SURPRISE FOR STUDENTS.

IMPROVEMENTS AT THE TORONTO SCHOOL OF MEDICINE.

Cases at the Civil Assizes—The Art School—Disagreement About Blue Ribbon Beer—Other Local News.

Extensive additions have been added to the Toronto school of medicine during the past summer. The old students will find a great change in the building, and now students will begin their course in one of the most complete medical colleges on the continent.

The new wing faces Sackville street, is of red brick, two stories high, and queen post roof, with a large skylight for the dissecting room. The interior of the new wing on the ground floor is divided into museum and pathological demonstrating room and hall, the upstairs being one room, 40x50, lighted by the skylights and sixteen windows. This is the dissecting room, and is fitted with a hoist for bringing the cadavers from the vats, wash basins, hot and cold water, and all modern conveniences. The old dissecting room is divided into a medium lecture room and professors' room, and the old hallway upstairs into the secretary's office and library. The ground floor in the main building is entirely changed, and now contains the main hall, reading room, faculty room, students' hat room and main lecture hall. The seats and desks have all been remodelled and repainted. The faculty are to be congratulated in having so fine a college.

The formal opening will be Thursday night, October 1, when Dr. W. W. Ogden will deliver the first lecture of the session. There will be a concert, conversazione and refreshments after the lecture.

CASES AT THE CIVIL ASSIZES.

The Court Opened Yesterday—Fixtures and Adjournments—Peremptory List.

The civil assizes for York were opened at the Adelaide street tombs yesterday by Judge Galt. A number of changes were made in the docket. Brown v. Nelson was set down for October 10; Temperance Colonization company v. Dickenson and McLaughlin v. Temperance Colonization company were traversed to the January sittings; Burton v. Citizens' Insurance company and Citizens' Insurance company v. Claxton are to be tried together; Ryan v. Irish was put at the foot of the non-jury list; Plummer v. Pardoe was dismissed with costs; Lee v. Caldwell was added to non-jury list; Williams v. Craig was set down for next court; Peck v. Shields postponed; Shields v. McDonald struck out and Beaty v. Cromwell withdrawn. No cases being ready the court arose until 10 o'clock this morning. The peremptory list being: Radford v. Irish, Chamberlin v. Irish, Cole v. Smith, Carter v. Grassett, Dean v. Low, Gibson v. Turner, Hovey v. Hallway, Williams v. Hartley.

DISAGREEING DOCTORS.

Is Blue Ribbon Beer Intoxicating—Medical Evidence Before the Magistrate.

The blue ribbon beer question was again up at the police court yesterday. Medical evidence was called pro and con as to the intoxicating effect of the beverage. Dr. W. W. Ogden, Dr. U. U. Ogden and Dr. McCully testified that a beverage with 2½ per cent. of alcohol was intoxicating. Dr. Coverston, chairman of the provincial board of health, Dr. Burns and Dr. James Ross were of the opinion that a man could not contain enough of the beverage to intoxicate him. One witness testified that it was malted. Mr. Galbraith, the prosecuting attorney, argued that if it was not decided to be intoxicating, a conviction was in order on the ground that it was malted. Judgment was reserved until Thursday.

Ontario School of Art.

The classes in industrial art and design will be reopened at the education department Monday, Oct. 12, the principal being W. Crufkshank, a graduate of the London royal academy, while Dr. May will continue at the helm as superintendent. There are two courses on the curriculum, primary and advanced. The primary comprises freehand drawing from flat examples, practical geometry, linear perspective, model drawing and memory and blackboard drawing. The subjects in the advanced course are shading from flat examples, outline drawing from the round (casts or nature), shading from the round, drawings from flowers and objects of natural history, advanced perspective, descriptive geometry, drawing from dictation, machine drawing, building construction, industrial design. The special subjects are confined to painting in oil colors, painting in water colors, modelling in clay and wax, wood carving, wood engraving, china painting, repousse work. The classes in special subjects will not be conducted unless there be a sufficient number of applicants to warrant the expenditure in connection therewith. Full information can be had on application to Superintendent May.

Report of the C. P. Commission.

The Central prison commissioners have made their report to the provincial government, but it has not yet been given out for publication. It is understood that the commission is in favor of retaining Mr. Massie as warden. With a new set of rules more comprehensive and more adapted to the spirit of the age the commissioners believe that the prison will prosper under the management of Warden Massie. Their travels through the States and the experience they have had in the prisons there have proved to the commissioners the necessity of a new set of rules and a change in the discipline. They know of no one more suitable than the present warden to see that these changes are carried out and adhered to, and so recommend to the government.

They Missed the Golden Opportunity.

The Irish team left on the 12.30 G. T. R train for New York yesterday. Mr. Daly, representative of the Erie railway, and Mr. Jagoe, representative of the West Shore railway, had been negotiating with them for transportation to New York, and although most liberal rates were offered them, they failed to close Saturday or Sunday, and were very much astonished yesterday morning when they were informed by the representatives of these routes that rates had risen 20 per cent. The bulldozing in this case had been carried too far, and the above was the result, and will always be so under similar circumstances.

Bay Briefs.

Business about the bay was quiet as usual yesterday.

The schooner Ariadne is loading with barley at the City elevator.

The reports inward yesterday were: Schooners—Freemason, 243 tons of coal for S. Crane & Co., Oswego; Helen, stone, lake shore; Mary, 134,700 feet of lumber for R. Hay & Co., Dresden; propellers—Lake Ontario, pig iron for Rice Lewis & Son, Montreal; Persia, general merchandise, Montreal; Shickaluna, light, Kingston. Departures: Persia, St. Catharines; Lake Ontario, Hamilton; tug O. B. Cooke, St. Catharines.

Street Railway in Parkdale.

A meeting was held at Parkdale with a view to making some arrangements for a street railway service. A deputation, composed of R. N. Gooch, W. Cooke, J. W. Langmuir, W. P. Atkinson, and the secretary, J. J. Tretkeld, were appointed to waite upon Senator Smith, president of the Toronto street railway company.

Just Think of It.

Three thousand more cases of smallpox in Montreal. Now, friends, if you will take a word of advice from one who knows the dan ger you are in, you will not use any more goods manufactured in Montreal—without any business prejudice—cigars in particular. You can get a better cigar manufactured in Toronto, and run no chances of getting the loathsome disease, by using the Brave Boys and General Middleton brands. They are the stuff; both clear Havana filler. Send on your orders as soon as possible to the sole manufacturer, W. E. Dobson, 23 Church st., Toronto. 246

The Holmans in Iolanthe.

The Holman company are to be congratulated on the success of their opening this week in Iolanthe. The house was well filled with an evidently highly pleased audience. The opera went smoothly throughout; the encores were frequent and the applause continuous. Miss Sallie Holman as Phyllis sang in excellent voice, and J. T. Dalton was a very acceptable Stephen. Miss Blanche Holman, as Queen of the Fairies, and Miss Rose Cameron in the title role sustained their parts excellently, as in fact did all the company. A. D. Holman, the Lord Chancellor, as is his wont, made the best of his part and created much amusement. A word of praise must be given to Miss Ollie Hulford, who seems to improve in voice and gesture nightly. Notwithstanding the abortive writ of injuction, Iolanthe has proved a success. The opera will be repeated to-morrow evening.

Not the Like for Ten Years Back.

It is now ten years odd since the ladies of Toronto had anything like the present opportunity of purchasing by retail an immense large wholesale stock of millinery, mantles and dry goods, at about half wholesale prices. Commencing at 10 o'clock to-day Messrs. Reid & Bayne will sell off by retail the entire wholesale stock of Barber, Warner & Co., at 31 Front street west (Phœnix block). This stock is in splendid condition, and, having been purchased at 30c. on the dollar, the proprietors can afford to put prices right down in order to close out quickly. They have just added two cases black grosgrain silk and two cases of braided jerseys and fur trimmings, which were stopped in transitu, and which they bought in bond at very low figures. Some locality up town might have been more convenient for the majority of buyers, but the fact is that nowhere else could Messrs. Reid & Bayne find premises with space enough for handling this large stock of goods by retail during the short time they give themselves for clearing out the whole. The ladies will find it to pay them to go down to the wholesale quarter for the big bargains they will get there at retail. No 31 Front street west, Phœnix block. See advt.

A Big Thing for Toronto.

—The Canadian Harness Co., Front street, opposite hay market, have informed us that they have sold over five dozen sets of harness during exhibition week. Their trade has more than doubled during the past month, owing to the great satisfaction their harness is giving, which is pronounced by competent judges to be of excellent workmanship; all hand stitched and No. 1 stock used. We would advise all these requiring harness and who want to save $10 on a set, to give this enterprising firm a call. 246

Aimee in Mam'zelle.

Those of our theatre-goers who wish to laugh in a new place, so to speak, ought to go and see the Aimee company now at the Grand. The piece, Mam'zelle, is a farcy kind of comedy, developing most unlooked-for situations, both on the stage and in the audience, and creating the most side-splitting laughter. Just what these unwonted interruptions in the audience may consist of we leave to the reader when he visits the theatre to-night or to-morrow. Aimee sang her old song, "Pretty as a Picture," in her old way, and of course captivated the house and had to repeat one of the verses. Whoever Lester Victor is, he knows how to play the old-time stage manager to a dot; his representation last night was laughable in the extreme, and at the same time something altogether out of the ordinary. The get-up, acting, manner and gyrations of Mr. Webber as a husbandly kind of dude well up in years is also a new creation. All the support is good. Go and see it.

Fort Rouille Park.

—There is no better site for a residence within twenty miles of Toronto than Fort Rouille park, situate next to the exhibition grounds. The lots overlook the lake, the spot is healthy and desirable in every way. Street cars run close to the property and a business man can easily reach his suburban home. The sale takes place on Saturday next on the grounds. Full particulars at Oliver, Coate & Co's. 23

Collegiate Institute.

The annual distribution of prizes and scholarships will be held in the Institute buildings, Jarvis street, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Mayor Manning will distribute the prizes. The proceedings are open to the public.

100 per cent. Saved.

—By having your watch thoroughly repaired at Doherty's, 360 Queen street west, you will save time, trouble, disappointment, and the constant drain on your pocket. A written guarantee given with all work. 135

GEORGE ELIOT'S PRIVATE LIFE.

The Train of Circumstances That Led to Her Union With George Lewes.

From the North American Review.

What some liberal critics would call the great mistake of her life, if not, as both England and American matronhood assert, the great blot on her character, was her marriage with George H. Lewes. According to English law the marriage was illegal. The wife of Mr. Lewes abandoned him after committing adultery; she felt, or pretended to feel, remorse for her conduct, and was received back into the house she had dishonored. Then some new seducer tempted her to fly away from her husband and children. The home became homeless. By a technicality of English law, Lewes had forfeited his right to be divorced from his faithless partner, because, in a moment of compassion, he had received her back as his "lawfully" wedded wife. In this condition, as a twice-dishonored husband, he met with Miss Evans. He was fascinated by her, and she gradually became fascinated by him. There was no outward beauty on either side; Lewes was one of the homeliest men in Great Britain, and Miss Evans had no personal attraction, if we except the sweetness of her voice and the singular beauty of expression in her eyes. Each saw the vision of the other "in the mind." Miss Evans, repudiating the technicality of the English law, consented to be united to Mr. Lewes, went abroad with him, was married to him, we think in some foreign city, and returned to England a kind of a social rebel, frowned upon by all women except those intimate friends who knew her motives and never faltered in their friendship. As she never sought "society," and rather disliked it, she bore with exemplary patience all the social disadvantages of her illegal rather than immoral conduct. Seven years before her union we find in one of her letters this remark about the novel of "Jane Eyre," then the literary sensation of the season: "All self-sacrifice is good, but one would like it to be a somewhat nobler cause than that of a diabolical law which chains a man, soul and body, to a putrefying carcass." After her marriage she wrote to her friend Mrs. Bray that "any unworldly, unsuperstitious woman who is sufficiently acquainted with the realities of life can pronounce my relations to Mr. Lewes immoral; I can only understand by remembering how subtile and complex are the influences which mould opinion."

Whatever may be thought of the legality or morality of the connection, there can be no doubt it led to the happiest results to both parties. Lewes had been practically homeless for two years. There was danger that his children would grow up uneducated and uncared for. He was fast drifting into Bohemian habits. Four years after his new marriage Mrs. Lewes states in her journal that their "double life is more and more blessed—more and more complete." A few weeks after Lewes writes in his journal that he owes an intellectual debt of gratitude to Herbert Spencer. He says:

"My acquaintance with him was the brightest ray in a very dreary, wasted period of my life. * * * I owe him another and deeper debt. It was through him that I learned to know Marian—to know her was to love her—and since then my life has been a new birth. To her I owe all my prosperity and happiness. God bless her!"

A Boom in Picture Framing.

—R. J. Licence, 31 Adelaide street west, calls special attention to his facilities for producing cheap picture frames, picture mats, etc. The public can rely upon obtaining from him all the latest and best styles at the very lowest prices. All his goods are made on the premises and finished by competent workmen. We call special attention to his advertisement in to-day's columns. 14

Toronto Taken by Surprise.

—Ladies will be surprised and filled with delight at the elegance of the new mantle and mourning house just opened. They certainly have some lovely goods, and their prices are low as compared with other houses. Such enterprise deserves encouragement, and The World advises ladies in search of stylish mantles or black goods to give them a call. The address is 218 Yonge street, cor. Albert street. 135

—Stanton's Sunbeams—beautiful little photographs on tinted mounts—$1 per dozen. 131 Yonge street. All other sizes at lowest prices or first-class work. 246

That Big Hat.

Oh, woman, 'tis a fearful thing!
It takes away my sight—
I cannot see the stage at all,
I ask you is it right
To wear that hat so tall and broad,
With flaring feathers gay,
And rob me of the mimic joys
For which I've had to pay?

The Young Men who write for The World are all artists in pencil work.

Reconciliation.

O! wild white bird, faint fluttering,
That comes to bid good morrow,
My aching heart doth leap and sing,
Forgetful of its sorrow;
I hold thee, little fluttering thing,
Against the heart thou mak'st to spring—
Sweet sister bird, thy brother mate
May never more be desolate.

Alas! but thou hast made me weep,
Made vacant all the field of sleep,
For very agony mine eyes
Tell yet of past expectancies,
For lo! when o'er my drowned sight
Thou lightest from thy happy flight,
The golden time grew fair again;
I saw the flm'ces domain
Of love, where late I walked with thee,
Sweet angel of my agony.

Dear, blessed bird, thy olive bough
Is salt with tears, and yet I know
The passion of truth and love that sent
Thee as my darkened firmament;
My kisses make revive thy wings,
My heart triumphant leaps and sings,
The promised bow resplendent shines
Between the sea and serene lines,
And through the incontant waves arise
Love's virginal isles of paradise.
