MOOSE SEEN NEAR CITY

A Large One Sighted on Marsh Road This Morning Near One Mile House.

From the stories told of moose being seen in the vicinity of St. John it seems a waste of time and money for sportsmen to go long distances to hunt the monarch of the forest. On Saturday last one of good size was killed at Garnett Settlement and was brought to the market this morning. Within the past few days two or three have been seen near Barker's at Loch Lomond. Last night one was chased by some sportsmen from this city, in the vicinity of Dolan's Lake on the Golden Grove road, but he eluded his pursuers and escaped. This morning a "lordly bull" was met by a man driving into the city on the Marsh road. The gentleman in question was passing the greenhouses, of Mr. McIntosh near the one-mile house about six oclock when "his highness appeared and trotted along the road after the team. The driver of the team to his regret did not have a shooting iron, so was powerless to do anything but watch the "antlered beauty" with envious eyes. The moose moved along apparently fearless, until a dog made his appearance and started barking when the big fellow made a dash for the fence at the side of the road, cleared it nicely and dissappeared across the fields and into the woods back of Rockwood Park.

The great number of animals that have already been killed has brought the price down very low and one carcase of good size sold for $11 in the market this morning.

Harry Roberts, son of David S. Roberts, of the north end, bagged a fine moose on Thursday last at Long Reach. The animal weighed about 1400 pounds and had an antler spread of about 50 inches. Six shots were necessary to make his lordship bite the dust. Mr. Roberts naturally feels quite proud of his achievement. The moose was brought to the city and has ere this been converted into steaks for the delectation of the lovers of moose meat.
