TO BE FOUGHT OVER AGAIN

ANOTHER BILLIARD TOURNAMENT TO BE HELD AT CHICAGO.

The Run of the Hunt on Saturday—Association Football—Another Victory for the Canadians in New Jersey.

On Saturday afternoon the meet of the Toronto hunt was at Nurse's, near the Humber bridge. The master, on a fine black fellow by Warmanbie, was one of the first at the rallying place, accompanied by Messrs. M. A. Thomas, A. R. Denison, J. H. Mead and Harry Cooper. At the signal the hounds were taken along the Etobicoke road for about half a mile, and cast off on Mr. Rush's farm. Making a sharp detour to the left they ran down by the Great Western railway and along the side of the track for some distance, then up and down a steep hill and across quite a wide stream, which was almost coated with ice and was terribly cold. Over the old Government farm at Mimico the scent laid keen through to Mr. Stock's, where both horses and riders had some tough work, the lay of the land calling to the mind of an enthusiastic Englishman present many a good run he claimed to have enjoyed over Lincolnshire country. Doubling, the hounds now showed the way in a south-westerly direction to Mr. Godson's farm, and then turning hard north again they struck Mr. Atkinson's homestead on the road to Lambton. Here there was a check. Instructing Tim, the huntsman, to call the hounds together, the master had them laid on at the north of the side line. Striking the scent again they went off at a rattling pace. Crossing the road, a stiff double jump was encountered and here several pretentious riders were unhorsed. Leaving the dual obstacle at the end of a big field a huge stake and rider fence loomed up. Who was going to take it was the momentous question. There it stood fully 5 ft. 6 in. high and threatening dire disaster to too venturesome bones. Two gallant huntsmen went at it, namely, Mr. Ernest Simpson on Bruce and Mr. Robert Miles on Black Cloud. They cleared the stiff 'un finely, but a couple of rails had to be removed before their companions could be induced to go at it. Now they streamed down a ravine and then up a hill over on to Mr. Gardner's farm. Down a lane through to the Humber there was never a pause, and the river had to be forded at the stone quarries. This was quite an undertaking, the water rising up over the girths. Half a dozen hounds declined the swim. Tim dismounting, had to recross and carry or force them across one by one. When he was making the journey for the last time he missed the track and fell into pretty deep water. Then both he and the dog had to strike out for it. The master lent a helping hand and Tim got safely ashore, the hound looking out for himself in the emergency. From this point the run was short. Over Mr. Howland's the pack scampered, well strung out, and finished at Mr. Baby's. Mr. Arthur Denison on a well put together, solid-looking and clever chestnut was the first up, followed by Harry Cooper on the triple-plated Charley Ware, J. H. Mead on Brown Prince, Earnest Simpson on Bruce, W. T. Murray on the Laird, and Messrs. Chas. Brown, Laut, Score and others well up. About forty members were out and a number of carriages, one of which contained a Montreal party comprising Mr. McNamara, Mrs. and Miss Gardner. The run was about seven miles and was hard going nearly all through.

The Victorias Beat the Ætnas at Football.

The Ætnas and Victorias played off their second and last association tie on Saturday afternoon.

Ætnas.			Victorias.
Elliott	goal		J. Meldrum
Graham	backs		G. H. Orr
Palmer			Wood
J. Sinclair	half backs		C. P. Orr
Carmichael			Shirley
H. O'Hara	right forwards		McKinley
W. O'Hara			Bell
Macdonald	centre forwards		G. Meldrum
D. Sinclair			Anderson
Haldane			Thompson

In the first half the Victorias succeeded in scoring four goals, and in the second the same number, while the Ætnas only gained one. The score at the end of the game, therefore, stood eight to one in favor of the Victorias, a result, it must be said, not quite proportionate with the merits of the play. The Ætnas played with more dash throughout than their weightier opponents, and time after time rushed the ball down the field on to the Victoria goal. Arrived there, however, they did not seem to possess the requisite force to drive it through. The Victorias, on the other hand, when they succeeded in getting the ball in the vicinity of the Ætna goal almost invariably scored. Their kicking was, as a rule, better than that of the Ætnas. Palmer, H. O'Hara, D. Sinclair and Parker for the Ætnas, and George Orr, McKinley, Wood and Elliott for the Victorias particularly distinguished themselves.

The Billiardists and Their Prize Money.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—When the three billiard experts met yesterday afternoon, to divide the money taken in at the late tournament, together with the roomkeepers' purse, it was found that the fund was $1000 short—the Balke-Collender firm declining to make good their $1000 subscription. The other roomkeepers said they would not pay unless that firm lived up to the agreement.

"You tell Maurice and me in Paris dat your firm give one tousand dollar," broke in Mme. Vignaux, vehemently, to Moses Bensinger, representative of that firm.

"No, I didn't," replied Bensinger, "you must have misunderstood me."

"No, no, no; you said dat so vare plain. You did not tell ze truth now," retorted the little Frenchwoman.

A general wrangle ensued, and the meeting finally broke up without any settlement having been made. It appears that Bensinger has opposed paying the money unless the players settled the question as to the championship, but it is stated that it is believed that the firm will pay the amount in spite of Bensinger's opposition.

CHICAGO, Nov 29.—Schaefer, Vignaux and Slosson have entered into an agreement to play three games of billiards here on the 21st, 22d and 23d of December, the winner to receive the receipts, and the subscription of $1000 by the Brunswick-Balke company which Bensinger refused to pay on the tournament resulting in a tie. To make room for this contest the date for the New York tournament has been made March 1.

The Canadians Win Again.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The return game for the international football championship, between a picked eleven of the Western association of Canada and a picked team from the American association, was played yesterday afternoon on the ground of the O. N. F. club of Newark, at Kearny, N.J. A fine military band was on the grounds and played a selection of martial airs, much to the delight of the many ladies present. The game was very evenly contested, the only score being one goal kicked for the Canadians by A. Gibson. During the second half of the game a good deal of rough play took place. The wonderful kicking of Brubacher and Holden, and the marvelous goal keeping of McKendrick, were oftentimes loudly applauded. The only change in the Canadian team was that Fraser played in place of Killier.

General Notes.

The racing at Brighton Beach was brought to a sudden close on Friday on account of crooked work.

George Fulljames has gone to Detroit to prepare for his fight with Jack Lawrence in the Detroit district three or four weeks hence.

The second six of the Toronto polo club want to meet the Adelaide-street team whenever and wherever convenient to the latter.

The race for the Manchester November handicap Saturday was won by Chevalier Ginistrelli's 4-year-old Raffaelio. Mr. T. Cannon's 4-year-old Postscript was second and Xema third.

A serious split in his pants while he was making a difficult shot, at which the audience roared with laughter, is said to have been the cause of Schaefer's defeat by Slosson in the recent billiard tournament.

A half-mile race for $50 a side took place at the Woodbine on Saturday afternoon between Mr. Gwatkin's b.m. Flora B. and Mr. Doane's b.g. Toronto, the latter giving the mare 20 lbs. Flora B. won almost in a canter. The owners were up.

Paul Patillo offered $25 to any man who would stand up with him six rounds at his new boxing academy, Millstone lane, Saturday night. Mark Checkley accepted the offer and won the quarter of a century, although Paul made it somewhat hot for him.

Mr. W. Hendrie, jr., being in town the other day expressed his willingness to match his well-known hunter and steeplechaser The Laird against any half-bred in the country. Some enthusiastic horsemen hearing this, it is understood, propose to make up a syndicate and back up either Mr. Ward's Speculator or Mr. Alec. Shield's Cyclone against the too ambitious Scotchman.

The football match for the junior championship of Ontario was played on Trinity college grounds between the Beverleys and the Hamilton juniors, and resulted in four points to one in favor of the latter. For Hamilton, McNider, Field, Georing and Watson did some fine playing; and for the Beverleys, Bunting, Miles and Brown. E. P. Martin of U. C. C. club umpired for Hamilton, and Mr. E. U. Savers of the London football club was referee.

Sam Collyer has deposited a forfeit of $100 and challenged Billy Edwards to fight according to London prize ring rules for $1000 a side with or without gloves. Collyer says in his challenge: "I have not been able to figure in ring contests for eight years because I promised the late Gen. Geo. B. McClellan, when he pardoned me at Trenton State prison, where I was confined for being connected with the Weeden and Walker fatal prize fight, that I would never engage in a prize ring encounter while he lived, and I kept my word."

The football match on Saturday between picked teams from Brayley, McClung & Co's, and G. Goulding & Sons on the one side, and Hughes Bros. and Tait, Burch & Co's. on the other, resulted in a decided victory for the former, the figures being 2 to 0. The players worthy of mention on the losing team were Adams, Mitchell and Reufus, and on the winning team Rough, Wrong, Brayley, Hurdley, Gill, Allen and Clarke. Merrick for B., McC. & Co. made a splendid goal keeper. Messrs. Brown and F. G. Cowell acted as umpires, and Warren Kennedy, jr., as referee.

At Lexington, Ky., on Saturday Mr. L. L. Dorsey sold to Robert Steele of Philadelphia the trotting stallion Epaulette, record 2.19½ for $22,500. Epaulette was foaled in 1880, sired by Auditor, son of Hambletonian: dam Pantalette, by Princeps; second dam Florence by Volunteer, son of Hambletonian; third dam Nell, by Hambletonian. From this it can be seen he is in-bred to the great sire of trotters. He was bred by Mr. R. S. Veech, of St. Matthews, Ky., and sold as a two-year-old to Mr. Dorsey for $300. His record was made at Lexington last month in the third heat, the first and second being trotted in 2.20¼.

There was a first-class entertainment at Harry Gilmore's boxing academy Saturday night, including two or three rattling set-tos, some capital dancing of the Highland fling, excellent string music by an Italian band, and a well-played bone solo by the genial, plucky and obliging master of ceremonies, George Cooper. The best sparring contests were between Harrison, a 140-lb. pupil of Harry, and Maurice Casey; between Kelly (another pupil) and Harrison, and the wind-up of three rounds between Gilmore and Casey. All these were scientific, and were well enjoyed. Harry has a standing offer of $25 to any man within 25 pounds of his weight who will stand six rounds before him.

Homer Watson, R.C.A.

This young Canadian artist has just completed an important painting, which has been privately exhibited to a few friends, including The World. It is understood to be a commission given last spring by a gentleman residing in this city. The subject is the South Falls of the Muskoka river. The view of the falls is from a point which enables the spectator to see the whole tumble of water at once as it leaps and foams down the gorge. This feature of rapid motion is expressed in crisp broad touches, the dark masses of gliding water where it slips over the rock being rendered in strong contrast to the foam where it is churned up at each successive rapid. The painter has evidently decided to portray the strong, rapid motion of the water as it arranges itself in sharp vivid contrasts rather than to depict the veiling mists which arise from it as it dashes against the rocks. When one looks at the granite walls, strong and hard, on either side of the fall it will at once be felt that in no other way could the water have been treated successfully than as it is in this picture, taking its strong and vigorous course through the rocks. The granite is painted with a solid and sure brush, not enough detail to mar the feeling of strength. The blue veins in the rock are in good complimentary color to the gold or autumn tints of the foliage. The sky is of a warm atmospheric blue, with a few scudding clouds departing, the rearguard of stormy weather, which has no doubt influenced the volume of water between the rocks. Altogether the painting is one which might be hung with pride in any collection, and we are pleased that it is to adorn a Toronto home.

THE HELL OF THE PAST.

What It Is as Described by a Unitarian Preacher.

Rev. Hilary Bygrave lectured on the above subject before a crowded congregation in the Unitarian church on Jarvis street last night. The ancient Hebrews, he said, had no definite belief in a future life, and the translators of the Bible had grossly misrepresented their thought by rendering the word "sheol" by the word "hell," which had been corrected by the revised version. The Old Testament nowhere said that the wicked should go to the everlasting bonfire; what it said was that they should be turned into sheol, the place of eternal darkness, silence and gloom, the fate of good and bad alike but in different ways. The Hebrews of New Testament times had acquired a belief in future punishment, as appeared from the literature of the transition period, the Apocrypha, the Talmud and Josephus, from the influence of Grecian and Persian thought. The religion of Zoroaster taught a future state of separation of the good from the bad, though not an eternal one, and the doctrine of Tartarus was a part of Plato's philosophy. From such sources the Hebrews of Christ's time got their belief in future punishment, and Jesus shared the prevailing thought of his time on such subjects as demons, angels and the future states of the good and bad. He frequently spoke of paradise and hades and gehenna, but the preacher was certain he never taught the church's doctrine of a hell of everlasting torment. He taught that this future punishment, whatever its nature or extent might be, was reserved not for misbelievers, but for misdoers—not for those who did not think right theologically, for He himself was unorthodox, judged by the standard of His time. Many were misled by the unreflecting use of such words as eternal, everlasting, etc., which were all translations in one form or another of the Greek root con, meaning simply an indefinite period, not necessarily without end, and it was often used in the New Testament in a limited sense. Theologians had, for dishonest purposes, translated hades (the underworld) and gehenna (the vale of Hinnum) by the word hell, conveying impressions entirely foreign to those Greek terms, and the orthodox reviisers had perpetuated the dishonesty by rendering gehenna as "the hell of fire," which one critic had justly declared was more than ever giving men the idea of God as an eternal torturer. The vale of Hinnum was a great crematory, where the refuse of the city was purified, and Christ uses the word in a picturesque and figurative way to indicate the necessity of similar purifying of the moral corruptions of wrongdoers. In both the gospels and the epistles we looked in vain for the doctrine of everlasting punishment. It was one of the corruptions of the church in the third century, and from the 10th to the 16th century all the best intellect of Europe, in literature, in eloquence, in painting, was busied in depicting the frightful agonies of hell. It was the church's reign of terror. There was no respite; no hope for the lost; in vain did they cry for mercy to a pitiless God. We could not realize the awful conceptions of that age or the wretchedness they produced. Those were the days of unquestioning faith, when Biblical criticism and fearless thought and speech were not. That grim faith—that God, knowing that man should fall, decreed that a few should be snatched as brands from the burning and saved by Christ's sacrifice, while the rest should be left to eternal torture—Protestantism was gradually abandoning. This was a question that could never be settled by any explanation or balancing of scriptural texts. From first to last it was a moral question to be settled on moral and intellectual grounds. He who had any mental conception of what justice meant, and any moral conception of what it meant to call God Father could never believe in everlasting punishment. He (the speaker) would not believe such an outrage on the justice and mercy of God even if it were taught in every line of the Bible. He for one would worship no God who was inferior to a noble man. When Christ told Peter to forgive his brother seventy times seven, he told him to do towards his brother what the old doctrine represented God would not do towards His own creatures. If you said that God was angry, and nursed and brooded over it like a moody, splenetic man, that he took pleasure in the blood of lambs and bulls, and later on in the blood of Jesus, and that we could only obtain His favor by being washed in His blood, then he would say, "Pardon me, I do not believe it." Most men extolled belief. If he were making a prayer he would pray for unbelief, and would say: "Oh Lord, let my divine faculty of reason that lifts me above all creatures in nearness to Thyself, help me to disbelieve whatever is untrue to thee. Incline my heart to deny all hate and vengeance ascribed to Thee. From the doctrine of the eternal damnation of sinners, from the belief that since I began to speak to these children of Thine a million of souls have dropped into the outer darkness forever, good Lord, deliver me." He said "The hell of the future" would be the subject for next Sunday.

Sermon to Scotchmen.

In St. Andrew's church last evening Rev. D. J. Macdonnell preached a sermon specially addressed to the St. Andrew's society. The members did not sit in a body, but were largely represented throughout the congregation. The reverend gentleman took for his text Luke xii., 48: "For unto whomsoever much is given of him much shall be required." He first referred to the different social circumstances of persons, and said that all will be judged according to the privileges they enjoy. He then spoke of the past history of Scotland. Scots were noted for their profound reverence of God, and their strict observance of the Sabbath. He advocated strongly a united school and church—not the mere reading of the Bible in the schools, but the teaching of those fundamental truths agreed upon by all denominations. The necessity of this, he said, was becoming imperative, not only here but also in the States. The collection will be devoted to the charitable funds of the society.

In Favor of Moral Suasion.

The usual meeting of the Trinity College Literary society was held Friday evening, Mr. A. C. Allan in the chair. Mr. Tremayne read an excellent essay on College Customs, pointing out that though some were seemingly irregular they all exerted a beneficial influence, by improving men's deportment or by cementing friendship. A debate followed on the subject: "Resolved that legal enactment is a more powerful incentive to good conduct than moral suasion." G. N. Beaumont, Rev. Mr. Squires, B.A., and M. A. Mackenzie supported the affirmative; H. O. Tremayne, J. S. Broughall and F. G. A. Wright, the negative. The superiority of moral suasion was the verdict of a large majority of members present. After the regular meeting a special meeting was held, Mr. Wright in the chair. Motions were passed abolishing the custom of voting on debates, and appointing a critic.

The Harston-Henry Rifle.

The Canadian Militia Gazette publishes the report of Major Prevost on the Harston-Henry rifle. Major Prevost states that if, as represented by Capt. Harston, the arm can be manufactured cheaper than the Martini-Henry rifle, it would pay to have a number of them manufactured. Lieut.-Col. Cotton also states that there is a great advantage in Capt. Harston's invention, and that it has gone through the ordeal of the tests made with every success. There is a prospect of the rifle being adopted by the militia department.

Similar letters reach Mr. Torrington daily, and the subscription list still grows larger. The chorus list will shortly close.

Cox then went to Montreal, where he obtained employment in a wholesale house.

A BARTENDER'S SUICIDE.

Patrick F. Reilly, Stricken With Remorse, Shoots Himself Dead.

Patrick F. Reilly, aged 27, and who tended bar for his cousin E. J. Reilly, at the Senate hotel on Church street, shot himself dead in an upper room at 58 Adelaide street east about 4.30 yesterday evening. The unfortunate young man had been drinking quite freely of late, and last Thursday his employer dispensed with his services for the last time. Since then Reilly has been very despondent, and more than once was heard to threaten suicide. Saturday night he went to the room of a young man named Wm. H. Watkins, at the number indicated, and said he had no place to stay. Watkins took him in. Yesterday afternoon Watkins went out, leaving Reilly alone in the room. When he returned at 5.35 he found Reilly lying dead on the bed, his clothes saturated with blood, and a harmless looking five-chambered revolver, with three bullets missing, beside him. He at once notified Detective Cuddy, and when that officer reached the room the body was still slightly warm. A doctor was called, but of course he could do nothing. A bullet wound was found in the centre of the breast, and the ball had glanced off the breast-bone and lodged in the left lung. Death was caused by internal hemorrhage. About 1:30 in the afternoon Policeman Fyfe heard a couple of shots fired from a window in the vicinity of Watkins' room, but could not exactly locate the place. Another shot was heard about 4:30 by parties in the building, and this is supposed to be the fatal one. Reilly belonged to Niagara Falls, N.Y., whither the remains will be sent for interment. Coroner Duncan did not deem an inquest necessary.

Osgoode Literary and Legal Society.

At the regular meeting of the above society Saturday evening, although some of those whose names were on the program were absent, yet, thanks to the voluntary contributions of other members, the entertainment was not allowed to detract from the high standard it has attained. A reading by Mr. Dunn was exceedingly well rendered, after which an open debate on the resolution, "That in jury cases other than criminal a majority should be sufficient," was introduced by the leader of the affirmative, Mr. Dubernet. Mr. McNeil followed in an able address, after which the debate was left open for the other members who volunteered short speeches pro and con. Much merriment was caused by the arguments of the apparent factions existing among the supporters of the negative, to whom the decision was finally given.

A Pair of Disgusted Orangemen.

Not long ago two prominent east end Orangemen exercised their influence to secure the appointment of a worthy brother to the fire brigade. Their labor was not in vain, and in due time their man was assigned to duty in the hall over the Don. Safe in a good position with steady pay the new fireman decided to make his sweetheart his wife, and what more appropriate day could he as a true Orangeman select for the marriage ceremony than the Fifth of November, a day honored the world over by the order. The ceremony accordingly took place on that date, and everything was lovely until it leaked out that the bride is a Catholic and that the groom had abjured Protestantism and joined her church. Imagine the feelings of the two brethren who had worked so hard for him on hearing this. They are the most disgusted men in the community. As for their appointee he is happy and contented with his bride and has taken kindly to the new religion.

A Horse Jockey in Trouble.

William Wheeler, aged 16, a horse jockey by "profesh," was landed at police headquarters last night, on his way to Barrie. Wheeler belongs to Alliston, in the county of Simcoe. Last September he and two companions followed a well known business man of that section, who was under the influence of liquor, around for three hours with the object of robbing him. This was accomplished when their man fell asleep. A gold watch and chain and $190 in money was secured. Wheeler fled to Detroit, where he was tracked by Detective Joseph Rogers. He was arrested in Detroit Saturday, brought to Toronto last night and will be taken to Barrie this morning.

A Brilliant Achievement.

—The grand success of the Mantle and Mourning Establishment at 218 Yonge street is one of the wonders of modern times, and not only has the business far exceeded the most sanguine expectations, but an enlargement of premises has already taken place to meet the unprecedented demand for the novelties they show, which are far superior to anything before attempted in this city; in fact it is now recognized as the Toronto Emporium of Fashion. The name is I. Pittman & Co. 135x
