MILLIONS OF PEOPLE IN AGONY

Physicians Cornered!

I SUPPOSE there is not in the whole of a physician's experience, anything in human suffering which calls forth his sympathy, and pity, to such an extent, as to witness the excruciating pains of a poor mortal, suffering from that fearful disease.

RHEUMATISM!

Heretofore there has been a considerable diversity of opinion among medical men, as to the true character of this disease. Some locating it in the fibrous or muscular tissues of the system, and others viewing it as an acute nervous disease: but it is now generally admitted to be a disease arising from a poison circulating in the blood, and further it is admitted that Rheumatism can never be thoroughly cured without exterminating such poisonous matters from the blood, by a constitutional internal remedy. We feel confident that none will feel better satisfied and rejoice more, than the conscientious physician, who has found out that a cure for this stubborn disease has been discovered. The following testimony from a gentleman of standing, and high respectability, and well known to the Canadian public, cannot fail to satisfy all that the

is a wonderful medical discovery.

MR. ISAACSON'S ENDORSATION.

MONTREAL, 21st March, 1874.

Messrs. Devins & Bolton,

Dear Sirs,—I, with pleasure, concede to the agent's wish that I give my endorsation to the immediate relief I experienced from a few doses of the Diamond Rheumatic Cure. Having been a sufferer from the effects of Rheumatism, I am now, after taking two bottles of this medicine, entirely free from pain. You are at liberty to use this letter, if you deem it advisable to do so.

I am, sirs, yours respectfully,

JOHN HELDER ISAACSON, N. P.

FURTHER PROOF.

I AM ANOTHER MAN!

ST. JOHN, N. B., Sept. 29, 1874.

A. CHIPMAN SMITH,

Dear Sir,—I have suffered for fifteen months with Chronic Rheumatism, and could not find any relief, after trying every medicine that I saw advertised to cure it, until I was told about the Diamond Rheumatic Cure. I have used three bottles of this valuable remedy, and now can say that I am another man to what I was. I would advise anybody suffering with this terrible disease to to try it, and see if it does not do the same for them that it did for me.

Yours, JAMES L. EAGLES, Indiantown.

BARNES' HOTEL,

ST. JOHN, N. B., Sept. 29, 1873.

A. CHIPMAN SMITH,

Dear Sir,—I have great pleasure in stating that I put every confidence in your Diamond Rheumatic Cure. I have suffered for the past two years with Rheumatic Pains, during which time I have had the advice of some of the most prominent medical men in the Province, but experienced no relief, until I tried the Diamond Rheumatic Cure. I have now taken three bottles, and I feel greatly improved, and now am confident of a permanent cure.

Yours truly, JAMES O'BRIEN.

There is no medicine which so promptly relieves the depressed vital action, restores the general and local circulation, allays the pain, dissipates the congestion, prevents inflammation, and restores the healthy action as the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE!!

This medicine is for sale at all the druggists throughout Canada. If it happens that your druggist has not got it in stock ask him to send for it to

AFTERWARD.

"But afterwards it yieldeth the peaceable fruit unto them are exercised thereby."

Where sorrow lies buried
The greenest herbage springs;
There chant the birds unwearied,
There come no worldly things.
The deepest wells of pleasure
Are lying close behind;
Where so sweet is leisure,
Or sky so high and wide.

I raised no mound above her,
No stone her name to tell:
In life I did not love her,
But death has changed he well.
Her sweetness cometh after,
Her work is peaceful things;
The very air grows softer,
The silence broods and sings.

All blooms, as nature willeth,
Grow o'er her white and red;
Some mystic fragrance filleth
The growth by sorrow wed.
And when we pause where flowers
Of sweetest odours wave,
The friend of tenderest hours
Knows not it is a grave.

CARL SPENCER.

The Supreme Court Bill.

From Hansard, March 25.

Mr. Palmer said that as before the House went into Committee upon the Bill he desired to make some observations as to the extent of the power of the Dominion Parliament to create the court contemplated, principally in answer to the arguments addressed to the House by the hon. member for West Toronto and the hon. member for Bothwell, and also to point out one or two objectionable features in the Bill in addition to those he had pointed out before the second reading. Although it was so late, he asked the House to indulge him while he did so. First, then, he agreed with what he understood was the view of the Minister of Justice as to the extent of the power of this Parliament to create the court, and dissented from the views expressed by the hon. member for Bothwell and Toronto West. His view was that the 101st section of the British North America Act authorized the Parliament of Canada to create a court having appellate jurisdiction over all the courts in each of the Provinces of Canada, with full power to hear and determine any and all causes and suits that may have been adjudged in the local courts; and also to regulate the mode of suit appeal, and further to create a court having original jurisdiction to administer the laws of Canada, that is the laws in force in the several Provinces of Canada on the subjects assigned exclusively to the Parliament of Canada by the 91st Section of the British North America Act which he considered the true meaning of the words "the Laws of Canada" as used in the 101st Section, and this Legislature had no power to create any courts having any further original jurisdicton, all such powers having been given exclusively to the Local Legislatures, by the 14th sub Section of the 92nd Section of the British North America Act. Of course, this Parliament in addition would, under other provisions of Union Act, have the power either to create a court to adjudicate upon all matters relating to the election and return of members of the House of Commons or to give such powers to any court they please, which is outside the matter in the controversy as raised by the hon. members alluded to. He (Mr. Palmer) in basing his argument on the point stated, desired to say at the outset that the mode of argument adopted by the hon. member for Bothwell, drawn from the eternal fitness of things, or what he called the federal principle, might be very well applied to a question of policy, but was entirely out of place in discussing a mere question of law and that question the proper construction of an Act of Parliament that this House could not alter, and he thought members were too apt to lose sight of the fact that they were not to decide what powers they should have, but simply what powers the British North American Act had given them in this regard. He (Mr. Palmer) contended that this must be decided simply by construing the Act itself, and this must be done by the ordinary rules of law applicable to the subject: Then what were those rules? The first and great leading rule was to ascertain all the facts that surrounded the passing of the Act, and look at the whole Act and from this ascertain what was the law and status of the parties affected by the Act before it was passed; then the objects of the Act, and the evils it was intended to remedy; and then construe it so as to remedy such evils, as far as the words would permit. Now, the facts that appear to affect this part of the Act are shortly these. That it was made as appears by the preamble to carry out an agreement made by the separate Provinces of Canada, who thus (quo ad this question) possessed independent jurisdictions, having different laws, courts, and jurisprudence. This being so, if the 101st section is ambiguous the best key to it would be the provisions on this same subject in the agreement which the Act was made to carry out. Those provisions, hon. members would find, contained in the 14th subsection of the 29th and 31st sections, and the 17th sub-section of the 43d section of the Quebec scheme so-called, which was the agreement referred to in the said Act. Before referring particularly to the words of these references, hon. members would do well to remember that an evil existed in Canada, particularly in the smaller Provinces, that there was no Court of Appeal in those Provinces, except to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, which was far too distant and expensive, and this was intended to remedy that evil. Then referring to the words themselves of the 14th sub-section, "The establishment of a General Court of Appeal for the Federated Provinces" —and the 32nd section—"Establish additional courts, &c., in order to the due execution of the laws of Parliament." These two sections which are so distinct in the agreement, are combined in the 101st section of the Act, and the "Laws of Parliament" in the agreement are changed in the Act to "the Laws of Canada." But in each it is contended they mean the same thing—that is, the laws of Canada, or the laws on the subjects that are within the powers of the Parliament of Canada, as distinguished from those laws that are not within the powers of that Parliament, but are only within the powers of the Local Legislatures, and may be quite different in each Province. We must notice the great difference in the words when applied to the Appeal Courts and the other courts provided for both in the agreement and the Act. The Appeal Court is to be a General Appeal Court for Canada in the Act. In the agreement it is a General Court of Appeal for the Federated Provinces clearly meaning the same thing, while the court of original jurisdiction is confined in the Act to the better administration of the Laws of Canada, and in the agreement to the due execution of the Law of Parliament, meaning in both the same. Now if it was intended that the jurisdiction of both those courts should be the same, that is, should be confined to the better administration of the laws on the subjects given to the general Parliament, how could the different words be accounted for? If such was the object it appeared to be clear that such powers would have been created by the same words and confined to the better administration of the Law of Canada, and consequently a wider meaning must be given, and because, while by the agreements the General Court of Appeal was to be established at all events, the Courts of Original Jurisdiction were only to be additional courts and established from time to time as required. Now this clearly contemplated the establishment of a Court of Appeal before any Court of Original Jurisdiction, and, in that state of things, the only court from which they could have appealed must be the local Provincial Courts, as those were all the courts which were in existence, and there certainly could be found no words of limitation of the powers of such appeal, either in the Act or the agreement. This Appeal Court was for Canada—that is for all Canada—and not confined as were the courts of original jurisdiction, to the administration of the laws of Canada. This being the power of this Parliament, in addition to the policy, or expediency of creating any original jurisdiction in this court, without any necessity for it, he (Mr Palmer) wished to point out to the Minister of Justice that it was impossible for him to create all the original jurisdiction contained in the Bill as it stood. The hon. gentleman would see that his (Mr. Palmer's) view of the power of this Parliament in this regard was the widest and largest possible under the words of the Act, but in the matter of original jurisdiction it was limited strictly to the administration of the laws, or subjects in the power of the General Parliament. Now, it could not be denied that the original jurisdiction attempted to be given by the 55th and 58th sections, was to decide upon Acts of the Local Parliaments, and that the 58th section professed to take away from the Provincial courts the power to decide upon such local Acts. Such legislation he (Mr. Palmer) considered not only bad policy, as such questions had better come by way of appeal, but it was an unconstitutional and illegal attempt to wrest from the local authorities what was vested in them by the Constitution. He (Mr. Palmer) also objected to the 80th and 81st sections of the Act. These sections were intended to create a separate bar, who alone could practice in this court. This he considered a great injustice to the barristers and attorneys of each Province, who should have a right to practice in this court by virtue of their office in the courts below. It would be a curious state of things if a barrister of New Brunswick could be excluded from arguing the case of his client in this court, while at the same time he would have a right to conduct it in the final court of appeal—the Privy Council. It would be a useless hardship, and would be felt seriously by the small and distant Provinces. He hoped it would be struck out, and all attorneys and barristers of the courts appealed from, would be allowed to practice in this court without any other ceremony or form whatever. He did not desire to go over the various objections to the Bill, which he had pointed out at the second reading, but he must again urge upon the Minister, that he should strike out all the sections of the Bill from the 16th to the 35th, and in lieu thereof substitute one section simply, giving an appeal on all the cases allowed, by a notice short stating the ground of appeal, which when perfected by the security, etc., would have the effect of taking the whole proceedings into the Court of Appeal, no matter what the form or nature of the pleadings below were, and then direct the Appeal Court to give and enforce the judgment that the court below ought to have given—It would much better answer all the purposes required, and render the court more efficient and useful.
