A GENERAL'S STORY.

He Relates the Narrow Escape of His Daughter.

Weakened and Run Down by the Oppressive Climate of India She Returned to England—When Her Father Followed He Found Her in a Serious Condition.

From the Hampshire Independent.

There is nothing more interesting than the talk of our brave defenders, who have served their Queen and country in far distant lands. To talk with an Indian officer, hearing his reminiscences and adventures, is what those who have enjoyed it always appreciate. Consequently (writes a special reporter of the Hampshire Independent) I was delighted to receive instructions to interview Lieutenant-General Shaw, who has won his spurs in India, and is now living, with his family, in honorable retirement, at St. Paul's Vicarage, Shanklin, Isle of Wight. I had grasped the bell-pull and given it one tug when the door opened, and the general stood before me. You knew he was a soldier at once. His manly, upright bearing, his smile, his pleasant voice—all told you that you stood in the presence of one of Nature's gentlemen; but, alas! he held a time-table, and I felt that the interview must needs be short. However, he ushered me in and at once put me at my ease by his affable conversation.

Lieutenant-General Shaw.

"I am afraid," he said, "that you have come a long distance; but let me know the precise object of your visit."

I explained to the General that I was most anxious, with his consent, to obtain some personal explanation as to the narrow escape I had heard one of his daughters had recently experienced.

"At that he brightened visible. "You must know," he said, "I'm just a bit of an enthusiast on this point; but the tale is very short. My daughter came home from India, and when I joined her in London I found her ill in bed. She had rheumatic and neuralgic pains; she was perfectly bloodless, listless, and in a generally weak and prostrate condition. A doctor was seen, but she remained absolutely colorless, was in great wretchedness and suffering from anæmia or bloodlessness. She had a kind of fever, nervous headache, and other pains. Well, I heard of Dr Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. My daughter took some, and the first box had a marvellous effect. She regained her color, lost her pains, and became altogether different. She had quite a glow upon her. She went on taking the pills, and I am glad to tell you that she recovered completely. I have recommended Dr Williams' Pink Pills to all with whom I came in contact, and all who take them derive great benefit therefrom.

"I have a sister at Jersey, and she has taken them for a very long time, and has always recommended them to other people, and found them to do a good deal of good to all to whom she has recommended them; and I, myself, when I have heard of people being ill, have taken them or sent them some of these pills."

Dr Williams' Pink Pills directly enrich and purify the blood, and thus it is that they are so famous for the cure of anæmia, rheumatism, scrofula, chronic erysipelas, and restore pale and sallow complexions to the glow of health. They are also a splendid nerve and spinal tonic, and have cured many cases of paralysis, locomoter ataxia, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, and nervous headache. A specific for all the troubles of the female, and in men cure all cases arising from worry, overwork, or indiscretions of living.

Our beautiful national custom of setting apart a day for Thanksgiving annually must never be suffered to fall into desuetude. The home day, when the clans gather and rally, when bearded men, having travelled for days, arrive breathless and eager at the old threshold to keep Thanksgiving among kith and kin, when troops of grand-children surround the old table, when all the land is thrilled and moved because of the great feast—this day is so peculiarly our very own that we must always hold it dear. Its religious and its social character should continue to be interchangeable and the consecration to God should but make the separateness of its joys the most precious.

You may eat cheap food and not be seriously hurt by it; but you cannot take cheap medicines without poitive injury. If you use any substitute for Ayer's Sarsaparill, you do so at the peril of your health, perhaps of you life. Insist on having Ayer's, and no other.

There have been many testimonies to the value of total abstinence. The latest is that of Berry, the hangman. Lecturing at Grimsby, England, recently, Berry declared that during the ten years he had been in office he had conducted over 500 executions. A great number of the crimes that had come under his notice had been caused through drink, and, he added, he had "never hanged a teetotaller."

Consecration.

A PAPER READ BY MRS RALEIGH BISHOP BEFORE THE WOLFVILLE W. C. T. U., NOV. 5TH, 1896, AND PUBLISHED BY REQUEST OF THE MEETING.

The subject upon which our President requested me to write for this meeting, was consecration. In the preparation of this paper I was led to realize my own lack of a consecrated life. The old Hebrew proverb, "Physician heal thyself," would keep coming to mind, as well as the words of H. F. Randolph, who was wont to say, "Some people can talk Christianity by the yard, but they cannot walk it by the inch."

Worcester's definition of this word is: "The act of consecrating; dedication to sacred use."

Cruden says that to consecrate is to offer or devote anything to God's worship and service.

In the Old Testament, God ordained that all the first-born, both of men and beasts, should be consecrated. He consecrated the whole race of Israel, particularly, to his worship.

Hannah, Samuel's mother, offered or consecrated her son to the Lord to serve him all his lifetime in the tabernacle.

All the silver and gold, and vessels of brass and iron of the Temple, were consecrated unto the Lord, that is, set apart for His use alone.

In the millennium day, as foreseen by the prophet Zachariah, on the sleigh bells shall be written "Holiness unto the Lord." Saint Paul, writing to the Colossians, (3:17) says: "Whatsoever ye do, in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus." Here we are distinctly taught that all the work of life, however lowly, all our routine duties, even our seeming drudgeries ought to be done in Jesus' name. This is, we believe, the true side of consecration—setting all apart sacred to the Saviour's glory; presenting all our members and faculties a living sacrifice to God. Having now seen what we are to understand by the word consecrate, let us next notice the Divine order. In the Mosaic Economy the order was: first, the blood of atonement; secondly, the oil of consecration. We must never reverse God's order: first, the blood, and after that the oil upon the blood.

(Our President will please read Lev. 14:25-30.)

Note in the passage read that the atoning blood was first applied, then the oil upon the blood and both were put upon the ear that hears, the hand that toils, the foot that carries. He whose soul the blood has cleansed is he who should seek the unction or annointing from on high. First become a Christian, then a Spirit annointed christian, with ear and hand and foot consecrated to God. Christ comes to set the prisoner free. The Holy Spirit comes to clothe the liberated soul with power for service. "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Spirit is come upon you." The Bible speaks not only of heavenly unction, or annointing by the Spirit not on us, as an influence, but in us as a living personality, and to the full measure of our capacity, we should receive this Holy Ghost. Here the question comes to us with force, are we vessels ready to be filled? are we empty vessels? It is a law of Physics, as every school child knows, that no two material things can be in the same place at the same moment. In a sense, the same is true in the metaphysical or spiritual realm. We must be emptied if we are to be filled: and God does both. By sickness, calamities, bereavements, sorrows of all kinds, disappointments of every shade and character, God is seeking to empty us that he may fill us again with himself. Yes, sisters, true consecration is from God, not from man. The glory must be given to Him. Then what is our part in the consecration of the soul? It is more passive than active. It is yielding ourselves up to God to be moulded as clay in the potter's hand.

"Vessels of honor made sacred and holy,
Meet for the use of the Master we love;
Ready for service all simple and lowly,
Ready one day for the Temple above."

We cannot improve ourselves very much. To try is but to retard the work. We must yield ourselves up to Him "Who worketh mightily within us to will and to do of His good pleasure." How were we justified and regenerated? By receiving not by doing. "As many as received Him to them gave he the power to become the sons of God." Likewise in consecration. It is not our doing; but our receiving that effects the great end. "Receive ye the Holy Ghost." And how freely the Spirit is given! "If ye being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them who ask Him." "Ask and ye shall receive." Let there be a supreme self-offering—a complete yielding up of mind and muscle, heart, time, money, and children too, if need be, to Him who shed his priceless blood—a profound recognition of the fact that we are no longer our own but are bought with a price. Oh, for the loyal spirit of the Roman soldier who said to his captain "What a pity we have but one life to give to the service of our country."

In the purpose and plan for the redemption and salvation of the world there is a large place for such prayer and effort as naturally flow from consecrated hearts; and the offering of such prayer on the part of God's children is as necessary to the accomplishment of His glorious designs as is the preaching of the Word. "I will yet for this be inquired of by the house of Israel to do it for them."

"Not your own! but His ye are,
Who hath paid a price untold
For your life, exceeding far
All earths' store of gems and gold,
With the precious blood of Christ,
Ransome treasure all unpriced,
Full redemption is procured,
Full salvation is assured."

"Not your own! to Him ye owe,
All your life and all your love;
Live, that ye His praise may show,
Who is yet all praise above.
Every day and every hour,
Every gift and every flower,
Consecrate to Him alone,
Who has claimed you for his own."

Rebuilding

The Old and Broken-down House.

Keeping the Structure in Good Condition.

Filling it With Health, Comfort and Happiness.

When a house becomes dilapidated and beyond the possibility of repair, it is removed to make room for a structure that will have strength and permanency.

Our bodies, when not properly cared for, become frail, weak and broken-down, and when the work of rebuilding is not commenced in time, death surely claims the wasted and worn out frame, and it is removed forever.

Can we rebuild our wasted bodies? Yes; the work can be done even though the spark of life glimmers but fitfully and feebly. This work of rebuilding is done through the use of Paine's Celery Compound, that marvelous medicine which has brought new life to so many in the past. This heaven-sent remedy acts directly on the great nervous system, giving new strength to every nerve, makes fresh vitalizing blood, increases weight, and gives fresh power to every bone and muscle.

When this is accomplished by Paine's Celery Compound, it is easy to keep the rebuilt house or human structure in good condition. Ordinary care in diet, sleep and general living will surely keep up the good work. Then will the rebuilt man or woman be filled with true health, comfort and happiness, and life will be worth living.

Will you, dear reader, rebuild your broken down system? The work can be accomplished by you if you call to your aid Paine's Celery Compound. No physician is required to aid you, and you have no heavy bill to meet after you are made well and whole. The work has been done for thousands of others; will you have your share of the good that it bestows?

A Sad Story.

The case of John Ruskin affords a study for the psychologist. His sad life story is well known. Finding his young wife he loved so well loved Milias, Ruskin with rare chivalry gave her to him, via the divorce court. He loved her with such sublime devotion that he elected to make her happy even though it broke his heart and wrecked his life. He never knew happiness again and eventually his reason was dethroned. Then came the death of Milias. And now comes the strange aftermath that Ruskin whose condition was considered hopeless, is recovering his reason. Being mad it is not to be considered that he comprehended that his rival was dead. Yet, the cause of this unhappiness and madness removed, he straightway became sane. The novelist would conclude such a story of heroic self-sacrifice with a reconciliation between the old lovers, and the birth of a new love, but life is not as the novelist pictures it, and it is unlikely that poor Ruskin will ever know the peace and happiness which were his before the interloper came.

Your Own Artist.

A Child Can Use Diamond Paints.

You can gild, silver, bronze or copper fancy baskets, frames, emblems, gas fixtures, lamps, furniture, household ornaments and statuettes by using Gold, Silver, Bronze and Copper Diamond Paints, which are manufactured by the proprietors of Diamond Dyes.

By the aid of Diamond Dyes you can make old things look like new. None of the fifty cent paints surpass them either in quality or quantity, and but few are as good.

With a ten cent package of Diamond Paint and a bottle of Diamond Paint Liquid, even a child can double the worth of many a household ornament.

When buying any of the Diamond Paints, buy at the same time a bottle of Diamond Paint Liquid with a large size camel's hair brush, sold at ten cents. Each bottle contains enough liquid to mix two or three packages of paint.

A Marvellous Cure.

Helped by the First Box—Could not Lift Fifty Pounds—Cured by a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pill.

ARTHUR, Nov. 9 (Special)—Among his more intimate friends it has long been known here that Mr J. C. Morrison had gradually been failing in health for many years. The acuteness of his sufferings was known only to a few. His complete recovery is a surprise here and is causing much talk. Of his cure he says:—"Yes, I got fielp from the first box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and I have taken fifteen boxes. I kept getting better every day. When I commenced I could not lift fifty pounds; now I am as strong and well as ever in my life."

This world is hardly more than a game of draw. It takes:

A rich man to draw a check; a pretty girl to draw attention; a horse to draw a cart; a plaster to draw a blister; a dog fight to draw a crowd; a live paper like the ACADIAN to draw subscribers.

"I would have you know, sir, that I am a Londoner, as I was born in London."
