Poetry.

PERPETUAL JOY.

If Spring put forth her beauteous grace,
And smiled from field, hedge-row, and lea—
I know where beams a lovelier face,
Whose smile is bright for only me.

If sunny Summer proudly glow,
Beneath her wealth of fruit and flower,
And silver bosomed river flow,
And listening trees their waves embower.

And all is beauty, brightness, joy—
My heart still turns to that dear home
Where beauty beams that ne'er can cloy,
And fear of change can never come.

Should Autumn wave its yellow hair,
Kissed by the breezes with delight,
And heaven its richest glories bare,
To woe and cheer man's wand'ring sight.

O, richer looks are wreathed for me,
Whose wind-kissed waves breathe sweeter airs!
A richer Heaven, bright, sunny, free,
Undimmed by clouds, cheers all my cares.

And well I know when Winter's night
Brings storm, or frost, or hail or snow,
And leafless trees shriek with affright
At howling winds which ceaseless blow.

That peace and joy will brightly reign
Where her dear voice is sweetly heard.
And her dear smile sunds forth again,
Though storm and rage the world has stirred.

And thus for me perpetual peace,
Perpetual joy, and sunshine wait;
For love's dear memories never cease
And love's dominion needs not state.

THE MOON.

The moon was pallid, but not a faint,
And beautiful as some fair saint,
Serenely moving on her way,
In hours of trial and dismay;
As if she heard the voice of God,
Unharmed with naked feet she trod
Upon the hot and burning stars,
As on the glowing coals and bars,
That were to prove her strength and try
Her holiness and purity.

[Longfellow.]

SONNET.

I do assure the, love each kiss of thine
Adds to my stature, makes me more a man,
Lightens my care, and drawn the bitter wine
That I was drugged with, while my nature ran
Its stubborn course. For didst not thou untwine
My evanning fetters? break the odious ban,
That quite debased me I free this heart of mine,
And deck my chains with roses? Winie I can
Tell what thy praises, till the world shall ring
With thy great glory; and the heaping store
Still miss thy poet, at thy feet to pour
A juster tribute, as the gracious spring
Of my abundance—kiss me, then once more.

VARIETY.

"ONCE."

"Did you ever attend the theatre?" said a young man to a blue-eyed maiden, who hung on his arm as they promenaded the streets of New York, one mild evening in October. The girl's cheek crimsoned, as she answered the interrogatory in the negative, and added:

"My mother has taught me from childhood that it is wrong to attend such places."

"But your mother formed, perhaps, improper prejudices, from exaggerating accounts given by others; for I have often heard her say she never attended one in her life."

He spoke eloquently of the drama, comedy and tragedy, and dwelt with pathos on the important lessons there to be learned of human nature.

"Go with me once," he said, "and judge for yourself."

Persuasion and curiosity triumphed over maternal precept and example, as she hesitatingly replied:

"I'll go but once."

She went, and in that theatre a charm came over her like that which the serpent sent forth from his dovelike eye. She went again and again, and from that house of mirth and laughter she was led to one, from the portals of which she never returned.

Around a centre-table, where an astral lamp was shedding its mild light, sat three girls, one holding in her hand a pack of cards. At the back of her chair stood a young man who for years had successfully resisted every effort made by his companions to induce him to learn the characters of cards.

"Come," said she, we want one to make out our game. Play with us once if you never play again."

Her eye, cheek and lip conspired to form an eloquent battery, which sent forth its attack upon the fortress of good resolutions, which had long stood secure, until it fell like the walls of an ancient city when jarred by the fearful battering ram. He learned the cards and played. A few weeks afterward I was passing his door at a late hour, and a candle was shedding its dim light through the window. Since that time I have looked from my chamber nearly every hour of the night, from the close of day till early morn, and seen the light faintly struggling through the curtains that screened the inmates of that room from every eye, save His who seeth alike in darkness and noonday. Gaming brought with it disease, and death came just as he had numbered the half of his three-score years and ten. During his last hours I was sitting by his bedside, when he fixed on me a look I shall never forget, and bade me listen to his dying words.

I might have been a different man from what I am; but it is now too late. I am convinced that there is a state of being beyond the grave; and when I think of the retribution awaits me in another world, I feel a horror which language is inadequate to describe."—These were among the the last words he ever uttered.

The junior class of a southern college had assembled in a studen's room to spend the night in riot debauch. Amid the crowd was one who had never recited a bad lesson since his matriculation. In his studies he was "head and shoulders" above the class. That day he failed. A shade of the deepest gloom came over him, and he was melancholy. But the wine and jest passed round while he felt like Lucifer in Eden, where all was joy and gladness around him. Said a classmate—

"Come, Bob, quaff this bumper, and it will make you feel bright as a hermit's lamp."

The tempter whispered in his ear, "Drink once, and forget the past." A powerful struggle seemed to be going on in his mind for a moment; but at last he silently shook his head, and retiring from the room gave vent to a flood of tears.

That boy never drank—not even once. He took the valedictory, and is now president of a college.

Once! Oh, on this slender point hath turned for weal or woe the destiny of a deathless spirit. Cæsar, paused but once on the banks of the Rubicon; but it was a pause like that which nature makes when gathering her elements for the dread tornado. Even ate the forbidden fruit but once, and her countless posterity have felt the fearful consequences resulting from so rash an act. Reader, remember once.

THE THREE GLANCES.—A pious man was once asked, whence it came, that in spite of all the calamities of life he should still preserve such equanimity.—He answered:

"It comes from this, that I take good care of my eyes; for all evil comes into the heart through the sense, but good, also, by the same way."

Upon further questioning how he did this, he said,"

"Every morning before I go to my business, and among men. I direct my eyes thoughfully to three things; First, I raise to heaven, and remind myself that my chief business and the aim of my life and endeavors is up there. Secondly, I lower them to the earth, and consider how little room I need, one day, to find me a grave there.

Finally, I look upon myself and think of the multitudes of those whose fortune is worse than mine. In this way I have patience in all my sorrow, and live with the world and men contented in God.—Auerbacker.

The Subscriber having been appointed Agent to the above Company for New-Brunswick, begs to announce that he is prepared to receive Proposals for FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE. The large Capital of the Company, and the number and influence of its Proprietors, enable it to rank with the most eligible Offices, either in America or Europe, with respect to the advantages offered to the Public.

FIRE BRANCH.

Persons Assured by this Company are not subject to any covenants or calls to make good losses which may happen to themselves or other, nor do they depend on any uncertain fund or contribution, the Capital Stock of this Company being an unquestionable security to the Assured in case of Loss or Damage by Fire.

LIFE BRANCH.

In addition to the more customary methods of Insurance, the Company likewise Assures Lives on any of the following contingencies:—

For the terms of One Year, Seven Years, or any other definite period.

For the whole continuance of Life—The Premiums to cease, after a limited number of Annual Payments.

For Two Joint Lives.—The sum assured to be paid on the death of either.

On the longest of Two or Three Lives.—The sum assured to be payable at the death of the last survivor; or,

The Survivorships.—To secure the payment of the sum assured, if a life A die before another life B.

For a sum to be payable at age 60, or at death.

Premiums on Credit.—A portion of the Premiums on Credit. Assurances may be effected in various ways, not enumerated, to meet the convenience of parties.

The important advantages afforded by the Company in the Life Branch will include the following viz:—

The Guarantee of an ample Capital, and Exemption of the Assured from liability of Partnership.

Moderate Premiums.

Large Participation of Profits by the Assured amounting to Two-thirds of its net amount, which may be applied at the option of the party effecting the Assurance:—1st. By the immediate payment of the sum so apportioned.—2nd. By an equivalent increase of the sum assured.

MEDICAL REVOLUTION!

THE WORLD UNANIMOUS!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT!

THE GREAT COUNTER IRRITANT!

The virus of disease often makes its way to the internal organs through the pores of the skin. This penetrating Ointment, melting under the hand as it is rubbed in, is absorbed through the same channels, and, reaching the seat of inflammation, promptly and invariably subdues it, whether located in the kidneys, the liver, the lungs, or any other important organ. It penetrates the surface to the interior, through the countless tubes that communicate with the skin as summer rain passes into the fevered earth diffusing its cool and regenerating influence.

SKIN DISEASES & GLANDULAR SWELLINGS.

Every species of exterior irritation is quickly reduced by the anti-inflamatory action of this Ointment. Angry Eruptions, such as SALT RHEUM, ERYSIPELAS, TETTER, RINGWORM, SCALD HEAD, NETTLE RASH, SCABIES (or Itch) &c., die out, to return no more under its application Hospital experience in all parts of the world proves its infallibility in diseases of the skin, the muscles, the joints and the glands.

ULCERS, SORES, AND TUMORS.

The effect of this unrivaled external remedy upon Scrofula, and other virulent ulcers and sores, is almost miraculous. It first discharges the poison which produces suppuration and proud flesh, and thus the cures which its healing properties afterward complete are safe as well as permanent.

WOUNDS, BRUISES, BURNS, A
