THE NEW DEPARTURE

Walker Leads You.

"Oh, come into the garden, Maud,"
The fresh young man invites
But, clever girl, she says "Oh, Claude
The snapping beetle bites;
And I have better things to do
Than idly thus to roam;
If I am soon to marry you
I'll have to make a home."

"But we're so little money, dear,
Housekeeping frights a man."
"Not now—. For Walker kills that fear
By his instalment plan.
I know just how I must proceed,
We've done this oft before;
My mother finds all that we need
In this well-furnished store.

"You get the house or modest flat—
Even rooms—whate'er you will;
The rest—well, I'll attend to that,
I'm not scared at the bill.
Your earnings, though however small,
I'll manage with and buy
The prettiest furnishings and all
That can delight the eye.

"First carpets, gold with bud, and vine,
And curtains pictures, chairs,
The furniture will seem as fine
Our folks will turn out theirs.
With painted dishes, such a house
And folding beds, a stove—
A parlor suite, the best—To board
You'll never wish, nor rove."

Who could neglect such a pleasant home as this charming young woman proposes? Who would not at once see the policy and economy in the weekly payment plan, whereby you can save money and live in luxury by going to

WALKER'S
WEEKLY PAYMENT STORE,
107½ QUEEN-STREET WEST.

P.S.—Walker is lower than any dealer, with more style. For goodness' sake don't delay, Go and see him and be happy.
