Gladstone on the Great Public Questions.

At the Lord Mayor's banquet to the Ministers at Mansion House, London, last week, Gladstone on rising to respond to the toast to Her Majesty's Ministers, was greeted with prolonged cheering.

After expressing thanks, he proceeded to give a sketch of the recent public events. He said the Government had gone to Egypt in an unselfish spirit, and desired simply to accelerate reform there. It was felt that too much haste might spoil work. When the views of the Government in this respect were accomplished, the British troops would disappear from that country. He said nothing would be more grateful to every one of the Ministers than an early and successful accomplishment of a grand movement towards reform in Egypt.

In regard to the Tamatave affair, Gladstone said the Government had received fuller advices from Madagascar, confirming the hope that no difficulty existed which could not be solved by generous and honorable disposition which should always exist, especially between France and England. He now felt even sanguinely confident that nothing would arise which would disturb this long accord.

Gladstone, continuing, said he was thankful to be able to record a great change in the conduct of affairs in Ireland. The authority of law, he said, had been reasserted there, and peace and security prevailed. Dark dens of assassination had been effectually suppressed and the confidence which had united their unhappy frequenters and enabled them to execute their deadly purpose, had been, in a large degree, destroyed. Deep gratitude was due to the Almighty and secondarily, to Earl Spencer, Lord Lieutenant, and Trevelyan, Chief Secretary. He said he believed the end of the session would show that a affair amount of work had been achieved. The Government hoped much in the future from its new system of committees.

Astonishing Disclosures.

The Globe-Democrat of 8th inst. publishes an interview between one of its reporters and one of Hanlan's chief backers, which took place at Chautauqua lake on the day following the sawing of Courtney's boat, in 1878. The reporter has held back this information for good reasons, and, as the facts published are startling, an investigation may be looked for. In this interview, Hanlan's backer is credited with saying that in 1878 Hanlan and Courtney came to a conclusion by which they should row three races that year, Hanlan to win in the first, Courtney the second, they to settle, after the first two were rowed, as to who should win the third. The first race took place at Lachine, Oct. 3, 1878, and was for the citizens' prize of $6,000. As per previous agreement, Hanlan won this race, but Courtney, according to the statements of Hanlan's backer, received $2,500 of the capital prize. The second race was to have been rowed Oct. 16, 1878, and was for the Hop Bitters prize of $6,000. Courtney, it is alleged, told all his friends that he was sure of winning. They told others, and a large amount of money was raised and placed upon him. When Hanlan arrived at the lake he is said to have been much alarmed at finding so much money upon the race, and, fearing that if he lost he would swamp his friends and that exposure would follow, backed out of his previous agreement, and told Courtney that he would not give him the race. Courtney, it is alleged knew that he could not win, and, seeing that if he rowed he would ruin every friend he had left in the world, he took the only way left out of the difficulty and sawed both of his boats in two. The interview is crammed full of facts, and the statements are such that it will be a hard matter to refute them. Perhaps they would not be published now but for the recent angry meeting between Courtney and Hanlan.

Have no fear of any of these diseases if you use Hop Bitters, as they will prevent and cure the worst cases, even when you have been made worse by some great puffed up pretended cure.

Noah's Ark Discovered.

A Constantinople contemporary announces the discovery of Noah's Ark. It appears that some Turkish Commissioners appointed to investigate the question of avalanches on Mount Ararat suddenly came upon a gigantic structure of very dark wood protruding from a glazier. They made inquiries of the inhabitants (Question 1,725 in their report.) These had been seen for 6 years, but had been afraid to approach it, because a spirit of fierce aspect had been seen looking out of the upper window. Turkish Commissioners, however, are bold men, not deterred by such trifles, and they determined to reach it. Situated as it was among the fastnesses of one of the glens of Mount Ararat, it was a work of enormous difficulty, and it was only after incredible hardships that they succeeded. The ark, one will be glad to hear, was in a good state of preservation, although the angles—observe, not the bow or stern—had been a good deal broken in its descent. They recognized it at once. There was an Englishman among them who had presumably read his Bible, and he saw it was made of the ancient gopher wood of Scripture, which, as everyone knows, only grows on the plains of the Euphrates. Effecting an entrance into the structure, which was painted brown, they found that the Admiralty requirements for the conveyance of horses had been carried out, and the interior was divided into partitions fifteen feet high. Into three of these only could they get, the others being full of ice, and how far the ark extended into the glacier they could not tell. If, however, on being uncovered it turns out to be 300 cubits long it will go hard with disbelievers in the book of Genesis. "Needless to say," says the Pall Mall Gazette, "an American was soon on the spot, and negotiations have been entered into with the local Pacha for its speedy tranfer to the United States."

We publish the above story for what it is worth, although, as the Americans have determined to improve their Navy the purchase and promise of transmission to the United States has a look of real business about it.

The city of Lockport, New York, has been the scene of a violent temperance agitation. The authorities decided last May to grant no licenses for the sale of liquor. The result, says the New York Times, has signally illustrated the folly of the majority of the board in endeavoring to establish local prohibition. Whiskey, ale, and beer have been sold in the usual places without interruption. The sale is just as open, notorious, and general as it ever was under the license system. But three prosecutions are known to have occured on account of the sale of liquor, and nobody has been convicted. The police exercise no espionage whatever over the saloons, and the ultra prohibition men, who really coerced the majority of the Board of Excise to refuse all licenses, rest on their dignity and call on the police to enforce the law, while the city treasury is short of the $3,000 usually obtained from licenses.
