REV. MR. BALL'S FAREWELL.

His Vanneck Congregation Present Him With a Purse Containing $130.

The friends of Rev. W. S. Ball met with him in the lecture room at Vanneck on Monday evening, on the eve of his departure for Toronto, and presented him with a purse containing $130, together with the following address:

"We, the undersigned members and adherents of the English Settlement congregation, desire to express our appreciation and approval of your services for and kindness to us in your long pastorate over us, in token of which we beg you to accept this small offering, and may God be with you and bless you till we meet in that land 'where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest.'"

Replying, Mr. Ball expressed his sense of appreciation of the kindness shown to him. He had contended against the onslaught made in order to fix the principle whether or not it was possible for a minister to be allowed to go on quietly with his work and be supported by his people in so doing. He could have retired long ago, so far as he was personally concerned.

After many expressions of regret and goodwill on the part of those present, the meeting closed by singing the well-known and appropriate hymn, "God be with you till we meet again."

FATALITY AT WINGHAM.

One Man Suffocated in a Gas Well and Another Narrowly Escapes a Similar Fate.

WINGHM, Sept. 6.—A young man named Lever was in a well near here this morning at a depth of 45 feet boring when he struck a vein of gas. He signalled for a rope, but before it got to him he became insensible. Another young man named Marshall descended to his assistance and fastened the rope around Lever's body, but he, too, was overcome with the gas. Some of the neighbors, suspecting that something was wrong, went to the well and pulled up Lever's body. After considerable delay Marshall's body was also brought to the surface, but life had fled. Lever was resuscitated after considerable difficulty, and is now in a fair way to recover. Marshall was an unmarried man, respected by everybody.

CRIME IN CANADA.

No Great Increase in a Year—Nearly Half the Offenders Intemperate.

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.—The criminal statistics for the year ending Sept. 5, 1892, have been issued by the Department of Agriculture. Allowing for an increase in population, the volume shows an extremely light increase in crime in Canada as compared with the previous year. The number of persons convicted of indictable offenses last year was 4,030, or 8.23 per every 10,000 inhabitants. Of the 4,030 there were 1,740 intemperate and 2,158 used liquor moderately. There were only 132 abstainers; 20 per cent. could not read or write. Five persons were sentenced to death, as compared with seven the previous year. There were no lynchings.

Sensitive People.

It is well known that many people are so sensitive that they are unwilling to make known their ailments or infirmities, and that this fact alone prevents them from receiving proper medical treatment.

Mr. Humphreys' Series of Specifics being designated by numbers, entirely overcomes this difficulty. There are thirty-five (35) numbers, covering the range of every disease that it is proper for a layman to treat, and you have but to ask your druggist for the needful numbers, be it Specific No. 7, Specific No. 10, Specific No. 30, etc., and he will at once hand you the proper Specific with full directions for use, without question or without intimation of the disease for which it is a cure.

Apply to your druggist, or send to the Humphreys' Company, New York, for a copy of their Manual. bd&w

THE OPEN FORUM.

Labor Day Reflections.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

What does Labor Day mean? Is this show of combined labor a putting forth of the arm of power to strike, or is it a gathering of their great numbers in anticipation of a test of strength in the near future? The future none can penetrate. Labor may look hopefully, but the failures of the past should teach wisdom. Strikes are like the field of battle. It is but loss and strife. Victory it may be, but at fearful cost and suffering. Who suffers? The employer and the employed. Is that all? Does not the business community? It is unwise to strike. We have been told there is nothing better. Has arbitration failed? Is there not wisdom with the workmen? and only with the high commissioners? Has not the question of supply and demand been before us often, and yet not understood? When there are two jobs for one man wages go up, but when there are two men for one job wages go down. Strikes don't make work. Idle men don't benefit a community. They keep back improvements. If unsuccessful, strikes leave labor at the mercy of the employer, and capital is enabled to buy cheaper goods, labor included. "No kind of help wanted" posted at the office door is poor encouragement to the man who needs a job, and yet how many times it follows a strike. Workmen, don't strike. Try wisdom, read up about strikes, and so learn to avoid them.

In passing to our second question, anticipating a test of strength in the near future. Patrick was looking on the work being done at the Desjardines cut at Hamilton by a steam shovel. "What do you think of that?" asked a conductor. Patrick replied that he had no vote. Well, labor will ask the Government to provide work or bread in the immediate future, and why not? Why should the unwilling idler have hungry children? Why should labor cry for bread and have no work? This will be followed with "How is this? Cannot the city, the county, the Province, the Dominion make work?" They ought to build another Pacific Railway and another Chicago Fair. Help us to make our own goods, and sell our own products. An idle day is a loss to a nation. When united labor puts its foot down the Government takes off its hat, united labor will say "Thou mayest be no longer steward. We have placed you in power and you have returned a failure." Typos, use the press and pen for united labor. This is indeed your day, and we say, "Speed the plow." Brickmasons have the past to build on; a foundation may be right; material and work is needed. The boys of iron and the men of brass will have their day by-and-bye

Yours, etc., JOHN LAW.

Recalling Old Times.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

I saw by Friday evening's ADVERTISER that Mr. Geo. Railton said that my reminder had brought to his mind the incident that caused me to remember him of 48 years ago. Mr. Editor, by my following the incident up a little further it may bring the incident more clearly before his mind. The drunken soldier's name was Soles. After holding the pistols to my breast, he said with an oath that they would not confine him. He made a rush for the door. At the time the first sewer on Dundas street was in course of construction and the ditch in front of the store was very deep. Next morning we found his shoulder belt and bayonet scabbard in the bottom of the ditch. He was a Grenadier and wore epaulets on his shoulders. Next forenoon the lookouts found him east of the racecourse, his epaulets torn off and his coat turned wrong side out. He was brought in, tried for desertion and sent two years to Kingston. I never knew if he got any extra punishment for stealing Mr. Railton's pistols or not. Truly yours, J. W. KERN.

CHICAGO'S IDLE WORKERS.

Figures That Show the Number Who are Out of Work.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Figures obtained from large manufacturing establishments indicate the extent to which workmen in important industries have been thrown out of employment. The following list is said to be approximately correct:

Manufacturer.	Regular Staff.	Now Employed.
McCormick reaper works	1,700	500
Deering implement works	3,000	....
Bradley Manufacturing Co.	700	....
Chicago malleable iron works	1,000	....
W. W. Kimball Company	700	60
Wells, French & Co.	1,500	450
Chicago stove works	400	130
Chicago Cottage Organ Co.	400	7
Wakefield Rattan Company	275	*240
T. Wiles & Co.	400	200
J. C. Wintermeyer	70	44
Lumber District Mill Company	60	29

Illinois Steel Company, 5 mills	11,000	....
Furniture factories	22,000	2,000

*Half time.

No statistics are forthcoming from the building trade, but fully three-fourths of the carpenters, bricklayers and plasterers in town are said to be idle. Work in tailor shops, machine shops, stone yards and marble yards is at an almost complete standstill.

AN IMPORTANT CASE.

Involving a Question of International Law—The Conn Extradition.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 5.—The Conn extradition case which comes up to-morrow is likely to bring up an interesting question of international law. It is believed the object of the proceedings against Conn to secure his extradition to Canada on a charge of forgery is merely to get him to Canada and then make him sweat of civil charge. Thos. M. Donnelly, who will appear for Conn in habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Swan, says if necessary he will carry it before the Secretary of State. Conn was in the habit of sending his customer's paper with his own to a bank in St. Thomas. Among his customers was A. Gilroy, a drover, who was absent a good deal in the States and left notes signed in the bank with Conn to look after. When he failed the St. Thomas bank got judgment against Gilroy, and being unable to collect, they came back on Conn, it being claimed the signatures on the small notes were forged. Mr. Donnelly said to-day: "The extradition treaty provides that a prisoner extradited on a criminal charge and subsequently acquitted must be given a reasonable time to return to the country from which he was extradited before proceedings on any other criminal charge can be taken against him."
