OUR TORONTO LETTER.

Social Problems Meetings Proving a Pronounced Success.

Cumulative Voting One of the Live Topics of To-Day.

[Specially Communicated.]

I am glad to tell you that the Sunday afternoon meetings, under the auspices of the permanent committee of the Social Problems Conference, are proving entirely successful. The forum hall, at the corner of Yonge and Gerrard streets, in which the meetings are held, is an exceedingly good place for the purpose, being centrally situated for the residential districts, on a main thoroughfare, and being a good ground floor room, not too large and not too expensive. The meetings have been well reported in the daily papers every week, which is an important element of success. We take up a collection every afternoon, and have so far paid expenses, with something over for a "rainy day"—an expression which may be taken with exact literalness. Besides some newspaper advertising, we have arranged with the caretaker of the hall to stretch over the large entrance, every Saturday and Sunday, a big cotton sign bearing this legend: "Social problems meeting here at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon."

The meeting on March 26 was the third of the series, and the attendance was larger than on any previous Sunday. We are convinced that the only way to keep up the interest and attendance at a series of social reform meetings is to have a variety of topics from a wide choice of speakers. So far the speakers of the day, those who deliver the main address and close the discussion, have been ministers of the Gospel. One of them was a thorough-going Socialist, and gave a clear and well-put exposition of Socialism. I need hardly tell you that single tax keeps cropping up in the discussions, and land monopoly comes in for a share of the hard knocks that are liberally bestowed on monopoly and other forms of selfishness and greed.

Last Sunday we had a break in the succession of reverend gentlemen. Alfred F. Jury gave an address on "Cumulative voting; its ethical and practical aspects." It is a most timely subject just now. After that we are to have a straight single tax address from some of us, and we hope also to have an address from Joseph Tait, M.L.A., on co-operation — a matter on which he has had experience.

One object we had in commencing these meetings, even at the fag-end of the winter season, was to gather data for next season. By running six or eight meetings now, we could not lose much, and would be in a good position to form a judgment as to the prospects for running such meetings all though next winter. It will certainly be done; and it is not too soon to be looking forward to it now. One regular attendant at the meetings told me laughingly that although the addresses of the ministers were something like sermons, one had the privilege of being able to get up and talk back to them, which could not be done in church. We do not have any devotional exercises; but there is a piano in the hall, and a young lady plays a piece of sacred music at the opening and another whilst the collection is being taken up. We have had valuable hints from our friends at Kingston, who have successfully conducted such meetings for two years back.

CUMULATIVE VOTING.

The organized labor men are in dead earnest on this subject, and petitions are beginning to come in from the local unions. The Evening Star keeps hammering away at the subject, with editorials setting out various phases of the question. It has also printed in its advertising columns a petition which it asks its readers to cut out and sign. A good deal of interest is aroused on the subject, and I hope something will come of the agitation.

FARMERS AND THE TARIFF.

(Monetary Times.)

If the farmers, breaking loose from parties, take a stand on the tariff question their influence will not be inconsiderable. Acting in their capacity of Patrons of Industry, they make it plain to the Government that they desire the removal of the duties on coal oil, binder twine, corn and fencing wire. Fencing wire, binder twine and corn are materials which aid the products of the farm; coal oil is an article of personal consumption. The first three occupy nearly the same place that raw materials do in the factory, and may fairly claim the same exceptional treatment. The coal oil, too, has some affinity to the old English tax on windows, and must be classed as obnoxious. Its total repeal involves other considerations; it cannot be regarded as standing on the same ground as the other three articles. The Patrons cannot be said to have made any unreasonable demand, though that about coal oil comes nearest to this description. The farmers have it in their power to effect considerable changes in the tariff, if they agree among themselves as to what they want. Their influence is an element on which both manufacturers and the Government will have to count. They will have to look out for the political foxes who, whatever they may say, are in search of the fleeces; and will do well studiously to avoid all unreasonable demands. They have not made a bad beginning, and if they act with prudence they can make their influence felt in the remodeling of the tariff to an extent which had not been so far anticipated.

IMPOSE AN INCOME TAX.

(New York World.)

Adam Smith stated the direct doctrine in regard to taxation when he declared that "the subjects of every State ought to contribute towards the support of Government as nearly as possible in proportion to their respective abilities, that is in proportion to the revenue which they respectively enjoy under the protection of the State."

For the past 30 years this plain and just principle has been ignored by our National Legislature, and by an ingenious system of indirect taxation the poorer classes have been made to bear far more than their just proportion of the cost of government, while the rich have been comparatively exempt.

To tax the poor man is to burden his business, to impair his power of production, limit his usefulness as a citizen and often to restrict his enjoyment of the necessaries of life. To tax the incomes of the rich, after they reach a reasonable limit, is to exact tribute only from luxury, to take a percentage from needless accumulations and probably to limit vicious extravagance.

The former is weakened by the exaction, the latter is strengthened. The imposition is an injury to the one; it is a benefit to the other. It is but simple justice to both.

The mission of a Government is to rectify inequalities and restore justice by an equitable readjustment of the burdens of government. It was to effect this long-needed reform that an overwhelming majority was given at the polls and the Democratic party placed in control of the legislative as well as the executive department of the Government.

The object cannot be reached more directly and speedily than by the imposition of a graded income tax. Remove the burden from the necessaries and put it on the superfluities.

This is true democracy, and it is simple justice.
