PRINCE HAS NEW POST

STRASSBURG STATUE

MOURNING TORN DOWN AND ALLIES FLAGS HOISTED IN PLACE

Paris, France—The entry of French troops into Alsace-Lorraine marked the close of those 44 years during which France has mourned the loss of her two provinces. It is reported that the Alsatians received the French troops with open arms, and that in their delight they tore down the German frontier marks which separated their country from France.

In Paris, the news of the occupation caused profound emotion, but the French have entered into this war with a seriousness and dignity which does not allow of any premature manifestations. The only sign given of the hope and confidence which the news inspired was the removal of the signs of mourning from the flags which surround the statue of Strassburg in the Place de la Concorde.

The ceremony, which was conducted by M. Sansboeuf, president of the League of Patriots, was impressive in its simplicity and restraint. A procession of Alsatians and Lorrainers headed by three Alsaciennes in the costume and headdress of their country, marched to the Strassburg statue in the Place de la Concorde The crowd massed in front of the statue numbered from 1500 to 2000 persons. Other spectators stood on the terrasse overlooking the Tuilleries gardens. No large attendance was encouraged.

Quietly revent, the people watched the hoisting of the tricolor and the removal of the mourning from the flags, they also noted the escutcheon with Deroulede's famous "Qui vive? France quand meme." At the close of M. Sansboeuf's address cheers were raised for France, for Belgium, for England and for Paul Deroulede, who had kept France hoping during the long years that followed 1870. To the measured singing of the "Marseillaise" and the "Marche Lorraine" the crowd dispersed. A few days after this ceremony took place the Belgian flag was added to those of France, which decorate the base of the statue.

TURKS' REAL RULER

ENVER BEY WHO HAS GERMAN SYMPATHIES ACTUALLY HOLDS THE REINS

London—A representative of a newspaper had a conversation recently with a Rumanian politician more than usually well informed as to near eastern politics. In discussing the present position in Turkey, this gentleman gave it as his opinion that the reins of power in that country had been practically seized by Enver Pasha.

"Before the war in Tripoli," he said, "in which he gained such apparent distinction, Enver Pasha was for several years an officer in a German regiment. He was always a man of action and a man who realized the full value of a pose. I do not want to be hyper-critical," the informant said, "but those who are at all acquainted with the real situation realize how very much the part played by Enver Pasha in the Tripolitan campaign was exaggerated.

It is quite well known in military circles both in Turkey and outside of it, that the real organizing power in Tripoli was Fethy Bey, the present Turkish minister at Sofia. The part played by Enver Pasha in the late Balkan wars, especially when he seized the reins of government in January of 1913, when there seemed some likelihood of a settlement being arrived at, is well known.

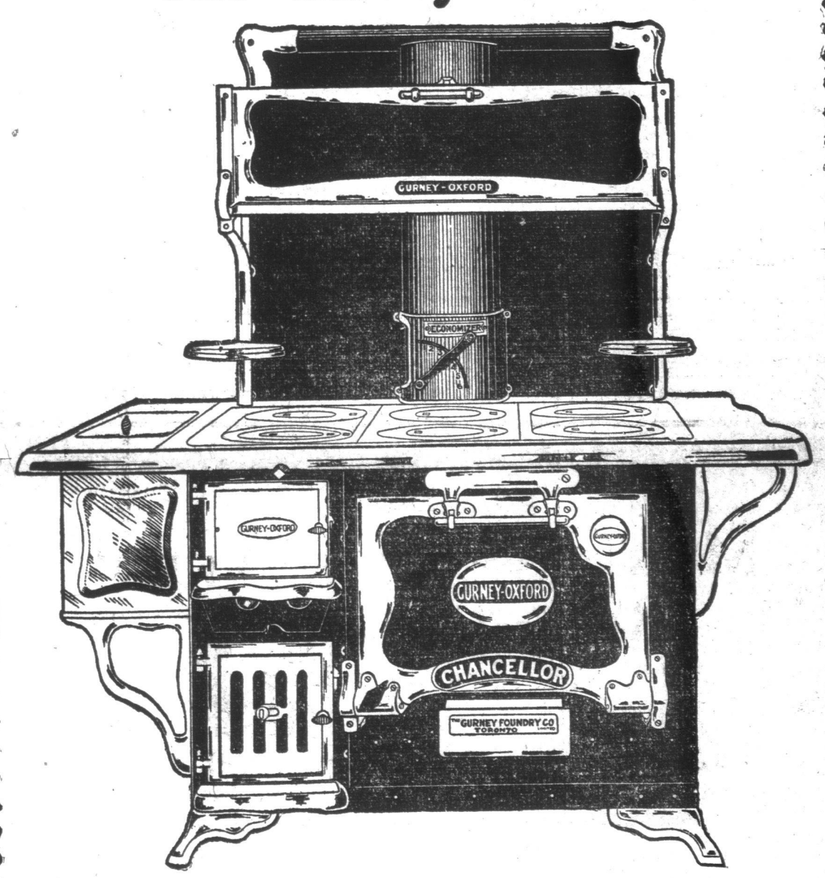
"Since then, and especially since the recovery of Adrianople, his power and influence has steadily increased, until today he, as I have said, is really the controlling influence in Turkey. His sympathies of course, are entirely German, and without any desire to speak from a partizan point of view, it must be admitted that Germany has done everything in her power to support him.

"The present struggle in Turkey lies between the military party, and that party which recognizes that anything in the nature of an adventure would be disastrous to the empire, and seeks at all costs to maintain the peace. Which power will ultimately prevail, the future alone, but perhaps the near future, will show. My own personal opinion is that if the German forces succeed in investing Paris, nothing will restrain Turkey from throwing in her lot with the triple alliance.

"You see," the informant went on, "the old idea is still very strong in Turkey, that once the capital has fallen, the country may be looked upon as being conquered, and whilst we know that if Paris is relinquished as a seat of government, it may only be a strategic move of the highest value, you could never get a Turk to understand that."

GURNEY-OXFORD

The Gurney-Oxford



Why it is the Best Range Procurable

It stands to reason that the foundry of national reputation for its equipment of the most notable hotel, restaurant, and institutional kitchens throughout the Dominion, also makes the best range on the market for the home kitchen.

This Gurney-Oxford range is the result of over seventy years' experience and experimental study of improvements to benefit the woman who toils in the kitchen.

Even Bakings

By means of a Divided Flue Strip, the heat is divided evenly over the top and down the back and sides of the oven. A pan of biscuits in the front and back of the oven will brown with perfect evenness without having to change their places many times during the baking. The two back lids of the range also receive an equal cooking heat that will boil two kettles at the same time.

Perfect Control

The entire range is controlled practically by one handle, called the Economizer. It turns around a series of six notches to determine the exact degree of heat required. Such control saves time, fuel and labor.

Saving of Fuel

Then again the special Reversible Grate saves coal bills by burning the coal to a fine white ash. No unburnt coal can lodge in the rounded corners of the firebox.

It's Sanitary Too

Its smooth, clean top is polished and requires no black lead.

The Gurney-Oxford is "different" from all other ranges—its exclusive devices make an irresistible appeal to every woman.
