Poetry.

HOPE AND MEMORY.

BY DORA GREENWELL.

Two spirit-voices sighed upon the air,—
"Oh, love us! part us never! We are fair
Only together! Fondly would we fling
Our clasping arms about thee still, and cling
Like gentle parasites that round thy lot
Entwine their mingling blooms: then part us not!

"For we are patient slaves, twin-born: our fate
Is, still upon thy steps to watch and wait.
And o'er thy path to hover! Drear would be
Its course but for the chequered tracery
Our light wings weave, as o'er thy changeful way
With shades and sunshine tremulous play.

"One flits before; yet, turning to thee oft
With gay and beckoning gestures, whispers soft
Of many a goodly, many a glorious thing
She sees onward—one, slow following,
With sad and patient smile unto her breast
Gathers the flowers thy hasty foot hath prest,

"And warms them there until each flower receives
A soul—a spirit—through its withered leaves—
To breathe undyingly around thy heart
A silent fragrance. Scattered far apart
Its treasures lie, until the loved, the fair,
The lost, are bound in one pale garland there.

"We are thy friends, companions through the day;
By night, though sleep forsake thee, we will stay:
Thou shalt not miss her with her dreams, for we
Will sit and tell thee many a history,
And sing those songs of soothing." Then alone
Arose, methought, the voice of sadder tone:—

"Oh, love us! love my sister best; her strain
Was caught from heav'n, and bears her there again,
Her lot, her place, are with the blessed: still
Their angel-harpings on her accents thrill;
Still towards their source her visions mount and yearn;
I am of dust and unto it return.

"My looks are fixed upon the ground; they cling
With timid trust to each familiar thing;
My voice is but an echo, but ling'ring on
Round some old temple whence the gods are gone
Thou wilt not, therefore, scorn me. Listen! She,
The bird of heaven, hath borrowed notes from me."

"Warbled that clear voice—'An endless sigh
My sister's song would be; but ere it die
I blend my utterance with every strain,
And whispers, 'All that hath been comes again.'
I commune with her till her voice, her tone,
With all their sweetness, pass into my own.

"She gazes on me till her features take
A smile of life and promise for my sake,
And soft and gleaming o'er my features lies,
Caught from the tearful shrining of her eyes,
A rainbow-glory: we would mingle ever
Within its light. Oh, love us, part us never."

CONSCIENTIAL COMPLIMENTS.—An elderly lady, telling her age, remarked that she was born on the 21st of April. Her husband, who was present, observed, "I always thought you were born on the first of April." "People might well judge so," responded the matron, from the choice I made of a husband.

A JOKE FROM MR. SPEAKER.—As the tellers on the vote of confidence division advanced to declare the numbers, the Speaker—with doubtless a prophetic sense of the majority of 46—said, with a benignant smile at ministers,—"Gentlemen will be pleased to keep their places.—[Punch.]

"OF INTEREST TO ALL,"
TO THE LADIES.
THE GENUINE BALM OF COLUMBIA, FOR RESTORING THE HAIR.

"Long hair is a glory to woman," says Paul,
And all feel the truth of the pious quotation;
Preserve it then, ladies—your glory may fall,
Unless you protect it with this preparation.

If you wish a rich, luxuriant head of hair, free from dandruff and scurf, do not fail to procure the genuine Balm of Columbia. In cases baldness it it will more than exceed your expectations. Many who have lost their hair for twenty years, have had it restored to its original perfection by the use of this balm. Age, state, or condition, appears to be no obstacle whatever; it also causes the fluid to flow with which the delicate hair tubes is filled, by which means thousands (whose hair was grey as the Asiatic eagle) have had their hair restored to its natural color by this invaluable remedy. In all cases of fever it will be found the most pleasant wash that can be used. A few applications only are necessary to keep the hair from falling out. It strengthens the roots, it never fails to impart a rich glossy appearance, and as a perfume for the toilet it is unequalled. It holds three times as much as other miscalled hair restoratives, and is more effectual.

☞ Caution—Never buy it unless you find the name of Comstock & Co., proprietors, on the wrapper of each bottle, or you are cheated with a counterfeit article.

REVIEW OF THE WORK.

Marriage requires the fulfilment of several conditions, in order that it may be really the cause of mutual happiness. Could the veil, which covers the origin of domestic wretchedness be raised, and its true source in every instance disclosed, in how many could it be traced to physical disqualifications and their attendant disappointments. Excesses are always injurious; the gift, which when used in moderation is fraught with advantage, becomed, when abused, the prolific source of mischief, and of greater or less injury to the constitution and vital powers. The particular excesses, on the nature and consequences of which this Treatise professes to dilate, are productive of greater misery to the human frame, than any other to which it is subject.

This Work contains an accurate and complete account of the Anatomy and Physiology of the Reproductive Organs, and of their relative conditions in health and disease. Not are these the sole contents of the Work, the means of escape, as well as the nature of the danger are pointed out in clear and intelligible language. It deservedly requires the closest attention and study, for what subject can be of more importance than the preservation of health, and the physical capabilities of which every man should be possessed. It unfortunately happens that the unhappy victim of excessive indulgence and vicious habits, whether acquired in early life, or from the follies of advanced age, while suffering from their invariable consequences, unwisely entertains a fear of applying to the qualified physician for relief. Shame and the dread so frequently but erroneously entertained that these complaints are beyond the reach of art, alike restrict him, and prevent his seeking for assistance where alone it can be procured. In acting thus, he forgets that actuate discrimination in ascertaining the causes of disease, sympathy with the sufferer, and above all, secrecy, invariably characterize the intelligent and practical physician, and to the medical man, who can show by his possession of the requisite legal qualification that he is entitled to esteem and respect in his professional pursuits the utmost confidence should be extended. DR. LA'MERT has obtained the highest medical honours, as his diplomas testify, and the great extent of his practice for many years is a guarantee for his professional experience, which has reference almost solely to the treatment of these diseases.

The work may be had in St. John, of H. Chubb & Co. price 2s. 6d. stg.; Halifax, Messrs. Moir & Co.; Quebec, Mr. Neilson.
