward berth, and held Trident under her lee.

After a few minutes they came about, Tecumseh still having the advantage. She, however, was not carrying her sails as comfortably as Trident, and under heavy pulls she lay right down on her leeward rail, and fell off to leeward. Trident, however, stood up well, and was pointing very high. Tecumseh soon came about again on the port tack, and was easily able to cross Trident's bow. After holding her course for a few moments, she went back to starboard again, both boats now on the same tack, Tecumseh astern, but well to windward. The yachts now held out on a long reach.

The wind now freshened, and, under its influence, the Tecumseh was sometimes compelled to ease up, and thus lost considerable of her speed.

Soon Trident's superior ability to stand up in the breeze and her quality of pointing high began to tell, and she gradually worked herself into the weather berth. After splitting tacks once or twice Trident drew for the first mark, closely followed by Tecumseh, and rounded it at 2.24.30. Tecumseh came around at 2.25.00.

Immediately after rounding the mark Tecumseh set her balloon jib, and began to close up slowly on Trident. Reaches being the strong point of the scow type, the interest became intense, as, if Tecumseh could catch her rival by the time the four mile buoy was reached, she would stand an excellent chance of winning the race. On the reach along the second leg for the 2 2-3 mile buoy she cut about 23 seconds off her lead, rounding it at 2.33.35, about five seconds behind.

After turning the buoy both yachts set spinnakers. They were now on the last leg of the first round, and Trident's advantage was so slight as to arouse fears among the local yachtsmen that she would not be able to reach the leeward mark in advance of the challenger, about half way down the leg.

Trident had increased her lead a little, but when about a quarter of a mile away from the buoy, Tecumseh began sailing much more rapidly. It almost looked as if she would take Trident's wind before the buoy was reached. However, spinnakers had to be taken in, and the opportunity was lost. Trident rounding the buoy at 2.47.45, followed eight seconds later, at 2.47.53, by the Tecumseh. Thus the boats finished one-third of the race on terms more even than any one would have anticipated from the results of yesterday's race.

After passing the buoy the sheets were tightened, and the boats held in towards the Pointe Claire Pier. Trident still held the advantage, and before long Tecumseh went about, standing out towards the south shore.

The boats now made a long board over towards the south shore, Tecumseh footing very fast, Trident beating right up into the wind's eye. Tecumseh held on until far out into the lake, but well to leeward. She then came about and stood inward. She then came about and stood towards the north shore, and, while on this course, let Trident standing out. Before meeting her she went about, the advantage being with Trident. After a short leg Tecumseh again headed for the north shore in the direction of the buoy, both boats being on the port tack.

Tecumseh had the windward berth, and was pretty well on a line with Trident. In fact for a time it almost appeared as the she was in the lead. Her work on this leg, being to windward, was a surprise to those who had watched her previous endeavors. As the boats approached the buoy they split the tacks several times, but avoided a collision, one coat coming about before meeting her rival. However, within a few minutes of rounding, Tecumseh showed that she had the advantage. There now occurred a most exciting contest. Both boats were on the starboard tack, Tecumseh leading but slightly to leeward to the spectators.

It looked as the she could make the buoy, but when a few boat lengths away she swung over to the port tack and held across Trident's bow. This manoeuvre compelled Routh of the Trident to luff slightly, thus losing him a few seconds.

Jones of the Tecumseh then held on longer than appeared necessary, but when he again came about the object of the manoeuvre became evident, as at gave him an immense advantage in gaining the weather berth. Trident slowed up, while the Tecumseh passed thru her wind; thus the boats rounded the buoy together at 3.15, Trident's mast perhaps passing the mark a fraction in advance.

Immediately after Tecumseh forged rapidly to the front and within a few seconds was leading her antagonist by a few boat lengths. Having once got ahead, both boats now under working jibs, it was of little advantage to Trident to be on Tecumseh's weather quarter. Tecumseh held her lead and in fact increased all the way along, turning 15 seconds in advance at 3.22.30. Spinnakers were immediately run out, Tecumseh's crew showing an immense improvement on yesterday's performance in this operation. The run down towards the nine mile mark was accomplished in fast time.

Trident, however, appeared to be gaining, the gain, if any, was of no advantage to her. She carried her spinnaker until close to the buoy, Tecumseh having taken hers in when still some little distance away. She rounded at 3.35, 16 seconds in front of the Canadian.

After rounding the boats held on for Pointe Claire Wharf with sheet flattened. Shortly, Tecumseh came about, crossing in front of Trident. The latter also stood out and they proceeded in this manner for some minutes. Tecumseh then worked to windward, the Trident coming about in her lee and standing in for Pointe Claire. Tecumseh presently also came about, and, after holding her course for a few hundred yards, Trident went over to the starboard tack, still under the Tecumseh's lee. Tecumseh followed and from frequent short tacks the skippers now altered their methods and held along board for the south shore.

On this tack little difference could be observed in the relative positions of the boats. When well out both came about, heading for the Beaconsfield buoy.

Tecumseh rounded the buoy at 3.59.45. Trident followed 58 seconds later, her loss on the leg having been the greatest of the day. This concluded the windward work. They were now but two legs to go, to the first being a reach and the last being a spinnaker run. There was practically no difference between the yachts on the way along the reach. The result at the end of the leg was that Tecumseh showed an additional gain of two seconds, jibing round the mark at 4.07.15, one minute ahead of Trident. Spinnakers were promptly run, and the boats began the last leg of the course. Light weather and smooth sea combined in favor of the scow boat. As they neared the finishing line, Tecumseh showed that she had been increasing her advantage on the leg, and she finished 1 minute 22 seconds ahead. The summary:

	1st. Round.	2nd. Round.	Finish.
Tecumseh	2.47.53	3.47.57	4.22.25
Trident	2.47.45	3.35.13	4.23.47
			Elap. Time.
Tecumseh			2.27.25
Trident			2.28.47

LONG SHOTS AT SARATOGA

Roxane Won From Fast Filly Gunfire By 1 1-2 Lengths, Huntressa 3rd, Behind By 3 Lengths.

SCOFFER, 60 TO 1, BEAT NEVER MORE

McChesney Made Brilliant Run in the Stretch, Winning by a Head at Chicago.

Saratoga, Aug. 8.—W. C. Whitney's fast filly, Gunfire, was beaten again this afternoon, Packy Ryan's 5-year-old mare, Roxane, in receipt of eight pounds from Gunfire, winning by a length and a half, while Huntressa was third, three lengths behind Gunfire. The card was made up of overnight events. Originally, there were very large fields, but there were many withdrawals. Scoffer, quoted at 60 to 1, won the dash for maiden two-year-olds by a head from Andrew Miller's Never More. The latter was disqualified, O'Connor, who rode him, having three pounds short weight, and Catechise was placed second and Sweet Alice third. Only two favorites, Ordnung and Morningside, won. Yardarm proved himself a more than ordinary colt by winning the handicap for two-year-olds by a wide margin. The western colt, Captain Arnold, seemed unable to make any headway in the deep going, and was beaten off.

Clarence H. Mackay's string will be sold on Tuesday next. None of the horses will be disposed of at private sale.
