No Mechanical Training in Public Schools.

Some of our contemporaries are seriously discussing a cock-and-bull story sent out from Toronto to the effect that Hon. Geo. W. Ross, Minister of Education, had in contemplation and was actively preparing for the introduction of mechanical training into the public schools. On the assumption that the statement was correct, learned homilies have been penned on the foolishness of adding to the studies of boys in public schools. It turns out, however, that the report of innovations has no foundation. The Minister was seen by a reporter of the Toronto News, and this is his reply:

"There will be no revolution in our present methods. I do not think we are preparing to teach the mechanical trades in our schools. I am favorable to teaching cooking and plain sewing, as is done in some of the big cities in England, and I think that by thus educating the wives and daughters of mechanics we can perhaps benefit the mechanics more than by teaching blacksmithing and carpentering in the schools. The addition of cooking and sewing classes is therefore the only improvement likely to be made."

The Lindsay Boy Murderer Reprieved—Has No Moral Understanding.

Special to The Advertiser.

Ottawa, Sept. 22.—On the recommendation of the Minister of Justice, John Kearney, who was convicted of killing Farmer Agnew near Lindsay recently, was granted a reprieve, and his sentence has been changed to one of imprisonment for life.

The culprit is a mere boy, only 16 years of age, and the ground on which he escapes the payment of the death penalty lies in the fact that he has simply no moral understanding. The execution was to have taken place on Oct. 1.

DYNAMITERS THREATEN.

London, Sept. 22.—A Brussels dispatch to the Chronicle says that the authorities of Rotterdam have received an anonymous letter threatening to explode all of the public buildings there unless the Irish prisoners, Kearney and Haines, are liberated.

A BRITISH VICTORY.

London, Sept. 22.—A dispatch to the Times from Fort Salisbury, Matabeleland, dated Saturday, says that Major Jenner has completely beaten Umtigeza's tribe, numbering 5,000 men, at Fort Charter, and has captured all his strongholds. Umtigeza has surrendered.

RUSSIA READY FOR WAR.

London, Sept. 22.—A dispatch from Sebastopol says that the Russian Black Sea fleet has been put on a war footing, and that three battalions of infantry have embarked. Part of the fleet is cruising off Otchakoff, at the mouth of the Dnieper River, 40 miles from Odessa, under orders that if its commander receives a telegram from M. Nelidoff, the Russian ambassador to Turkey, it must join the remainder of the fleet, leaving Sebastopol and go direct to the Bosphorus. The dispatch adds that all the troops in South Russia are ready for active service.

AGITATION IN SPAIN.

London, Sept. 22.—The Carlist agitation in Spain continues making headway slowly, and their organization is being perfected at every point. The Heraldo today publishes another interview with Don Carlos, the pretender to the throne of Spain, in which he is quoted as blaming the feebleness of Spain's dealing with the United States, and declares that the situation is the same as that which preceded the revolution of 1868. In conclusion, Don Carlos is said to have re- [illegible] the Carlists were completely organized, disciplined and armed, and that they only await his word to rise against the Gov.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

Venice, Sept. 21.—Princess Olga, of Montenegro, niece of Nicholas I., the reigning prince of Montenegro, is dead. She was born at Cettigne, on March 19, 1859, and was not married.

London, Sept. 21.—The Right Hon. George Denman, formerly a judge of the High Court of Justice, who retired from the bench in October, 1892, is dead. He was born in 1819, and after his retirement from the bench became a Privy Councilor and a member of the judicial committee of the Privy Council. He was educated at Cambridge, and in 1871 published a translation of "Gray's Elegy" into Greek elegiac verse, and in 1873 he published the first book of Pope's Homer's "Iliad," translated into Latin elegiacs.

SENSATIONAL DISCLOSURE.

London, Sept. 22.—At a meeting last night in Shoreditch to protest against the massacre of Christians by Turks, a most important announcement was made, which it is believed puts an end to all conjecture regarding the action that might be taken by the British Government in the direction of putting an end to the massacres by force or deposing the Sultan. The statement was made by John Lowles, M.P. for the Haggerston division of Shoreditch. He said that if England had a free hand very few days would elapse before there would be a change in Turkey. He then added that he was authorized by the Foreign Office to say that Great Britain was confronted by an agreement between the three powers that if she attacked Turkey on any excuse or pretext she would have to face that combination. If she fired a single shot or took action alone it would mean that at that moment there would be a European war.

TYNAN'S APPEAL.

London, Sept. 22.—A Paris dispatch says: The fact that Patrick J. Tynan, the alleged dynamite conspirator, had appealed to Mr. Eustis, the American ambassador to France, and to President Cleveland demanding protection as an American citizen, was announced on Tuesday last, but at that time the contents of the letter were not known. It is now learned that in his letter to Mr. Eustis, Tynan informs him of the fact of his arrival in the United States in March, 1883, and his naturalization in 1888. He gives his place of residence in New York, and enumerates the members of his family, and refers to Judge Fitzgerald, Recorder Goff, and Judge Roger A. Prior as his friends. He adds that he left New York with the object of making a European tour, but learning that he was being shadowed by English detectives, he traveled under an assumed name. It was his intention to return to New York on Sept. 20. He appeals to Mr. Eustis to use his influence to prevent his surrender to the British authorities, for, he says, to hand him over to the British Government would certainly mean death. He recalls the help given by Irishmen to France at Fontenoy. The letter is dated Sept. 15, but Mr. Eustis did not receive it until yesterday. He immediately notified the French Government of its receipt, and informed them that Tynan was a citizen of the United States.

RENEWED HORRORS.

London, Sept. 22.—A dispatch from Constantinople says: Details received here regarding the massacre at Egin, in the vilayet of Kharput, show that it occurred on the 15th and 16th of the present month. The Kurds attacked the Armenian quarter, killed a large number of its inhabitants and pillaged and burned their houses. Many Armenians escaped to the mountains. According to the accounts of the Turkish Government, 600 Armenians were killed at Egin, and these advices also state that the outrage was provoked by the Armenians firing into the Turkish quarter. No authentic details of the massacre have yet been received. The Armenians of Egin escaped the massacres of 1895 by purchasing their security with money and produce. It is feared that the massacre is the beginning of a fresh series of massacres in Armenia, which was anticipated after the massacres which have just ended here.

A FIENDISH FATHER.

London, Sept. 22.—A Berlin dispatch says: One of the most extraordinary results of drunken frenzy ever known in the country has just occurred in East Prussia. A farmer named Schlott, of Gemirre, while looking over his domain one morning last week, saw a lot of cattle coming through a broken gate into his corn field. He hunted up his young son, who was in charge of that particular field, and upbraided him for not better attending to his duties. The boy's answers enraged the man, and he swore that he would have his son's life. He called together half a dozen of his companions, who, like himself, had been drinking heavily, and formed a frenzied sort of court-martial. The culprit was summarily tried and convicted, and Schott himself sentenced his son to be beheaded. Preparations for the prompt execution of the lad were at once begun. They bound him hand and foot, and placed his head upon the stump of a tree. One of the wretches secured an axe, and the "sentence of the court" was actually about to be carried out, when the terrified boy's mother and elder brothers, attracted by his screams, rushed to his rescue. They wrested the axe from the "executioner's" hands, and then ensued a fierce struggle between the rescuing party and the drunken creatures who wished to put the boy to death. It resulted in a victory for the mother and her sons. The boy, during the encounter, had grown suddenly silent, and it was found later that fear had not only made him dumb, but deaf as well, and physicians say it is doubtful if he will ever recover the use of his faculties again.

Fancies of a Rich Man.

A Glass House Built at the Bottom of a Lake.

He Will People His Forest With All Kinds of Wild Beasts.

London, Sept. 22.—The latest luxury in which millionaires may indulge is described by Truth this week. An Englishman, who has a lake upon his estate, recently caused it to be temporarily drained, and, in the deepest part, had a house built, which contains three rooms—a smoking room, a dining room, and a servants' waiting room. The framework of the house is iron, the floor stone, resting upon a foundation of concrete. The sides and roof are composed of thick plate glass. There is a passage under water from the boat house to the glass house, and air is obtained through large clumps of artificial water lilies, which rest upon the surface of the lake.

It is indescribably pleasant to sit in one of the rooms upon a warm day. The air is cool. There is no sound to be heard, and it is especially interesting to watch the fish swimming about, attracted by the glare of the electric lights. The house and passage cost comparatively little to build.

The millionaire to whom this belongs contemplates a more ambitious scheme. He has upon his estate two square miles of forest. This tract he intends to inclose: first, by a wide, deep trench; second, by a strong iron railing, and third, by a high stone wall. He will then turn loose into the inclosure every sort of wild animal that he can procure—lions, tigers, elephants, and every other kind of beast—in order to ascertain if they can live at large in this climate and without unduly interfering with each other. There is to be a network of underground passages leading to numerous stone towers in the different places in the forest, and from these he intends to watch the animals and study their habits when in a comparatively wild state.

JOHN L'S LATEST.

Slugged a Street Car Conductor—Marched to the Police Station.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 22.—John L. Sullivan, ex-champion heavy-weight and ex-actor, was arrested last night on a charge of assaulting a west end street railroad conductor. The big fellow attempted to take a car for the city, but as he had a big mastiff dog with him, the conductor refused to allow the dog to ride. John L. promptly slugged the conductor. The latter called a policeman, and John and the dog were escorted to the police station. When Sullivan's friends heard of his plight, one of them went his bail.

Russia's Rulers

Touch the Shores of Great Britain at Leith.

A Splendid Naval Spectacle in the Harbor.

The Royal Yacht Surrounded by Torpedes—Extraordinary Protection Against Dynamiters—Prince of Wales Greets Them.

Leith, Scotland, Sept. 22.—The Russian yachts Standard and Pole Star were sighted at the entrance of the Firth of Forth at 10:30 this morning, and the news was immediately telegraphed to the Prince of Wales, who was in charge of the arrangements for the reception of the Czar and Czarina, and who will accompany the Russian visitors to Balmoral.

The Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, M. de Stael, the Russian ambassador to the court of St. James, Lord Rosebery, and a number of high military officials, arrived at the jetty from Dalmeny at 11 o'clock, and were received by an escort of Enniskillen dragoons. Rain was falling heavily, and the sky and general surroundings was most forbidding, but in spite of this enormous crowds of people lined the way to the docks and greeted the arrival of the royal party with the greatest enthusiasm.

The Prince of Wales wore the uniform of the Kieff Dragoons, and the Duke of Connaught was in the uniform of the Scots Guards. After inspecting the reception room, the royal party joined the Duchess of Buccleuch and the Countess of Lytton and embarked on the steamer Tantallon Castle. The steamer then proceeded down the firth to meet the Czar and Czarina. The Channel fleet, which lined the Firth of Forth, saluted as the Prince of Wales and the royal party traversed the lines. The Russian imperial yachts, on their arrival, were saluted by the fleet, and immediately dropped anchor. The Tantallon Castle soon afterwards ran alongside the Standard, the latter having their Russian Majesties on board, and the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught and M. De Staal went on board and welcomed the Czar and Czarina to Leith. The greetings exchanged between the imperial travelers and the British Princes was most affectionate.

The party afterwards lunched together on board the Standard. Though the weather was far from being all that could be wished for the reception, there was no mistaking the fact that the people of Leith and its vicinity had turned out in the fullest possible force, determined to give the imperial travelers a hearty and genuine welcome to the shores of Scotland. The whole harbor was full of merchant vessels from all parts of the world, and they were all decked from stem to stern with bunting, and placed in the neatest possible trim on both sides of the water, so that, after passing though the lines of powerful warships the progress of the Standard up the Firth of Forth was parade like in the extreme.

The precautions taken afloat for the protection of their majesties were unprecedented, it is believed, in naval annals. Picket boats, steam launches, and torpedo boats of the smaller class, from the warships Majestic, Magnificent, Repulse and Resolution, each commanded by a lieutenant, formed a complete net around the Russian yacht in order, ostensibly, to prevent the shore boats from crowding about the Standard; but in reality to prevent any possibility of an attempt to commit a dynamite or other outrage. The shore boats were in such vast numbers on the water that there is no doubt that the precautions taken by the British naval authorities were warranted.

The precautions adopted ashore were equally thorough, although few people give more than a passing thought now to the alleged dynamite conspiracy, supposed to have been discovered by Scotland Yard. On the Tantallon Castle ashore, on the train which was to take their Majesties to Balmoral, at different places along the route, at Ballater, and about Balmoral itself, were picked numbers of the Russian secret police, and the most trusted members of the Czar's Nihilist detectives. Other Russian detectives were on board the Standard, and they were reinforced on landing by a picked squad of the very best Scotland Yard detectives, who will remain attached to the Czar and Czarina's party until they leave Great Britain. After luncheon, their Imperial Majesties boarded the Tantallon Castle, accompanied by the British princes, and that steamship proceeded slowly up the Firth of Forth, closely guarded by the swarm of picket boats, through the lines of the British fleet, all the warships flying the Russian ensign.
