Building Operations in the Year 1888

The year 1888 has been a good one for building operations. The report of the inspector has not as yet been fully made up but from the number reported it can safely be said that the past year has been fully up to, if not ahead of, the average of the three preceding years. The year 1885 shows a value of the buildings erected of $65,195. In 1886 the value was almost doubled showing $130,325. 1887 showed $102,850 as the value of the 58 buildings erected, 42 of which were wood, and 16 brick. The number of buildings erected last year, or the number of permits for building taken out was 56, 43 of which were for wood and the remaing 13 for brick structures. The aggregate value has not as yet been ascertained, but from the nature of many of the buildings it is believed the value of the whole will equal that of the preceding year. Besides this there have been many repairs made which do not require the taking out of permits and if these be taken into consideration the year 1888 will be fully up to 1887 in building operations.

Monochromatic Painting.

Paintings in monochrome have grown rapidly in favor during the past few years, and recently large exhibitions of such have been held in Paris, London and New York. By many they are regarded as quite equal to the paintings with which we are more familiar. The style is very happily resorted to in the production of marine views and landscapes, some of which that have been recently shown by Mr. Miles in Messrs. Barnes & Co's window have attracted a large share of attention. When it is considered that these paintings, which possess every quality of permanence, are all originals, and cannot be reproduced and made common without the consent of their owners, that Mr. Miles' sketches cover nearly every district in the province, and that years hence, aside from being valuable as works of art they will have a historic value, it is not surprising that they are finding their way into so many cultured homes. In monochrome Mr. Miles stands among the first of American painters.

As far as THE GAZETTE learns, the trouble at the Baptist Seminary is of a most puerile character, originating in jealousy and fed by envy. Miss Thomas, the preceptress, is spoken of as a lady of remarkable attainments and eminently qualified for the position she occupies.

City Court.

Before Common Clerk and Alderman Lantalnm.

James McAvity and Thomas McAvity vs. Michael Carr, $11.09. Judgment by default.

John W. Belyea vs. John K. Taylor $10. Judgment by default.

John P. Wells vs. John K. Taylor $10. Judgment by default.

John P. Wells vs. William Lane $3.83. Judgment by default.

Alexander Logue vs. Joseph H. Parks claim for board $35.50.

Alex. W. Baird for plaintiff and James G. Forbes for defendent. In this case it appeared defendent had been sued for not only his own board but for board of his father John Parks. The court reduced the claim by six dollars representing two weeks board of father and gave judgment for plaintiff for $29.50. The testimony was directly conflicting and the court well remarked it was largely a question of credibility.

James Tait vs. William Murdoch was an action on a so called promissory note for $15. against Mr. Murdoch as endorser.

Mr. Davis for the plantiff and Mr. G. Sydney Smith for the defendant. It appears that a house was sold by plaintiff to one Sargeson an employee of the Water and Sewerage Commissioners and a note given therefore was endorsed by defendant. The note was made payable to plaintiff and was not endorsed by him. A nonsuit was refused but as it appeared the plaintiff has made another trade whereby he got the horse back again without having given defendant notice. The Court gave judgment for defendant after offering to permit the plaintiff to withdraw his suit. Mr. Davis said he would appeal.

The Pope and the Irish.

DUBLIN, Jan. 2.—Archbishop Walsh read from the pulpit to-day a message from the Pope to the Irish people, in which his holiness said: "We have always held in special affection the Catholics of Ireland, who have been long sorely tried by many afflictions, and have ever cherished them with a love which is more intense because of their marvellous fortitude and their hereditary attachment to their religion. In the counsels we have given from time to time, and in our recent decree, we were moved not only by mature consideration of what is conformable to the truth, but also by the desire to advance your interests. Our affection for you does not suffer us to allow the cause for which Ireland is struggling to be weakened by the introduction of anything which could fairly be brought in reproach against it. In order to specially manifest our affection, we send you a number of gifts which are specially blessed."

And Frills at the Knee, Too?

Why should not men wear embroidered evening clothes? For considerably more than a century women have had a monopoly of sumptuary elegance and it is time that the longing for fine raiment which resides in the bosom of every man (if he would only admit it) should be gratified. It is proposed to differentiate the gentleman who goes out in the evening to amuse himself, or because he cannot help it, from the gentleman who waits upon him, by placing a strip of embroidery upon each leg of his continuations. We hope it will be done, and that the movement in favor of picturesque male attire will not stop there. Let us have silken waistcoats and cerulean velvet pumps and shoes of red morocco adorned with rosettes and something in the nature of a doublet pinked and slashed with divers hues. This fashion would be a heavy blow to the tradesmen who let out dress suits on hire by the evening or by the week.—St. James' Gazette.

THEY WORSHIP THE DEVIL

A Queer Sect Which Have Wandered Out of Chrisianity.

Rev. Yaroo M. Neesau, who has just been ordained in this city says the New York Sun, as a Christian minister to go back to Persia and preach the gospel to his brethren of the oldest existing Christian church in the world, the Westorians, when he has completed his work of getting his people back into the straight and narrow path from which they have so far strayed, will have a large field before him in the land of the 'devil worshippers.' This is a name given, according to the accounts of Herr Gustave Pauli, who has recently been among these serviles by the Westorians to a number of communities scattered along the valley of the Tigris in Russian and Turkish Armenia. Ba-Hasani, the holy city of these devil worshippers of Jesids, lies near Mosul, on the borders of Kurdistan, and contains the temple and mausoleum of their patron saint, Sheikh Adi. The village of Bashiyka, a little distance off is the residence of their civil and religious head. They claim to have descended from certain apostate members of the Armenian church, but into their faith has been incorporated so much from other earlier and later religions, from Zoroaster to Mohammed, that its resemblance to Christianity is insignificent. They pray to the rising sun and kiss the place first touched by its beams. They warm the fingers of their right hand at a holy taper, draw them over their right eyebrows and kiss them. They call God Allah, and Mohammed a prophet. Christ they name Ben Isai Nurani, Jesus the Son of Light, and worship him as a great angel who will come one day to rule the world. But Shaitan, the devil, is their deity. To live in good understanding with the evil one is the chief aim of their religion. They venture not to pronounce his name but call him 'Melek-Taup,' and honor him symbolically as a light giver and in the figure of a bird. Their Sabbath is Thursday. They have 40 days' fast like Lent, in the spring, but one member of each family can do the fasting for all. There is a holy spring at the grave of Sheikh Adi, and all children must be baptized immediately after birth in water from this spring. The water is borne to all parts of the country by mendicant monks, Kawal, all descendants of one family. Half the money which these monks gather goes to the mausoleum of Adi, one quarter to the sect, and the rest to the monk himself. Beside these there are high priests, servants about the temple called fakeers, and djirs, or presbyters. The latter are held especially in respect on account of a pretended power to cure diseases. The priests teach that he who gives abundant alms is sure of eternal happiness. Circumcision is not strictly required, and the will of the head of the family governs as to it. One peculiarity of the sect is a popular abhorrence for blue.

The reputation of the tribe for morality and honesty is good. Polygamy is allowed to chiefs, but common men can have but one wife at a time, and must pay her mother for that one. Women are held in such high esteem that they are allowed even priestly dignity. Celibacy is not required of priests, but they cannot marry out of their caste. Widows dress in white, smear their faces with clay and scatter dust on their heads. Corpses are buried with the head toward the north star. The Jesids cling stoutly to their own faith, but refuse to admit outsiders into the sect.

May the new year be a happy one to you; happy to many more whose happiness depends on you!

McLEOD'S TONIC COUGH CURE.
READ THE TESTIMONY.
St. John, N. B., April 18th, 1887.
MR. McLEOD,
Dear Sir:—I certainly must say a word in praise of your Cough Cure and Liniment. I had been suffering with a severe and sudden cough, resembling bronchitis, when my husband brought me a bottle of your Tonic Cough Cure. This medicine gave me almost instant relief, and, after some perseverance in its use, my cough disappeared entirely. Other members of our family have used it with the same good results, and I consider it a valuable preperation. Your Liniment has given me greater relief than any other.
