Doctor Sentenced Six Months in Jail for Manslaughter

Did Not Take Necessary Precautions For Sterilization.

YORKTON, Sask., Jan. 13.—Dr. Cyril Mueller was today sentenced to six months' hard labor in Regina jail on a charge of manslaughter, by Judge Ellwood in the Court of King's Bench. The accused was found guilty of the death of Kathleen E. Thorne, at Norquay, Sask., last January, evidence submitted by the crown showing that he failed to take all necessary precautions for sterilization at the time of the confinement of the deceased, resulting in her death from peritonitis.

LONDON APPLICATION BEFORE RAILWAY BD.; DECISION DEFERRED

Case Concerns Possible Extension of Express Delivery Zones.

TORONTO, Jan. 13.—At the afternoon session of the Dominion Railway Board, T. G. Meredith, K. C., argued the case of the city of London industrial Bureau, London Board of Trade and the City of London, for an order directing the express companies to extend their delivery limits within the city of London.

In response the express companies suggested that free deliveries should be maintained in proportion of population to area and that when a rate had been established in a town or city that rate should apply only in that town or city and not to the surrounding region.

No decision was given.

WOMEN'S MUSIC CLUB BRINGS ANDRE SARTO FOR ITS NEXT CONCERT

The Women's Music Club is affording the members a number of treats this season of an exceptionally high order. Monday afternoon, a meeting of the executive was held to arrange for the appearance under the auspices of the club in this city on Tuesday evening, January 28, in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium of Andre Sarte, the famous baritone, late of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York, where he sang opposite roles to Caruso. He is being assisted in his recital here by George C. Carrie, tenor, and the first part of the program will include a number of duets from the first act of Faust, sung by Sarto with Mr. Carrie. In the second part the artist will give numbers from oratorios, arias and a group of old English songs.

Arrangements also were made yesterday to bring Katherine Hale (Mrs. John Garvin), the well-known Canadian writer, art and literary critic, lecturer and singer, to give a lecture recital on Canadian music and literature on the evening of March 13. Katherine Hale has that date open when the subject for the regular recital is Colonial and American Music. Other plans will give way for the visiting artiste. Mrs. Harris Elliot and Miss Eggleston are arranging the recital for that date.

The sum of $35 was voted to paint the walls and ceiling of the ward of the Byron Sanatorium, furnished by the Woman's Music Club, owing to the fact the glare of the white walls is hard on the eyes of the patients.

COMMITTEE FAVORS CONSIDERABLE RISE IN JANITORS' WAGES

Recommends Increase For Superintendent of Works, Too.

Salary increases for the public school janitors, and John Clements, superintendent of works, and his assistant, John Hutchinson, occupied the attention of Chairman James Gray and other members of No. 2 committee of the Board of Education at its first regular meeting of the year yesterday afternoon.

John Clements, who had not sent in an application for an increase, but who had asked for one for his assistant, was given $200 a year increase, making his salary now $1,400. The members of the committee were unanimously of the opinion that he is well worth the salary granted. His assistant will be given 38 cents an hour instead 33 cents, which he now receives. He was recommended for an increase by Superintendent of Works Clements. All the janitors were granted a 10 per cent increase on their present salaries. The increases as granted will add about $1,700 to the salary list this year, providing the board gives its assent to the recommendation of the committee.

Wide Difference.

At present the janitors are getting all the way from $16.88 a month to $110 a month, according to the size of the schools. During the summer months the lowest salary was $11.88. The janitors of four of the smaller schools receive $5 a month less during the summer months than in the winter. It was pointed out that several of the janitors receiving the smaller wages are able to work at other occupations as well as taking care of the schools. In the larger schools the janitors hire assistants, whom they have to pay out of their own pockets. Up to one year ago the salaries of the janitors were based on the following schedule: A minimum for an eight-roomed school of $600, with $50 extra for each room above the eight. Last year this was increased to $660 and $55, respectively.

Discussion on Amount.

The janitors had sent a request to the committee for an increase, pleading the high cost of living. Considerable discussion arose as to the amount of the increase.

Pencils were busy for half an hour. T. Coleridge, A. A. Langford and E. Smith, were each working out a separate solution, E. Smith finally presenting a motion giving the 10 per cent increase. J. S. Barnard, a specialist on the board in Latin, could think of no parallel cases in Caesar, and left the problem largely to the mathematical members. He questioned whether the 10 per cent increase was sufficient for those receiving the smaller salaries. On his motion, the increases were given J. Clements and his assistant.

Mrs. A. T. Edwards pointed out that in considering the question they alluded to extra work during the winter months, but did not consider the fact that during the summer the janitors had it easier. It was stated that they had no holidays, as during the two months when the schools are closed they do all their spring cleaning and look after the grounds as well. She agreed that they deserved an increase in salary, however.

Several accounts were passed by the committee.

K. OF C. CATHOLIC ARMY HUTS OPENING CLUBHOUSE IN CITY

Spending Part of Money Raised in Scheme.

A soldiers' clubhouse, on the lines of the Red Triangle soldiers' clubhouses, will be opened in the city in the course of the next two or three weeks in connection with the Knights of Columbus Catholic army huts. By request of the repatriation board, a part of the fund collected in the campaign of some months ago for Catholic army huts overseas is being devoted to the opening of clubhouses in military dispersal centres. F. J. Schenck, commissioner for Ontario of the Knights of Columbus army huts, was in the city over the week-end, and during his visit here organized a general committee, with subcommittees, to make all necessary arrangements. The personnel of the committee is as follows: Patron, Bishop M. F. Fallon; honorary president, Philip Pocock; president, Lieut.-Col. W. G. Coles; treasurer, Major T. J. Murphy; secretary, E. V. Hessian. The board of governors includes Rev. A. J. Brennan, who has recently been appointed at the request of the military authorities to look after the Roman Catholic soldiers returning to this district during the demobilization period; R. M. Burns, J. F. Nolan, J. J. Callaghan, John Givins, Frank Smith, M. F. Forristal.

The conveners of committees are: Entertainment, B. C. McCann; employment, Lieut.-Col. W. G. Coles; publicity, Rev. Father Foley; hospital, Dr. W. J. Tillmann; house, S. B. Pocock; reception, Arthur J. Hayes.

The clubhouse will be opened as soon as a suitable building can be found and the necessary changes made and furnishings completed. Rooming accommodation and meals will be available in the clubhouse, and with the exception of these, everything is free, including entertainment.

Similar clubhouses are being opened in 24 places in Canada, from Halifax to Victoria, and of these six are in Ontario, Ottawa, Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton, London and Port Arthur. The general headquarters are in Montreal, with Lieut.-Col. Clarence F. Smith as comptroller.

"The Knights of Columbus Army Huts" is a separate organization from the Knights of Columbus, and the huts are open to everyone, irrespective of religion, race, color or anything else.

CHARM OF COURAGEOUS YOUTH SHINES THROUGH LATEST OF GRIFFITH'S WAR-LOVE CLASSICS

"The Greatest Thing in Life" Characterized by the Genius of Beautiful Simplicity—Harron and Lillian Gish Excel Selves in Leading Parts.

The Cast.

David Wark Griffith never "shoots over their heads"—and he does not aim at the lowbrows, either. Throngs went to the Majestic yesterday to submit themselves again to the spell he weaves about his people, the charm of love and youth and the eternal triumph of happy fate. How many of them wanted an answer to "The Greatest Thing in Life?" Did they not know? Hasn't the old story been told so often that it is almost a bromide, or does it never grow old? It doesn't grow old in the Griffith way of telling, for Griffith is the poet as well as the dramatist of the screen, and the classic simplicity of his productions is like the simplicity of a figure wrought in marble so perfectly as to enrapture the soul of a peasant or a prince. His plays are as perfectly formed and as plain as a rose: his people are not the mummers, but the sad or happy folk of everyday life. Beauty is a girl; man is a youth; and humor is a smiling fellow-nature made to brighten the earth; and pathos is the baby child or the aged.

The Griffith Touch.

One comes to analyze a Griffith picture and finds often a plot that could be played by the acrobatic or hysterical school in a very ordinary way. They would get the effects of big situations by straining for them and making a horrible mess of it. Griffith seems to project his understanding of his craft and of his public into all his materials. His characters are subtle for those who wish to catch the finer shades; for those who look not so deeply they are romantic and heroic figures. He projects the face of Lillian Gish on the screen in a sort of blur. Someone thinks the picture is out of focus and says so, but is it not possible to think that here is something new in photography and to remember that just at the moment there is pathos in the story, and that she looks as though she were seen through tears? A dull red vista of French peasant women plowing in the fields strikes the eye with all the tremendous force of "The Angelus" or "The Man With the Hoe," and one suddenly remembers that this which might have enthralled even Millet was full of moving figures and sinking sun and floating clouds. It lived.

A Piece of Stagecraft.

When it comes to stagecraft what more wonderful bit of drama than this: The girl is in an underground dugout in a village held by Germans. The father has been struck down, and she is told to use a concealed telephone to inform the French of German troop movements. The wire runs from the village to the French lines, and she establishes connection. At the other end of the line a shell explodes, and the French soldier is struck down. Americans come into the trench and as the French soldier dies he hands the receiver to the lover of the girl, who she does not know is in France. He seizes the instrument and hears her voice. The Germans discover the trick and break into the dugout in the village, but in the end the girl is rescued by the American boy. (Don't chafe because the hero is a Yankee. Wasn't his last a Canadian?)

The cast is made up of three Griffith leaders. They seem to have been made for his plays and for his ways. Lillian Gish, the wistful bride of "Hearts of the World," is the keynote of the piece. She has never done finer acting. The moods of love and death and mirth and war fall over her. She is a spirit of brave womanhood, humanly interesting and bewitchingly personal in every action.

A Blase Character.

Robert Harron has a difficult part. He is the blase, sneering snob who hates everyone but himself—and Lillian. War tears off his husk of selfishness. A great negro and a great white man open to him the door to brotherhood by their unselfishness. Harron is the fiery knight aroused when manhood awakens, and his interpretation is perfect.

David Butler — always remembered as the lover of the Little Disturber—is again the bluff and buoyant "second man." A wonderful piece of character work.

Settings, detail, war thunders and barrages, over the tops and incidentals are all Griffith. One of the best he has ever done and will fill houses by lip to lip transmission, once its charm and human courage have become known. Music is a Griffith selection and admirably handled by the Majestic Concert Orchestra.

Owing to a wreck near Buffalo the vaudeville act was not shown yesterday. But eleven reels of Griffith, Burton Homes, a Gaumont weekly and a good comedy did not leave much room for anything else.

It might be remarked incidentally that the Griffith picture is so new that it takes cognizance of the abdication of the kaiser. And a picture like this is not made in a week.

Royal Bank Announces Most Comprehensive Plan of Extension That Has Yet Been Made by Any of the Larger Canadian Banks.

Branches Will Be Established at Rio de Janiero, Brazil, Buenos Ayres, Argentine, Montevideo, Uruguay and Paris, France.

Montreal, Jan. 13.—As a result of the vital importance to Canada that the foreign trade of the country should be extended to the greatest possible extent, the Royal Bank of Canada today made the most important announcement of plans for new branches that has yet been made by any of the larger Canadian banks. The Royal Bank has had twenty years' experience in the foreign fields of Cuba, West Indies and Central and South America. On this account it is especially equipped to handle foreign business and to help attract more of it to Canada. Following on a careful investigation extending over the past couple of years, the Royal Bank now announces that it will help to direct a larger amount of South American trade to the Dominion by the immediate establishment of important branches at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Buenos Ayres, Argentine and Montevideo, Uruguay.

As is well known in Canadian banking circles no Canadian capital has been required for the extension in foreign countries by the Royal as the foreign deposits at every point have always greatly exceeded the foreign commercial loans.

In addition, the Royal has concluded arrangements to open a branch at Paris, France, in order to secure for Canada a share of the commerce which is expected to develop as a result of the rehabilitation of Northern France and Belgium.

The Royal now has the largest number of branches in Canada of any Canadian bank.

WELL BABY CLINIC, BEGINNING A SERIES, PROVES BIG SUCCESS

26 Youngsters Brought For Examination.

TWO DOCTORS ATTEND

One Thing Lacking Is Blankets To Keep Them Warm.

The first of the regular "well baby clinics," to be a feature hereafter of child welfare work in the city was held on Monday afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock in Talbot Street School, the rush of babies recalling the palmy days of the child welfare exhibit a year ago.

When Dr. W. J. Tillman arrived at the school shortly after 3:30 o'clock to perform the duties of medical man in the case, for a second time in his life he felt closely related to the old woman who lived in a shoe, who had so many children she didn't know what to do. The other time was when he reached the Y. M. C. A. building on the opening morning of the exhibit a year ago to find something like fifty babies to be examined before noon. Yesterday there were 26 cherubs who had been undressed, weighed and charted by Miss Bertha Smith, child welfare nurse, assisted by Mrs. G. Wilson, who had wide experience a year ago, and Mrs. Jones, also of the Graduate Nurses' Chapter of the I. O. D. E. Miss G. Bapty, kindergarten supervisor at the Talbot Street School was a valuable aide. Principal W. H. Liddicoat doing all in his power to make the wheels move smoothly.

Sent Out S. O. S.

What could one lone doctor do with such a lot of babies? Exactly what he did a year ago—sent out an S.O.S. which speedily brought Dr. Lindsay to the scene. Under the circumstances two doctors were considerably better than one, but it kept them hustling to get through between 5 and 6 o'clock.

A number of mothers had the satisfaction of being told their little ones were in practically perfect condition physically, and that they would not need to bring them back to be weighed and examined again for six months. It was a significant fact that nearly all these "sound physically" children had been at the well baby clinic a year ago, and mothers had evidently greatly profited by the advice given them.

In some cases instructions were given that the little ones should have medical attention for diseased tonsils or other ailments. Mothers were advised to take their babies to their family physicians, or, if unable to afford this, to the out-patient clinic at Victoria hospital. In several cases advice was given re correcting the diet or sleeping habits to improve the health of babies. In these cases the instruction was added to bring the child back each week until the condition proves satisfactory.

Two More This Week.

Wednesday, the first weekly clinic at Chesley avenue school, will be held in charge of Dr. Lindsay, and on Friday at Riverview school, presided over by Dr. J. I. Ferguson.

So far as Talbot street school district is concerned, it is felt that the well baby clinic is an assured success and will be appreciated by parents, and responsible for saving many lives, or setting baby feet in ways of better health.

One thing needful for these clinics which was sadly lacking yesterday was a sufficient number of baby blankets to wrap the babies in while they are waiting their turn to be examined.

Blankets! Blankets! Who has got old blankets to spare to be cut up into baby blankets to be used for the well baby clinics?

"Don't all speak at once, but do come forward with them as soon as possible," is the earnest appeal of Miss Smith and the executive of the Child Welfare Association. The blankets or bits of blankets large enough to be made into baby blankets may be left at the Child Welfare headquarters office any day, in the Western Fair office, Dominion Savings and Investment Society Company Building.
