Brevities.

The Victoria Hotel servants had a ball in the Laundry, Thursday night, and a supper.

"There's many a slip twixt the cup and the lip." Mr. Geo. Carlier, Jr's horse was slipped away with Thursday while George was drinking in a Portland livuor saloon.

An incendiary fire occurred, Christmas morning, in an old unoccupied building on the corder of Church and Canterbury streets. It was extinguished after an hour or two, the upper portion of the building being destroyed.

Wednesday afternoon, in McFee's shipyard, Portland, a plank fell on Hugh Bragan and crushed his skull in. He leaves a family.

Sadler's eating and dining saloon, in Sheffield street, was ransacked last evening, about six o'clock. Holy Joe, one of the subordinates in the Eagle Eye Battery of the police force, the enemy of publicans and sinners, who has frequently had to climb fences and listen through key holes in the performance of his duty, says if he had been on hand a few minutes sooner, he might have saved Sadler's property from destruction.

All the hotels provided good dinners for their guests yesterday.

The Christmas presentations were numerous and costly. A solid ivory toilet set, sold by George Stewart, Jr., was one of the most elegant.

On Christmas Eve the seventeen small boys and girls in the Protestant Orphan Asylum were favored with a luxurious tea and a tree-load of presents by Mrs. W. W. Turnbull, at her residence. Several benevolent ladies and gentlemen were present.

Edw. Jack, Esq., lectured in Fredericton, Tuesday evening, on "Wilderness Journeys in New Brunswick." No man in the Province is better qualified to do the subject justice.

The magistracy of Carleton County, have been deprived of Zebedee Cox, who has been turned out by the Government for not knowing the law—or for conducting himself improperly.

George Brown, champion oarsman of Halifax, has been presented with $20 by the young men of Stellarton, Pictou County.

The Catholic Christmas collections amounted to $1,409.

Mr. George Ruddock, who fell while trimming St. Luke's Church, Christmas Eve, and was dangerously injured, is getting better.

The widow of Hugh Bragan gets $1000 from the Travelers Accident Co., M. & T. B. Robinson, agents.

Hon. Isaac Burpee has returned from Ottawa. The principal business done during his stay at the capital was to order a discontinuance of advertising in papers that do not approve of the policy of the present Government before it is announced.

The alarm of fire from box 15, between 11 and 12 o'clock last night, was caused by a burning chimney in Clarence st.

A meeting of the Board of Trade will be held in the Exchange rooms on Monday next, at 11 o'clock, a. m., to consider bye-laws and other business.

A lady while proceeding down King street about 8 o'clock last evening had a severe fall near the corner of Canterbury street. She seemed to be much hurt, as it was with considerable difficulty she succeeded in walking home with the assistance of a gentleman who came to her aid. The streets are as dangerously slippery as usual, being covered with ice hummocks.

The storm drum is up, giving warning of an approaching storm.

Shipping Notes.

Abandoned.—The Marquerite, Philippot, master, at Havre from Port au Prince, reports having on the 18th ult., in lat. 46, N lon. 41 W., passed an abandoned bark of about 600 tons, painted black with yellow taffrail and blue scutcheon, apparently timber laden with stern carried away and foremast gone, half under water.

Disasters in October.—The Committee of Management of the Bureau Veritas has just published the list of marine disasters reported during the month of October, 1873, concerning all flags. The list gives the following statistics:

New Vessels.—A fine new ship named the Kate Cann was launched from the yard of Mr. W. A. Cann, Milton, Yarmouth, N. S., on the 20th inst. She registers 976 tons and will probably be the last of the long list of Yarmouth ships for 1873. She is owned by Messrs. Cann Bros. of Milton.

The Maggie Wood.—The three-masted schooner Maggie Wood, of this port, which was dismasted in the great gale of August last, at Cow Bay, C. B., afterwards rigged into a brigantine, and put into Louisburg dismasted, on her voyage from Sydney, C. B., for this port, arrived at Halifax on the 24th inst., in tow of the steamer Neptune.

Auction Sales.

Mr. W. D. W. Hubbard sold at auction, at Chubb's corner, on Saturday, 100 acres of land, with buildings and improvements thereon, in the Parish of Studholm, King's County. This valuable property, one half of which is cleared, crosses the Millstream, and has an excellent mill privilege. Mr. Warwick was the purchaser for $300. Previous to the sale Mr. Chas. E. Stockton, on behalf of Mr. Joseph Wright, who at present holds possession and claims to have purchased and paid for the property, protested against the sale and warned intending purchasers.

Mr. Hubbard also sold at the same time and place 100 acres of land, together with dwelling house and other buildings, in the parish of Havelock, King's County. Mr. Warwick was also the purchaser of this property for $300.

Presentation.

[From the Amherst Gazette.]

On Christmas Eve an elegant silver plated tea service was sent to the editor of this paper, accompanied by the following note:—

"J. A. BLACK, Esq.,—

Dear Sir: Members of the Baptist Church and Congregation of this place recognizing your gratuitous services as organist and leader of the choir wish to manifest their appreciation of your aid thus given to church worship, and at this season of the year, when tokens of manifest interest and good will are presented, take much pleasure in presenting to you the accompanying tea service, with the best wishes of the donors for your future happiness and prosperity."

Mr. Black takes this means of expressing his thanks to the friends who took part in procuring so handsome and valuable a Christmas present. He values it, not only as expressing appreciation of personal services, but as evincing the special interest taken by a considerable number in the important part of divine worship which he has the honor to conduct.

Teachers and the Art of Composition.

To the Editor of the Tribune.

SIR,—While perusing your interesting and suggestive article, in Saturday's TRIBUNE, referring to the late school examinations, I was forcibly struck with the truthful—though not very flattering—statement, that very few teachers are capable of preparing composition fit to be put into the hands of "follow-copy compositors." "Alas! 'tis true." Wherein lies the secret? In our school days composition was sadly neglected; analysis and synthesis were unknown to many of us. It was only a few days ago, while in course of conversation with a gentleman who is actively engaged in the cause of education in this city, he expressed how much reason he had to lament, through his own experience, that these branches had been neglected in his younger days. And I hold that every teacher should, as a matter of conscience, exert himself or herself—and it requires an exertion, too—to make the art of composition attractive, so that the next generation of teachers may be competent to punctuate their register remarks at least. Regarding the "journalist's medal," or even prizes, if it be possible, let them be awarded. During several years of school experience I have found that I could always get more work out of the pupils, and a better attendance during a term in which prizes were awarded. And now, Mr. Editor, I venture to make a suggestion that if you should think fit to offer a prize to our school, we shall promise you in return to make an effort to have some original papers put in your hands at the next semi-annual examination. Speaking of recitation, I acknowledge it is generally an easy matter to induce children to recite, but, to teach them to render a piece of poetry or even prose in a satisfactory manner, is a more difficult task. Really good recitations must be the exception as yet in this city. I only judge from the fact that in one school in which the dialogues were well rendered, some of the Board rather censured than lauded the efforts of the young ladies to make the piece a success, as they feared encouragement on their part might have the effect of causing too much time being taken up in rehearsals to the detriment of more useful studies. Now these dialogues, I am given to understand, were rehearsed after school hours, in the teacher's own room, for weeks before the examination took place. I am pleased to hear from good authority that recitations are to be prohibited at the midsummer examination, but an exhibition is also to be held when dialogues are to be the order of the day. It is to be hoped that the Mechanics' Institute will be chosen for the entertainment, and competent judges appointed to award prizes for the best elocution. I sincerely hope that the journalists of this city will give the matter of the "medal" due consideration, and promptly carry out your suggestions.

A TEACHER.

A Man Terribly Mangled With a Hatchet in the Hands of Another.

BOSTON, Dec. 25.

Shortly before 1 o'clock this morning Mr. Milliken, the proprietor of the house bearing that name, heard the cry of "Watch!" and upon going outside to ascertain the cause, found it proceeded from the building No. 9 Province court, where there appeared to be some kind of a scuffle going on inside. He immediately joined in the cry, which brought officers Hanscom and Kelly to the spot, who tried to force an entrance into the premises. They did not have to wait a great while, however, as a young man unlocked the door leading into the entry, which he afterwards locked, and then unfastened the front door. The officers immediately collared him and asked him what the trouble was, but his answers were somewhat incoherent, but nevertheless his general appearance indicated that there had been bloodshed from the fact that his sleeves were rolled up and his hands were besmeared with blood. Obtaining an entrance into the room from which the man came, and procuring a light, a horrible sight met their gaze. There upon the floor, weltering in his own blood from no less than fifteen terrible cuts upon his head, lay the murdered man. Life was extinct and he was beyond all earthly aid when assistance arrived. As soon as possible Dr. Foye was called, and after viewing the remains ordered that the body should remain in the place until this morning, when he will impanel a jury of inquest.

The murderer, who goes by the name of Henger, is a Hungarian by birth, and is about 35 years of age, of small stature, and Dr. Foye thinks that he is deranged, as he has been confined once or twice previously for insanity. He was brought to the second station, where he admitted of having killed his victim, whose name was Antou Huttl, but claims that he did it in self defence. It appears that Henger keeps a locksmith's shop in the building, and Huttl is in his employ. Both men sleep in the building, and it is supposed that they were on friendly terms. At the time the deed was committed both men were apparently upon the point of retiring, as neither of them were wholly disrobed, although there was no light in the room but what came through the window. Henger states that they had some words together, and that Huttl seized a hatchet which was near the bed and threatened his life. He then drew a small seven-barrelled pistol, and, as he says, in order to protect himself, knocked the hatchet from the hands of his autagonist, and afterwards fired the seven shots at Huttl, but one of which entered his body, this being in the right shoulder. Henger must at this time have become perfectly frenzied, as he seized the hatchet, a small one, and literally butchered his opponent to death. There are fifteen distinct cuts upon the head and neck, varying in length from one to three inches. Over the left eye was a very severe cut, and the jaw was completely broken

What motive the murderer had for the committal of the deed, or what the quarrel was about, is not known, as Henger is rather uncommunicative, and in fact his answers to several questions were rather vague and incoherent. Anton Huttl, the murdered man, was a Bohemian by birth, was about 25 years of age and unmarried, and has been employed in this place for some time. The premises were put in charge of the police as soon as the tragedy was known, but by order of Dr. Foye the premises were locked up and the police relieved. The affair occurring so early this morning was not known by the public to any great extent, and consequently there was but little excitement in the locality.

A Family Bound and Guarded While the Thieves Drilled Open a Safe.

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.

About 2.30 on Tuesday morning Mr. J. P. Emmet's cottage near the Neptune House, in New Rochelle township, was entered by four men, who clambered in at the window. Going to Mr. Emmet's room they roughly awakened him, and handcuffing his hands behind him, left one man to guard him with a revolver. The others then similarly bound Miss Emmet, a sister, Charles Emmet, a nephew, two domestics, and a coachman. All were marched into Mr. Emmet's room and guarded with the utmost tenderness. Then the robbers ransacked bureaus, wardrobes, and trunks for the safe key, but they were unsuccessful. The key had been left in New York. Unable to open the safe, which stood in the back parlor, they tried to blow it open. The blast blew outward instead of inward, and the door was unopened. Next they operated with drills, and made a hole large enough to admit a hand. A quantity of jewelry and some money, estimated at $600 in all, were extracted. The robbers smashed the lock so that the safe could not be opened yesterday, and it is not known just what they had taken. They were in the house about three hours, and the agony of the prisoners was terrible. After they had gone Mr. Emmet slipped one of his hands out of its prison, and then with difficulty released the other prisoners, and the alarm was sent to the village about noon. The robbers were tracked to the beach, but there they were lost sight of. No clue has been obtained. It is believed that they belong to a gang of desperadoes and horse thieves who have been the terror of the lower counties of Connecticut for several months.

Mr. Emmet's cottage is about two miles from the village of New Rochelle, and stands alone. There are no neighbors near enough to have heard an outcry if any had been made.

A Holiday for the N. Y. Brokers—Pandemonium in the Stock Exchange—The Fun of the Bulls and Bears.

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.

The active, gamesome members of the Stock Exchange were little inclined to business yesterday morning. For two or three days past they have been clearing contracts in view of the usual Christmas intermission. Country customers sent no orders, and the old game of inveigling each other did not promise a golden harvest. They had been too much hurt by the panic to wager their commissions with old-time recklessness. Hence the hour from ten to eleven was almost barren of sales short and purchases long, turns, margins, and rates for carrying. Their irrepressible spirits tended rapidly to the rites of the Lord of Misrule, when the Governors deemed it wise to meet and put a period to their undignified antics. It was decided to close the Exchange at 1 p. m. and keep it closed until 10 o'clock on Friday morning. The announcement of the half holiday was received with an exuberance of spirits never approached by a similar announcement in a boarding school. In a twinkling innumerable instruments of noise were unhidden from the pockets of the festive brokers. The horns, trumpets, mouth organs, cheap and jangling, were blown, brayed and tooted with the sole purpos of making as loud and discordant noise as possible. They succeeded admirably. For a few minutes the presiding officer gesticulated wildly, bringing down his mallet with force enough to be heard above any ordinary din. It was useless, however. Even the Secretary could not catch the names of those who were nominated for fines. But even noise must have an end, and as the pandemonium of the Exchange gradually lapsed to its termination the voice of the President made itself heard over the tumult, ringing out "fine Smith, Jones, Robinson." Those worthies and those who emulated them began to reflect that times were too hard to pay $10 a minute for the best of fun. By a common impulse they rushed out of the exchange and into New street, just in time to catch a precisely similar crowd vacating the Gold Exchange. Together they made the circuit of the financial block. The noise had the reverberation of four walls and degenerated so in humorous quality that it soon reached an end. Its worst result was a temporary corner in corn juice in the neighboring saloons. The instruments of noise were given to the office boys who kept up, a very feeble imitation of their employers' example until business closed in the street and the money centre became as quiet as Sunday itself.

Waltzing off on a Whirlwind.

[From the Central City (Col.) Register.]

A gentleman was walking down Virginia Canon the other day. There was no perceptible breeze at the time. Suddenly he was surprised by a roaring noise behind him—a noise like that of an express train when crossing a bridge, or passing a rocky wall. Stopping a moment to listen, a whirlwind, apparently not more than a yard in diameter, and travelling no faster than a spirited walk, picked him up, as it were, and waltzed off down the road with him. Its vertical force was sufficient to invert the tails of his coat above his head, notwitstanding the pockets were loaded with specimens of silver ore, and at the same time he was carried along for a hundred feet or more like a feather, with both feet occasionally off the ground, while under him was a noise like that of an empty cart bouncing over a stony street.

The Canadian Scandal.

Canada has another scandal, in which Col. Shaw. American Consul at Toronto, is said to be mixed up. The facts appeared to be that the Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, the Dominion Premier, the Hon. George Brown and Gordon Brown, members of the Cabinet, Col. Shaw, and two or three others have formed themselves into a company to work silver mines on Lake Superior. The mines are controlled by the Ontario Government, which is controlled by Mr. Mackenzie. Canadians think that the Premier should live on his salary, and not go into mining speculations. But then Mr. Mackenzie has a precedent in the recent acceptance by Gen. Grant of a silver mine in Colorado, or somewhere out there.—N. Y. Sun.

The January number of Harper's Magazine contains sixty-nine engravings, or nearly one to every two pages. The opening article is a description of the island of Martinique, dwelling especially upon the curious and romantic phases of its history. At a time when money is so scarce, Mr. Junius Henri Browne's illustrated article on "The Knights of the Red Shield"—the Rothschilds—can not fail to excite peculiar interest. "Washington News" is a chapter of entertaining gossip concerning the old school of Washington correspondents. Mr. Conway concludes his Saunter in Dorsetshire with some very entertaining matter relating to Portland and Dorchester, including a visit to Mr. Barnes, the Dorset dialect poet. One of the most attractive features of this Number is the first instalment of "My Mother and I; A Love Story for Girls," by Miss Mulock, beautifully illustrated. Professor De Mille's serial story, "The Living Link," is continued; and there are also two excellent short stories—"A Little Sensation Drama," by Justin McCarthy, and "The Sleep Walker." The poetry of the number is very noteworthy, the writers being R. H. Stoddard, Nellie Hutchinson and Anna C. Brackett. The most important of the miscellaneous articles in this number is "The New South," by Edwin de Leon. This is the first of a series of papers on the subject—the result of recent and thorough investigations into the agricultural, mechanical, and commercial progress of the South since the War. Geo. M. Towle contributes a very entertaining and timely paper on "Ashantee and the Ashantees."
