THE GREAT NORTH-WEST.

Three hours in the Great Lone Land—A large Audience listen to able addresses on its present past and future.

On Friday evening there was not room to contain the large audience that gathered at the high school to hear the addresses on the subject of our North-West to be delivered by our Commons representative, Mr. Geo. Taylor; Senator Perley of Assinaboia; and Thos. Earl, M. P. for Victoria. As the meeting was strictly non-political in character, aiming only at diffusing a correct knowledge of the capabilities of the Prairie Province, his honor Judge McDonald presided over the proceedings.

Mr. Taylor was the first speaker. After his introductory remarks, which were of a humorous character, he spoke of the emigration of young Canadians to the United States as being a thing of the past. It had been due, he said, to a lack of advertising on the part of the Canadian Government; that while the dead walls of Great Britain and Ireland had been covered with placards setting forth the advantages of the U. S. as a field for emigration, very little had been done to make the resources of Canada better known to the people of the Old Country. Among the steps which he, with others, had taken—and taken successfully—to stop the exodus from Canada and divert a good share of foreign immigration to this country, had been the appointment of Mr. W. A. Webster (a practical man, well known to his hearers) as Dominion Immigration Agent. Mr. Webster had been most active in the discharge of his duties under the roving commission granted to him, and the results of his labors had been most gratifying. Mr. Taylor then gave a succinct account of a trip which he had made to Victoria, B. C. He had been to Winnipeg prior to the construction of the railway, and even at that early date the settlers were enjoying a fair measure of prosperity and were well content, their only fear for the future being the diminution of the supply of fuel. Since that time the C. P. R. had been constructed and the discovery of hard and soft coal had placed the country in such a position that he thought it could not be spoken of too highly. In describing his late trip to B. C., he spoke first of that part of Ontario traversed by the C. P. R. from Ottawa to Port Arthur, including the lately Disputed Territory (of which he thought but little); then of the varied physical features of the country passed before reaching Winnipeg; next of the rich agricultural lands of Manitoba; then of the great ranching territory extending from Calgary to the Rocky Mts.; then of the grand scenery of that natural barrier to human progress westward—a barrier formerly esteemed impassable—and finally of British Columbia. He dwelt at length on the fruit growing capabilities of that Province and spoke in glowing terms of its mines and fisheries, the latter affording him an opportunity of relating several very scaly fish stories. He thought our trade with the East, especially with China, would some day assume giant proportions. Already a considerable interchange of tea and flour was taking place and this trade was sure to increase. While at Victoria he saw three English men-of-war at anchor in the harbor, prepared to defend that part of Canada against all enemies, a fact which should tend to still more firmly establish the bonds uniting this with the mother country. In conclusion, he said that all that was necessary to people our great North-West and secure the permanent prosperity of Canada was for our government to legislate more especially for the benefit of Canada, and as this was now generally recognized as a requisite, he thought the people might rest assured that everything possible would be done to advance the interests of the Dominion.

Mr. Taylor's interesting address was rewarded with a very liberal applause, and was followed by an overture by the village orchestra. In a neat little speech the chairman then introduced Senator Perley, of Assinaboia, a gentleman whom he thought well qualified to give reliable information relative to the subject under consideration.

Mr. Perley said he spoke from personal knowledge and with no other object than to give faithfully an account of his observations and experience in the North-West. He would not advise those who were comfortably housed and provided for here to change their place of residence; his remarks were intended chiefly for young men who contemplated a change. Manitoba, he said, contained a larger percentage of good land than any province in the Dominion. Southern Manitoba contained very fine land and that surrounding Portage-la Prairie was, he believed, the finest in Canada. After describing the prairie generally, the speaker devoted the remainder of his remarks to the North-West and particularly to the territory of Assinaboia, wherein he resides. The C. P. R., which traverses the territory, has a station every sixteen miles and elevators and flouring mills are located at all the principal towns. To the south of the railway the prairie is comparatively flat, and the soil is rich, but the district contains but little fuel; to the north for a hundred miles the soil is excellent and is broken by wooded bluffs, almost every section containing sufficient fuel for years. Many settlers had made the mistake of settling too far from the line of railway. It was better to buy syndicate lands within the 24-mile belt than to locate where there were no roads, no schools, no churches and no neighbors. A more compact settlement of the country was necessary for its progress and prosperity and he would favor legislation tending to promote this.

In speaking of the government of the country, he reviewed its former condition and that of its native population before the buffalo were exterminated. To-day only the buffalo bone industry remained as evidence of the countless numbers of these animals that roamed the prairies prior to the advent of the white man. The Indians were now confinded on reservations and were being taught the industrial arts by intelligent instructors. As evidence of the success which was attending the efforts of these instructors, he said that he had not known an Indian to be arrested for stealing in eight years. They are supplied with bacon, flour, etc., by the Government, and many of them have made most satisfactory progress as farmers. Bonussed gristing mills were obliged to differentiate in favor of the Indians. He spoke in high terms of the character, discipline and efficiency of the police force of the province, which were for the maintenance of law and order among the settlers as well as for keeping the Indians within bounds. The force was largely composed of young Englishmen who, failing in their attempts at farming, had entered the force as a dernier resore. Almost every village contained a couple of these guardians of the peace, so that life and property was as safe in the territories as in any place in the Dominion. The people were highly moral, and school houses and churches dotted the land. The educational law of the North-West was most liberal. The Government contribute for a 1st class teacher, 75 per cent of his salary; 2nd class, 70 per cent and for a 3rd class, 60 per cent. No distinction is made between male and female teachers. An average attendance of eight entitles a school to the Government grant. There are only two terms; seven months in all.

As to soil, he said the best was found in Red River Valley, where there was an alluvial deposit, very deep and rich, but was too low for mixed farming. In the territories it was from 1½ to 2 feet deep. At Regina the arable soil reached a deptl. of 6 feet, and it was unusually good at Indian Head. Good cultivation paid there as elsewhere, as during a very dry season an exceptionally good farmer raised 20 bus. of wheat to the acre when crops generally were a total failure. There was no such thing as failure known to good tillers.

A settler could obtain free a homestead of 160 acres, the only settlement duties required being a 6 mo. residence each year for three years and the bringing under cultivation of 15 acres.

Early settlers, he said, thought only of raising wheat, which was a great mistake, as it does not do for a farmer to have his eggs all in one basket. He asserted that the country was adapted for mixed farming and in pursuing this method failure was almost impossible. He spoke at length in support of this assertion and was enthusiastic in extolling the marvellous richness of the native grasses.

As to frosts, he said that he had never known a spring frost to do any damage and that to make a good crop a certainty plowing should be done in the fall and the seed put in the ground as early as possible in the spring. Frosts would disappear, he thought, when a larger area of soil was brought under cultivation as it would thus be rendered more porous and in a condition to absorb a greater amount of heat.

Mr. Perley has had an extensive experience in stockraising and in fattening cattle for market, and we regret that we have not space to give in full his remarks along this line. We must be content with saying—which all present will endorse—that his speech was a fair, impartial description of the North-West, as it was and as it is, and contained much information of a practical nature such as would be of great value to any one contemplating the establishing of a home in that Province.

A vote of thanks to the visitors was moved by Mr. Parish, seconded by Rev. Mr. Wright, and unanimously carried. The meeting dispersed after the singing of the national anthem.

THE BANQUET.

Immediately upon the close of the public meeting about fifty citizens assembled at the Gamble House, in the spacious dining room of which a sumptuous repast was provided in the superior style for which this hotel is noted. The table presented a most attractive appearance and under the able superintendence of Prof. George the guests were well cared for by the waiters. The bill-of-fare was printed on white satin and copies were in demand as souvenirs of the evening. Mr. A. E. Donovan was chosen to preside and the choice proved a very happy one. At his right and left sat his honor Judge McDonald, Senator Perley, Geo. Taylor, M. P., W. A. Webster and Rev. Messrs. Wright and Betts. The supper having been most satisfactorily disposed of, the chairman introduced the toast list (given below) which called forth some excellent speeches. Mr. Taylor and Senator Perley delivered short pointed addresses on the subject with which their names were connected, but, unquestionably, the speech of the evening was that delivered by his honor Judge McDonald. It was an earnest, eloquent tribute to the importance of his subject and warmly eulogised the active interest in this matter ever displayed by the people of this village. Mr. Parish, as representative of the village made a neat speech in which he thanked the visitors for the many encomiums bestowed upon the village as an educational centre and expressed the hope that in the future, even more than in the past, Athens would deserve the praise so liberally given. Following is the toast list:—

GREENBUSH

WEDNESDAY, April 9.—Sugar makers this season have not been over taxed to keep up to the supply of sap, although it is predicted by those who ought to know that the quantity will be equal to former seasons.

Mr. T. Kerr had the misfortune to lose his sugar house, with a quantity of syrup, wood, 2 milk cans, sap pans, &c. The fire is supposed to have caught in the building from a defective chimney. Loss about one hundred dollars

Mr. Milburn Wing, of Jellyby, has been engaged to manufacture cheese for Mr. Smith the present season.

On last Friday one of W. W. Miller's cows gave birth to a two headed calf. Both cow and calf died. Mr. Miller has engaged the services of a taxidermist to prepare the body of the calf for exhibition purposes. He purposes exhibiting it in opposition to the great Behemoth recently found in the township of Amaranth.

Wat Booth has returned again after his sudden departure for Uncle Sam's domains.

On Tuesday evening a very happy event transpired at the residence of Mr. George Dixon, by which their daughter Jennie was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Mr. Ed. Stowell, of Addison. The gifts are said to have been very numerous and costly. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Sanderson, now of Kingston, but formerly of this circuit. We extend our best wishes to the happy couple.

The big woman of Maiden Avenue had a very windy and interesting set-to a few days ago with the grass widow and her maiden daughter concerning the quantity of soft soap which a certain cask had contained at a certain time. The big woman's remarks took in the whole village. It is stated by competent judges that she secured second place after a desperate struggle.

NEWBORO.

MONDAY, April 14.—A very entertaining concert was given in Victoria Hall on Tuesday the 8th inst. under the management of the Guild of St. Mary's Church. Although the evening was dark and muddy with indications of rain, the hall was well filled. Dr. Preston, M. P. P., occupied the chair. The programme, although a lengthy one, was in no wise monotonous. Considerable aid was procured from neighboring villages which added materially in making the event a success. During intermission refreshments were served, after which the programme was concluded. About $35 were taken at the door.

The old McDonald store, which has been unoccupied for a number of years, is undergoing extensive repairs. Miss Cassie Macdonald purposes opening a millinery and dressmaking establishment in the building that will be second to none in the county. The interior will be fitted up in first-class style. The stock will be complete in every branch of the trade. Only first-class workmen need apply.

Spring has come, and sugar-cured at that. The cackle of the frog and the phoebe were distinctly heard on our street Saturday night. Also, glad to see Ben taking the place that spring and opportunity offer. There is no use talking; a young man's mind naturally turns to thoughts of love about this season.

The party in Victoria Hall was a grand success, every one of us enjoying ourselves to the utmost. The fastidious dame from Elgin was conspicuous this time by her absence, thus placing the boys at their ease, especially those who were injudicious enough to wear colored shirts, who were not on this occasion compelled to wear blanched faces under that cultured, withering gaze. What became of the cake? Was it a breach of contract? or will proceedings be taken for breach of promise? Children, obey your parents and thus evade parental retribution, which usually takes place at a very unseasonable time.

An attempt is being made in the Senate at Washington to cut off all trade with the United States being done by Canadian railways within the bounds of the United States.
